MRS. DR. KECK

Will arrive in the city on Oct. 17, on fifth visit. Can be found at Dore Block, Room 20, northwest corner of Madison and State-sts. Will remain one week. All persons afficted with Chronic Catarrh and Consumption will do well to visit this successful physician. Consultation free. This professional tour has exceeded all others. Mrs. Dr. Keck has patients from all the largest cities of the United States. Some visited her from Boston and other Eastern cities, wanting her professional services. It is surprising to see the suffering,—some coming with total blindness. Deafness, Derangement of Mind, Consumption, and the worst of Female Weakness. Rosring in the Head, Bronchitis, Heart Disease, Hemorrhage of the Lungs, Beursigs, Kidney Disease, and the worst of Protracted Coughs of ten years' standing. Every one yielded to her treatment where all other remedies failed. Many cases of Falling Fits have been cured by her in Davemport and other cities. The best of references given in this city. Asthma, even when born in the patient, has been successfully treated. Any one doubting the above can address William Picket, Rockford, Ill. The best scientific physicians in the case of a child in Bloomington. Ill., said that death only would relieve it, but by the able treatment of Mrs. Dr. Keck the parents now rejoice-the darling being restored to them. The child was only 13 months old. Names can be given of parties suffering with deafness and cured in two months, in this city. Also cases cured of twelve years' standing caused by scarlet fever. In regard to derangement of the mind there are hundreds to day that could be enstored if medical men were only posted as they should be. The Lunaite Asylums would be empty. Some of our citizens know of one case being brought 100 miles for treatment. Why did she come? Because they saw one cured who was so crazy that they had to watch her, and she was fully restored in mind. Do you know that we have two asylums in our State? Now. over one-half the cases are caused by Dry Catarrh. Mrs. Dr. Keck

The meeting was called to order by James Nolan, the President of the Club, and J. S. Childs, who introduced the resolutions at the last meeting calculated to make the next Sheriff, submitted a proposition that the Club make nominations for the several offices to be filled irrespective of party.

The resolutions are said to have provoked a stormy debate, but were finally adopted, out of which the following ticket grew:

THE DEMOCRACY.

THE DEMOCRACY.

PERPARNS TO PURES THE COUNTY AND LEGISLATIVE TICKET.

The Democratic County Central Committee met at the headquarters, No. 77 Clark street, yesterday afternoon, Mr. Perry H. Smith in the chair. There was a howling crowd in attendance, who seemed inclined to know what was going on. The fact is, the Democracy are disgusted with the Legislative ticket, and the meeting was for the purpose of "bouncing by the bad fellows, which would probably include the whole crowd.

Mr. Perry P. Smith called the Committee by order, and suggested that they retire to a private room.

Mr. N. E. Sheldon—Mr. Chairman, I object. There are things to be brought up that are paramount to any other consideration. As a Democrat I object to the Republicans and the Chicago Tisses running the party, which I think capable of running itself.

The Chair—You have one of the best rights in the world to object, but as the matter of which you have spoken has not come up, it might under other circumstances be proper to rule you out of order, especially as you are not a member of the Committee.

Gus Van Buren offered the following:

Resolved, That a committee of 100 Democrata to be selected by the Chair from the prominent Democrats of Cook County, be invited by the Committee to meet with them for the purpose of taking into consideration all things necessary for the best interests of the party at the coming election.

Mr. Rafferty moved to amend that each member of the Central Committee.

The question was put and the Chair could not decide.

Mr. Van Euren began to draw another resolution.

Miles Kehoe objected to the whole business, as he did not know that any mistakes had been leaded.

the party in the city and county at the comin election.

Mr. Rafferty went on with a rambling speech advocating the appointment of a committee of five for some purpose not named.

A motion was adopted to adjourn the Committee meeting to the up-stairs room, where the reporters were expelled, and the members of the Committee went to work at the grand homes. Upon coming to order a resolution was adopted to appoint a committee of 100 to consult with the Central Committee as to "that less interest of the party in this campaign;" in ther words, to decide as to who shall be ounced from the Legislative ticket.

A committee, composed of Messra Story, orrester, Somers, Van Buren, Sweeney, Robison, and Lavy, was appointed to report the smes of the Committee of 100.

TO WORK.

The Republican candidates met at the quarters yesterday morning to take action the coming campaign.

on motion of Col. Davis a committee of five appointed by the Chair to select persons to on that Committee. The Committee of five s composed as follows: Col. George R. Da. L. L. Mills, J. H. Clough, L. Brentane, and

Mr. Sherman moved that the Campaign Com-nittee be increased fifteen, making the whole number forty. Adopted.

Mr. Hopkins suggested that each candidate and in names of gentlemen in his own pre-inct to be added to the Campaign Committee. he suggestion was accepted. The suggestion was accepted.

Capt. McGrath thought five members suffimotion, the Chairman was added.

Clough brought up the subject of judges ection. He said he was not an alarmist, it was well known that the sty Commissioners were opposed crything Republican, and having the apment of the judges, it was worth thouse of votes to the Democracy. The exist-of a Registry law did not help the matter, contaction is already going on, and two ocratic judges have been appointed for each not. He called on Mr. Atwater for some mation as to the appointment of Republiages.

Atwater said there was only one Republeach precinct. Mr. Clough continued, it that it was doubtful if there would be od Republicans in some of the precincts e action were not taken.

Aldrich said the devilish practices of the race had commenced. The registering as not even a building.

Mr. Vocke, representing Mr. Brentano, urged a appointment of a corps of canvassers, well reed in the wiles of Democracy, to thorough-tigate the city and devise means for pkins spoke or mans. ng the threatened frauds.

Hoskins spoke on the subject, and said Mr. Aldrich's opponent was workened using fraud to carry his n, and that it looks now e were to succeed, and his success will affect the county ticket. He said he had it o Mr. Hoxle, who, when he was robbed to Park some time ago, sent the ringalluded to Mr. Hoxle, who, when he was roobed at Hyde Park some time ago, sent the ring-leaders to the Penitentiary, and lately secured their pardon os their promise to work for him. Hoxle did not have the respect of his own party, he said, and was supported only by bummers. The County Board had established a polling-place at Colehour, on the Indiana line, so as to run in men from Indiana. Hoxle is to be elected anyhow, for he is backed by Tom Scott who will use him as he wants to when he gets to Contress.

ABOUT TOWN. REPUBLICAN HEADQUARTERS.

Now that the smoke of Tuesday's battle ha cleared away and Republicans can see what they have accomplished, they are growing more en-thusiastic and jubilant. In Indiana the Democgot the real mest in the nut. It is true the Democrats elected "Blue-Jeans" by 5,000, but the Republicans gained four members of Congress and the State Legislature. Ohio, too, has gone 5,000 better than was anticipated, and altogether the victory was a Republican one in both States, taken from any standpoint. The Grand Pacific Hotel rooms were visited by large numbers of voters yesterday. Col. A. C. Babcock holds that the 26,000 citizens in Indiana, who voted the Greenback ticket, assured "Blue Jeans'" election, but had they sustained their respective parties, Ben Harrison would have been elected by nearly 20,000 majority. A grand parade of the Hayes and Wheeler Marching Clubs will probably take place this week.

A meeting of all the Republican Clubs of this city and Cook County is called for to-morrow evening to prepare tor Tuesday's registration. It is proposed to call a meeting of the Twelith Ward Republican Club for the purpose of asking George W. Reed to withdraw from the Legislative ticket in the Fourth District. Should he refuse, it is suggested to ignore him, and to select some one else in his stead.

Saturday, 21st inst. I would prefer an evening meeting.

Agreeable to this request, the State Executive Committee have fixed the time for a grand Republican rally for next Saturday evening, probably in Market street square, if the weather will permit. This will be one of the events of the campaign. On that night there will be a torchlight parade such as has probably not been equaled in Chicago. Arrangements will be perfected to-morrow or next day for the grand lurn-out. Col. Ingersoll speaks at Rock Island next Friday evening.

THERD CONGRESSIONAL COMMITTES.

The Republican Committee of the Third Congressional District met at the headquarters, corner of Lake and Clark streets, yesterday afternoon, and organized by appointing A. M. Pemce Chairman and E. B. Payue Secretary. An adjournment was taken to 1:30 p. m. to-morrow at Mr. Upton's office, No. 88 LaSalle street.

DEMOCRATIC HEADQUARTERS.

There was not much doing in the Palmer House rooms yesterday. The Indiana election seems to have exhausted Democratic energies for the time being. The Executive Committee held a brief and unimportant session at noon. The Campaign Committee met at 4 o'clock in the afternoon and appointed committees to see to the registration of Democratic voters.

The Independent local ticket movement seems to have fallen through. The prime movers in the matter propose to leave it where it is, and to vote only for the best and most competent of the cambidates of both parties, trusting that the Democracy will revise its County Commissioner the emiddates of both parties, trusting that the Democracy will revise its County Commissioner and Legislative tickets entirely, and that the Republicans will also make a few changes for and Legislative tickets entirely, and that the Republicans will also make a few changes for the better.

This party of much hope and little strangth is carefully working in the interests of the Palmer House crowd. The rooms in the Tremont House are never overcrowded, nevertheless the heads of the concern keep up a show of business, and one or two of the most enthusiasic frequenters of the place insist that Cooper and Cary will be elected.

DEMOCRATIC RECONCILIATION.

The Du Page County delegates who opposed John R. Hoxie's nomination for Congress, and who protested against the action of the Convention, met the First District Democratic Congressional Committee yesterday at the Palmer House, where matters were talked over. The conference was a long and tedious one, and, from the fact that the entire party afterwards drank together, it is presumed that the "bloody chasm" was bridged,—at least, that was the assurance given to a Tainung reporter by members of the Committee.

The Third Ward Republican Club held a meet The Third Ward Republican Club held a meeting at their rooms, 950 Wabash avenue, Mr. A. Crawford in the chair. After the reading of the minutes Mr. E. T. Sumwalt, as Chairman of the Cauvassing Committee, reported that he had divided the ward by its precincts, for cauvassing purposes, and had selected the following as canvassers in the ward: First Precinct, A. N.Eddy; Second Precinct, W.T. Hancock; Third Precinct, Col. Lyman Bridges; Fourth Precinct, W. O. Cole. Under these officers sixty assistants had been selected, including such names as Norman Williams, R. G. Keith, J. M. Adsit, C. H. Ham, H. T. Buck, J. G. Shortall, C. M. Culbertson, Kirk Hawes, J. H. Clough, and others. The ward was also divided up so as to give each can vasser only two or three blocks, and in that way every house could be visited. Pass-books had likewise been prepared for each person, wherein are to be noted the name of every voter in the ward, his residence, politics, and length of residence in the ward. It was further stated that these books were to be used at the election, and thus prevent repeating, and that care would be taken to show the vacant lots or churches on each block, so that if a man gave a number on a street which was found to cover a vacant lot his vote would be challenged. ers in the ward: First Precinct, A. Various suggestions were made by several members of the Club, tending to make the canvass more complete; and if the canvass be carried out in the most elaborate and excellent manner devised, the chance of fraud will be reduced to a minimum. The Tnird Ward has always been at the front in discipline and esprit du corps, and this last step is in full keeping with its whole record. Other ward clubs will do well to pattern after its example.

After the business had been transacted addresses were made by Col. A. N. Waterman and others, and the Club adjourned.

The Thirteenth Ward Republican Club met last evening at Benz's Hall, Lake street near Robey. Vice-President W. W. Bingham presided. After the transaction of some thoroughly routine business, the Club was ably addressed by the Hon. L. L. Bond, Maj. Brockway, Ald. Cleveland, and others. The meeting then adjourned.

will be cast for Hayes and Wheeler. He say that the Democrats have never been able to scure a majority when the Republicans wer united. A Republican bolt has always been necessary to secure a Democratic victory, an the present Democratic Congressman was elected by only 267 votes over his Republican opponent. This year there is no Republican bolt. The dissepsions are all healed the bolters and Liberals are all within the ranks and Oregon is as sure for the Republicans a Maine is. The Democratic Committee has always claimed Oregon for Tilden, but Republic ans can now safely rely on it. Williams has jus made a complete canvass of the State. Califor nia Republicans, he says, are also very hopefu of that State.

Judge Pitman's Boy.

Philoshiphic Bulletin.

Judge Pitman's boy Bill acquires learning in a log school house. At one place the plaster between the logs is broken away, and through this aperture Bill endeavored to escape feet foremost during school hours one day last Summer. Unfortunately he stuck fast when half way through, and he could neither return nor retreat. When the attention of Mr. Simes, the teacher, was directed to the culprit, Mr. Simes proceeded to the exterior of the edite and embraced the opportunity afforded by William's position to hammer with a shingle. Then young Mr. Pitman was pulled out and plunged into sums in vulgar fractions. Near the school-house there is a mill race, at the end of which there is a sluice-gate. Immediately below the gate there is a huge, deep tank, which carries water to an undershot wheel. The inside of the tank is green and slimy, and when the water is drawn carefully out of it, a great many fish can often be found lying in the bottom. The tank is fifteen feet deep. A few days after the flogging, Bill happened to pass the tank and to look in. He saw Mr. Simes at the bottom, picking up fish and putting them in a bag. William felt that the hour of vengeance had struck. He turned the handle of the sluice-gate, and in less than a minute that jolly old pedagogue was floundering in six feet of water, trying in vain to clamber up the slimy sides of the tank. When he saw young Pitman he shrieked to him for help. But Bill, with fiendish coolness, said: "No, sir; you've got to tread water-till you promise never to lick me again." Then Simes solemnly bledged himself never to strike another blow at him, and Bill let the water from the tank and helped Simes out. That night, when Bill yot home, he found Simes there conversing with the Judge, and five minutes later the Judge was fondling William with a trunk strap, while Simes sat by and smilled. William has since expressed the opini opiniou confidentially that Simes is a periodious scoundrel.

An Old Farmer's Views of the Centennial Correspondence New York Mening Post.

I was especially entertained by the conversation of a farmer from the neighborhood of Poughkeepsie, with whom I traveled the other day on his return. "Tell ye what," he said, "Ive been there three days and I seen such a lot of things, and they've got so jumbled up in my head, that I can't seem to remember anything. Now you may laugh, but it's just the fact; I'd rather go to a 'Keepsie Fair; when I go there I come away and remember every farming machine, every borse, cow, hog, or sheep, and even the size of the beets and cabbages. I get my money's worth; and now, somehow or 'nother, it don't seem as if I had."

"But what do you think of the Exhibition on the whole?" I asked. "Well," he replied, "I think we're shead of the furriners on a'most everything. We've got more of 'em." Now unquestionably that last remark, simple and absurd as it is, speaks out a common impression. Many persons, without reflecting that it is impossible for foreign nations to present more than samples of their industries by the side of our wholesale displays, go sway with an exaggerated idea of their own national importance.

WHAT THE FOREIGNERS EXCHL US IX.

"So you saw nothing," I asked, in continuing the conversation, "in which the foreigners excelled us?"

"Oh, yes," he answered, "they are a little mite shead in some few things—such as that Seevers chiny; them plates, and dishes, and cups, and sarcers are well got up, and beat our crockery ware all holler, I'll silvey; and so they be on that gobbler tapistry, because we can't waste our time on such fine filtching. They draw picters better'n we do, and their stone figure are smooth and slick, and good imitations—that its they would be if they were colored up; but on the whole as I asid before, we beat 'em out and out."

ROCK RIVER CONFERENCE. MORNING SESSION.

The Conterence of Rock River was called to order yesterday morning at the Centenary Church by Bishop Bowman. The first business accomplished was the ador ion of a resolution that the ministers shou be allowed to remain in their charges until after the Presidential election, no matter what changes might be made in regard to their appointments, so that they should not be disfran-chised by a change of residence.

A request was received from the Chicago Re-lief and Aid Society, asking that the Rev. C. G.

Murdell be reappointed Superintendent of that Society. Referred. The reports of Presiding Elders were then taken up at the point where they were suspended on the previous day. The Rev. Mr. Tibbals, of the Freeport District, reported a favorable condition of affairs in his neighborhood. The Rev. Mr. Angell, of Boston, was allowed to address the Conference in behalf of the So ciety for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. In Illinois only $1,000 was expended annually for this kind of Christian work, and be thought that people should take more interest it, and spend more money.

The Rev. Dr. Rust, President of the Freed

men's Aid Society, addressed the Conference, stating the condition of the negroes in the South and giving the prospects of the Society. Bishop Bowman added a few words, claiming that the Society was doing a good work for the whites as well as for the colored people.

The following were formally admitted to full connection: Harman T. Clendenning, Andrew I. Scott. Ambrose Perry, John R. Burns, Coleman H. Hoffman, George H. Wells, Franklin G. Davis, Charles H. Cook. The candidates were addressed by the Bishop, who asked the usual questions and administered the customary advice. He told them to study carefully the discipline and become good Methodist preachers. Among other bits of advice he gave one about women. He said that he wished more particularly to caution the candidates against imprudence in their association with women. He said that nowadavs there was much talk in the newspapers about ministers, op Bowman added a few words, claiming much talk in the newspapers about ministers, and especial delight seemed to be taken by them in publishing ministerial scandals. Of course in publishing ministerial scandals. Of course the publishers were worldly men, and were not to be so much blamed for the injury that they did. But ministers were especially liable to suspicion. He would therefore advise them to be very guarded. Young women were often apt to run after ministers, and would like to be ministers' wives. If a minister went a few times with a young woman, she might think he was attached to her, reven engaged and accordingly there would be trouble.

Messrs. Hoffman and Cook were continued on trial, Mr. Perry was withdrawn by reason of his return to England, and the other candidates were admitted to full connection.

were admitted to full connection.

APTERNOON SESSION.

The anniversary exercises of the Educational Society were held in the afternoon, the Rev. G. W. Querean presiding.

The devotional exercises were conducted by the Rev. Mr. Moore, of Sycamore.

Prof. Mandeville, of Aurora, spoke upon an educated niembership of the church, and the best facilities for obtaining it. There was a need of an educated membership and ministry, and without it the work of the church could not go on successfully. His second point was the bearing of an educated membership on the Sunday-school, as the latter must draw its teachers and officers from it. Third, an educated membership helped the accumulation of funds for work. It also sided the periodical and book interests. He alluded to the seminary as a means of education, and regarded the seminary or preparatory school as the more important than either the common school or college, as it occupied the middle ground between them.

The Rev. C. H. Fowler spoke. He began by saying that there were many outside agencies for education. Outside of the ministry one of the first in importance was the press. The newspapers gave the news of the day, and were therefore educators. Yet they could not corner a man in an argument, and were not therefore to be counted among the educators for the Church. He had heard it siad, once, after an eloquent sermon, that the one who delivered it could "write the most eloquent extemporaneous sermon he had ever read." Another educator so the very could not content of the counted among the educators for the Church. He had heard it siad, once, after an eloquent sermon, that the one who delivered it could "write the most eloquent extemporaneous sermon he had ever read." Another educator was the university. Here was one only cloquent sermon, that the one who delivered it could "write the most eloquent extemporaneous sermon he had ever read." Another educator was the university. Here was one only thirty minutes' ride from the church where the Conference was yearly held. None of its managers were present to push its claims, although he understood that the institution was sadly in need of money. A university consisted of three things; first, a Board of Trustees, and third, a Board of Trustees. He had been there and knew all about it. It was necessary for them to have money, and the Board of Trustees got it out of the earth, or out of the ak, or out of somewhere. A few years ago a man had written a book which was surposed to demolish the Christian religion. But some one opposed and demolished the book. He would, therefore, urge that they educate, in order to give their scholars the power to refute. The first monument to education in this Conference was the Rock River Seminary at Mount Morris. The men and women had given from 15 to 40 per cent of their substance, and he thought it time for the ministry of the Church to try the same thing. He thought all the preachers should attend the Annual Conferences and set posted as to every time of business; attend the University anniversaries, etc. He thought, also, that every preacher should bring his wife to Conference, as it was as necessary for her to be posted as for him. The church was now living in times of great opposition and infidelity, and all its forces should be brought out to encounter them. He favored keeping the Bible in the public schools.

The meeting closed with a benedition by Brother Batchelder.

After the usual opening exercises Mr. Chamberlain proceeded to discuss the lesson, which was Acts, vii., 51 to 60, inclusive. He began by turning to the beginning of the whole narration of Stephen's remarkable career. He thought the majesty and prerogative of the Holy Spirit glowing in this man was most admirable. It was not Stephen alone, but the great influence of good that was manifest in him on an occasion to trying to the mere 1750. so trying to the mere irrän. He had as thought or care of his personal safety or interest, but charged with the one determination of making known the messages of God. He used terms with which they were perfectly familiar. They were uncircumcised in heart. Not because God's Word, but because it brought them disagreeable truths. They continued to resist as their fathers had. They were obdurate. Man must allow himself to be taught. Might not the same charge hold against those present? Were they not hard in heart! Did they not fret at commands unpleasant to them? It might be they did not have the consciousness of God's presence while their bearts are full of guile. Judas betrayed with a kiss. The Jewish Sanhedrim had been parties to the betrayal. Therefore Stephen called them not only the betrayed them with received by the word of the angles. But he drama drew near the close. Stephen stood likes an angel of the Lord, with a face radiant, doubtless, and those who looked were filled with a perfect makes, and, stopping the fill with the makes, and, stopping the fill with a man and the condemned, was allowed to the serious of the Just One. He charged them with received by the word of the angles. But he drama drew near the close. Stephen stood likes an angel of the Lord, with a face radiant, doubtless, and those who looked were filled with a perfect makes, and, stopping that of the City, and the condemned was allowed to the supplies of the Just One. He charged them with received by the word of the angles. But he drama dready condemned was allowed with a perfect makes, and, stopping that of the did, an angel of the Lord, was allowed to the serious dream the proper was a standing of the resistance when Christ was called the Son of Man after His ascension. It is also the betrayer, but with violence key took him out. If the serious dream the serious dream the word of the angles and for the dream the serious dream the so trying to the mere man. This seemed to sasisfy Mr. Talmage entirely, in fact seemed to delight him, and he went away in apparently high glee. As the contract between the stockholders and Mr. Talmage required either to give the other thiny days' written notice before dissolving it, then was of course not the least suspicion on the mind of anybody about the office of what did happen later on. Mr. M. H. Bright, the managing editor, had made up all the forms and gone home, as the printing was not to be done until Tuesday morning. Before the close of the day, however. Mr. Talmage can into the composing-room, prevailed upon the into the composing-room, prevailed upon the composing-room, prevailed upon the coreman, who is a member of his church, to incret his editorial of 'Good-By, Old Friends' sert his editorial of 'Good-By, Old Friends,' of the first page, and also to take out a good paring advertisement on the last page and put in the prospectus of the Chicago Advance, with himself announced as editor-in-chief. He then had the forms taken to the press-room, got in press nan to start the prinling at once and ran off the entire edition during the night, he staying until early dawn to see to its being done and to make sure of getting the issue out before the proprietors could prevent him. He did so well that no one at the publication office knew what had occurred until the pressman called late in the morning, and casually remarked to Mr. Hallock, 'I see you are going to lose your editor.' This was the first intimation the gentleman addressed had of the true state of affair. He at once ind the papers put under guard, and set to work getting out another edition in which he was so far successful that the subscribers received it only twelve hours behind the usual time. As an instance of how thoroughly Mr. Talmage did his work, Mr. Bright, the managing editor, found on his desk, when he arrived in the morning, the proofs of the various pages, just as he had made up the form the afternoon previous, so that he could supper on the first page of the true of the proofs of the various pages, just as he had made up the form the afternoon previous, so that he could supper output the form and the page of the true of the proofs of the various pages, just as he had made up the form the afternoon previous, so that he could supper output for the proofs of the various pages, just as he had made up the form the afternoon previous, so that he could supper not not form the first page of the proofs of the pr he first page, and also to take out a good pa

Mr. King also said that Mr. Talmage's claim of talking with him, the Rev. Mr. Spurgeon, and other contributors to the Christian at Work is entirely groundless. Mr. Spurgeon has written but little for any paper on this side of whiten but little for any paper of this sant the Atlantic, and has of late refused emphatically all offers to induce him to do so, and that if there were any chance whatever of his services being secured, the Chritian at Work would have secured them long ago, and that he felt very certain that if any pecson subscribed

When young Whitmarsh's friend, who lately returned from Austraia, made him a present of a kangaroo, he was delighted. He had new owned a kangaroo before, and had often depressed a wish to have one. Knowing the alimal was avegetarian, he bought a wagon losi of vegetables, and had them taken up to the house. As the animal was tame, he had him brought into the parlor, and invited some friends to see him. While they were admiring him, and wishing they owned one, themselves a large Newioundland dog belonging to Whitmarsh's little brother-in-law came into the room, and, seeing the kangaroo, made a dash at him. A lively time ensued; the kangaroo made a spring for the top of the piano, where he slighted gracefully; but the dog followed him, and the kangaroo seeing an etagere across in the corner of the room, jumped on top of Whitmarsh's mother-in-law and the respect of the room, where she fell over an ornamental chair, which she entirely ruined in her fall; the kangaroo faring to connect with the etagere, fell aprawling on the floor and was promptly selzed by the dog. The kangaroo went racing around the room, switching his tail and knocking off mantel or naments and upsetting the company, with the dog had a good hold on his throat and hung of to him. A desperate struggle ensued; chair were broken, growls and shrieks filled the sit, the kangaroo's tail few around like a fall, so riously injuring two old ladies and a yound widow, who were struck by it, and the scarended by a young lady being, knocked down in a corner and the kangaroo and dog falling of her. inion yesterday morning in the Circuit Court, chancery, in the Riverside Improvement cases. Anybody who knows anything about these cases knows that they are, to say the least, exceedingly complicated. The decision virtuafly covered twenty different cases and 103 pages of legal cap. Hence only a brief abstract can be given. The cause embraced four original and eight cross-bills, all claiming affirmative relief in regard to property at Riverside. The interests of the complainants, chief among whom is David A. Gage, were so interlaced and so complicated that by agreement of counsel they were all con-sidered as one case. Twenty-four counsel have courts for some time past.

The Judge, in starting out upon his decision, referred to the curious history of Riverside with which the public is somewhat familiar. The Improvement Company and the Water and Gas-Works Company were in debt from the start. This indebtedness constantly increased, and all there was to pay it was the sum realized were made, socured by mortgages and trust-deeds upon these lots, and the by the borrowers. Bonds in the sum of $1,600,-00 were issued in 1871, secured by the Greenebaum trust-deed. The perpet-ual and increasing impecuniosity of the Riverside Corporations, and the fact that they

and nothing but promises with which to pay, must have been generally understood. Many of the shifts resported to by the shrewd manipulators of Riverside finances were only the attempt of a dector, really insolvent, to conceal his actual condition from his creditors, and to induce them, in their invorance of present facts, to make further advances, or at least delay any offers for the collection of their indebtachess. In the collection of the rights of bons fide creditors, and rejecting such claims as are of a doubtful nature. Agreat loss must fall upon all creditors,—it should fall heaviest on those whose claims are the least meritorions. Counsel had virtually abandoned their objection to the Jowett trust-deed, and the Court must, of necessity, settle the conflicting claims of the numerous creditors upon the assumption of the validity of that deed, assuming the validity of that deed, the Court proceeded to consider the Peck bill, brought, among other things, to reform the Jewett trust-deed in certain provisions having reference to its foreclosure, and for a sale of the promess included in said deed, and for the application of the process (first) to the payment of the bonds, and coupons held by the them by thick, and the company and the Cincay & Great Western Railroad Company and the Cincay & Great Western Railroad Land Commany, that the Riverside Improvement Company, of which he was President, having become greatly involved, that Company and the Glaicago & Great Western Railroad Company and the Cincay which have been represented the confliction of the industry of the payment of the industry of the payment of the lands of the Railroad Company, to secure a part of the bonds to be used for the payment of the bonds to be used for the payment of the bonds to be used for the payment of the bonds the current of the property to sale, and that claim was provi

then the sale was made. The sales were made aren and a half months after the powers of attract were granted, and in the notice of sale mention was made of the depreciation of the data nor that they depreciated at all between

June, 1878, and Jan. 20, 1874. The railroad bonds of the Chicago & Great Western Railroad Company and the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company were a fraud from the very first, except as they were secured by the Jewett trust-deed. The bonds were merely issued to held up the declining Riverside property. There never was any real intention to build the road. The notes never had any value, and hence never was any real intention to build the road. The notes never had any value, and hence never was any evidence that the little value which the Jewett trust-deed gave to the railroad bonds depreciated the value of the Peck notes between the dates mentioned. The second contingency upon which the sale could have been made had not occurred. The Pecks had no title under such sale, the bonds are in their possession as collaterals, and they have the right to enforce payment through a court of equity. The Pecks loaned their money, secured by 100 bonds, with the understanding that, in case of sale, they were to be first paid. There was general consent to this agreement. If, by reason of prior liens and incumbrances, this provision cannot be fully enforced, it should be enforced as against all parties to this suit who have not such lien. There will, therefore, be a forcelosure under the Jewett trust-deed at the suit of the Pecks, and there will be a reference to the Master to compute the amount due them on the original notes to which the first 100 bonds are collateral; and upon a sale to be made, subject to prior liens as hereafter defined, the indebtedness on these notes will be paid, if the proceeds of the 100 bonds shall be sufficient for such payment. The Pecks should be subrogated to the rights of the Prescotts to the extent of their payment, and Gage is in the same position.

The Badger bill was filed to forcelose a claim to the second 100 of the 200 preferred bonds in case of sale or forcelosure in the Jewett trust-deed. The decision of the Court was that the claims represented, being those of the Third National Bank, Badger was filed by Judge Samuel B. Gookins and E. S.

Newton in the Peck suit, and the decision is:
"The foreclosure of that deed of property named therein for the payment of the fourteen bonds; the sale to be made upon the principles which govern courts of equity in the marshaling of securities, and the claims of the Pecks upon so much of the property subject to the Greenebaum trust-deed as is conveyed by the Jewett deed to be postponed to the claim of the complainant in the cross-bill to the extent represented by said fourteen bonds.

the cross-bill to the extent represented by said fourteen bonds.

The Hukill cross-bill was filed by E. M. Hukill, H. C. Davis, C. A. Cooper, and N. S. McFetridge against the Fecks to secure the payment of twenty-five $1,000 bonds. The decision is as follows: "They are entitled to be placed in the same condition that they were before the execution of the Page-Kimbark releases, and the property covered by these trust-deeds will be subjected to foreclosure in the inverse order of its alienation, if any portion of it has been suld. A reference will be had to the Master to ascertain the amount due, etc."

A reference will be had to the Master to ascertain the amount due, etc."

This bill, Page vs. Stevens, was brought by Page and Kimball against Stevens. The decision was that, as the trust-deed had failed, the property should be discharged of the trust, and be finble to the claim of such creditors of Riverside as may have the next lien. The Judge added that he was at present disposed to dismiss the bill, but would not do so until he should hear further from such parties as might desire to be heard.

The cross-bill of Hukill, filed against Page and Kimbark, and asking for a personal decree against them on account of an alleged violation of their duties as trustees in the Page-Kimbark trust-deeds, was dismissed for want of equity.

The cross-bill of Joshua Sanders, who comes before the Court as an imposent purchaser of David A. Gage filed one of the original bills against the Riverside Improvement Company, and the decision of the Court is, that his bonds, which come within the first 1,000 issued, are secured by the Jewett trust-deed only, and he has no right to resort to the Greenebaum trust-deed. In regard to his indebtedness against Riverside, if he has any beyond his portion of 1,000 bonds, his claims rest upon the same basis as those of the bona fide creditors, who have not been allotted any of the first series of bonds. His case will also have to be referred to the Master for the purpose of ascertaining the extent of his claims.

THE CHIT OF CHICAGO

also filed a cross-bill in the Peck suit, setting up the fact that Gage, being indebted to the city in the sum of over $500,000, and being unable to meet the same, transferred to George Laylor, Trustee, 350 bonds of the railroad company, secured by the Jewett trust-deed, and that Gage in July, 1874, to secure his indebtedness to the city, obtained from the Chicago & Great Western Railroad Land Company the execution of five deeds conveying

Chicago & Great Western Railroad Land Company the execution of five deeds conveying lands at Riverside to Taylor. The bill prays that Gage may be compelled to protect the city and that the city may be subrogated to the rights of Gage, if he should be held to have rights in lien of the bonds transferred as above mentioned. The evidence discloses the said transfer of the bonds, and the prayer of the complainant will be granted, and the city will be held to be the owner of Gage's interests to the extent and according to the terms of the assignment from Gage to Tay-Gage's interests to the extent and according to the terms of the assignment from Gage to Taywell as the other creditors who had accepted securities under it.

The cross-bill of H. H. Hurbart, setting up a claim to thirty-five lots in Riverside, was dismissed for want of equity.

C. M. Smith filed a cross-bill claiming that, by the surrender of bonds under the trust-deed, he is entitled to a decree for the specific lots, and a reference will be made to the Master to ascertain what bonds were secured and what property so demanded. The decision states that there is no valid objection to Seelye's title as Trustee under his several deeds offered in evidence, nor to any of the titles of Carrol Gates. The Court holds the same opinion with regard to the claim of G. C. Smith to Lot 834, Block 10, Third Division; to that of W. Marks and F. S. Osborne to the property introduced in evidence.

S. Osborne to the property introduced in evidence.

C. A. Gregory set up a claim of protection for sixty-three of Jewett's bonds purchased under a misunderstanding. The Court held that his bond should be protected by the foreclosure of Jewett's trust-deed, but that he has no superior lien over the bondholders.

The Court held that W. H. Parks' lots, held by Parks as Trustee for Sutton, are not subject to the Jewett trust-deed, and the croas-bill was referred to the Master to ascertain the total involved.

The Court held Vorhies' title to the lots claimed by him as good, except so far as affected by the claims of Gookins et al. under the Greenebaum and Page-Kumburk trust-deeds. The Woodward claims were taken out of the Jewett foreclosure, Henning's suits were dismissed, and the Reynolds lots were held subject to Gookins' claims.

IN CONCLUSION,
the Court says:

missed, and the Reynolds lots were held subject to Gookins' claims.

In Conclusion,

the Court says:

There are a number of other small claims set up by other defendants which I shall not particularly refer to for the reason that they are included within, sed controlled by, the principles which have been applied to the decision of one or more of the cases already passed upon. By the application of those principles to the facts admitted or undisputed in reference to these claims, the decrees in each case can be readily adjusted.

It is unnecessary, and would have been impracticable, to state at any length the evidence applicable to the above-decided cases. Life is too short to allow any Chancelior either to detail minutely the evidence, or to sketch within the limits of an opinion the decrees to be entered in these several cases. Even the views which are herein expressed will probably have to be subjected to some modifications when the decrees shall come to be settled.

Amid all this infinity of conflicting claims, those claimsants who have in good faith made advances of money and property which has gone into the common fund, and who have subtracted nothing from that fund for their own personal benefit, for which they have not paid an adequate consideration, should be protected as to their honest claims screen in so far as they have voluntarily suffered their claims to be postponed to those of others. Where all are losers, they should lose most who do not show that they have made any bona fida advances to the common fund, or who, having made such, have received from that fund far more than they have exert out: fulled to it. Above all, so one should be permitted to be the gainer through any fraud practiced by him or by any other person acting on his behalf. If the original stockholders of the Riverside Improvement Company and the Riverside Water and Gas Works Company ever advanced more than $30,000 in cash for its property. I do not think it is anywhere shown in this record. And yet they divided among themselves, to meet it. In this most disastrous present condition of Riverside and the who originated and carried on so rainous a scheme of financiering ourht not, if they are now creditors of Riverside, to stand in the same condition as those creditors who, not being officers in any of its many corporations, or in any way familiar with the management of its business, paid their money or sold property, and took its obligations, paying the full value thereof. From the first starting of Riverside, Duncomb appears to have been a large stockholder and inlimately connected with its facal affairs. He was not only the friend of Childa, but his efficient coadjutor in all Riverside matters. Badger was in much the same condition as Duncomb, and for his discounts of Riverside paper received, according to the uncontradicted evidence of Childs, enormous sums for naury. Neither of these men, in the absence of any fraud, ought to stand precisely in the condition of creditors who, in ignorance of the financial condition of Riverside, and discountered with the management of its burstness, have bought its securities in the market at par, and have done nothing to prejudice their claims. Though Childs and Rurray seem to have ignored their own particular friends, to try, by word and deed, and by their evidence an court to protect the interests which they have seemed to regard as especially committed to them.

The connection of Childs with the claims of Badger and Ducomb, and his conduct in reference to those claims.

CANNOT BE SATISFACTORILY EXPLAINED upon the hypothesis that he designed to act with entire fairness. If Riverside had been exclusively his property, free from incumbrance, he might have given away its property and scattered its obligations recklessly among his favorites, and his conduct, though passing strange, might still be charitably stiributed to his romantic generosity in his own imagination. He was in resilty only a Truster for others, and had no right to dispose of its securities without receiving an adequate consideration, part at least, though often a ciaim has been subordinated to other claims.

Further reflection, since the writing of the former part of this opinion, has not led me to change my view of the Sanders title and claim.

If substantial justice has been arrived at in the settlement of the equifies of the various Hitgants, without the overthrow of legal principles, it is all that in this complicated litigation I have ever conceived of as possible.

THE MODERN MINISTER. How He Gets in the Pulpit and His Pay

New York Sun.

The average annual salary of the American lergyman is 275 paper dollars. And yet he is From the princely revenue of a Cardinal to the wretched pittance of a Presbyterian "Helper" the distance is great, although in point of time, occupation, constancy, and devotion the highest and the lowest occupy a common level. In view of the fact that the churches of America cannot accommodate one-half of the population, and of the other fact that, as a rule, not more than two-thirds of the accommoda-tions provided are required or availed of, it world to raise a question as to the actual value of the average clergyman to mankind. There is a good deal that might be said with truth on oth sides, but instead of that I shall present. rather, a few facts of interest, from which thers may draw texts for controversy. The 40,000,000 of people in the United States support annually 50,000 clergymen, at an ex-use of $13,750,000. Fifty thousand men, who are recognized and respectfully saluted as religious teachers." Who are they? Are they selected for their position by reason of obvious itness? Do they elect the profession of their own volition? Are they safe and worthy of their trust? Are they happy in their business? Are they generally sincere, bearing out in their private lives the doctrines taught from the pulpit? In the first place, it is a fact that men are

Is not frequent.

The father's occupation, and its cognate branches, have much to do with ahe drift which ninety-nine times in a hundred floats our young men into trade or profession. If a man be a clergyman, with—as is generally the case—a large family, the sons become ministers and the daughters marry ministers. In ordinary business lite 30 per cent fail, 3 per cent succeed, and 3 per cent rise to pronounced and notable prosperity. So it is sin the pulpit. The rast majority of clergymen fail as preachers, fail as teachers, fail as convincers, and are saved from thorough uselessness solely by reason of their quality as nurses, domesticians, and pastors.

It's a nistake to say that fluency of speech, the gift of gab, induces young men to become ministers. The average preacher is not fluent of speech. Good speakers are the exceptions. Written sermons prosily delivered are the rule, and if the success of the great Christian Church depended on the eloquence and rhetorical finish of the clergy, Heaven help the Church.

As from a West Point class may come one Sherman, so from a theological class may come one Tyng, one Storrs, one Hall, one Adams; but as all the West Foints in the world could never have given Sherman his military genius, so would it be fardeal to claim that any teacher of theology created the power which in the clergymen named gives them success and influence, and puts thousands of mighty dollars in their well-lined wallets.

There is a wide difference between a popular preacher and a good pastor. Popular preachers are impulsive, enthusiastic, and attentive to the calls of the parish. They care for the poor visit the sick, counsel with the afflicted, and literally minister to the households of their flocks; but such men are never heard of, never known, never reported. They live humbly, and dile unnoticed—also poor.

I find after careful survey of the field, open to us all, that the majority of living clergymen become such either because their fathers were ministers, or by the were the present claymen texts for bombardment, and acquiring the knack of controversy.

Does he practice!

Oh, yes; but not as before. He isn't going so much on the docks or among the poor as he was. Where then! Well, the Faculty receive a letter from Deacon So-and-So at Podunk asking a supply, and promising all along from $5 and expenses to $15 and expenses for the Sanday services of the youthful evangelist. Being selected, the young man goes. He is warmly welcomed. On Sunday he makes his maiden effort. Space is not permitted me in which to describe his triumph, and it will perhaps suffice if I simply report his successful annihilation of all unorthodox tenets, and his admirable diagnosis of the Divine plan reaching from exercity.

orthodox tenets, and his admirable diagnosis of the Divine plan reaching from eternity to eternity.

A series of expeditions in nowise diminish the young man's self-conceit, and when in the fullness of time he receives his diploma, he boldly marches out upon the world and waits his call. A true man would go to work, but a well-drilled theolog waits for his call. Here it is that friends step in to secure a good salary, and perhaps spoil a good man. Maffit's father never obtained for him an audience. Elder Knapp never asked a dry-goods prince to say a good word for him. Finney, the revivalist, cut his own swath. Jonathan Edwards was never boosted a step forward by influence. Dr. Spencer H. Cone great-grandfather of Kate Claxton, the Louise of the "Two Orphans," did his own fighting. Lyman Beecher was indebted to no man for his platform.

But there are hundreds of hundrum preachers to-day who have pulpits because they have family influence. Would Morgan Dix have become Rector of Trinity Farish, with all which that name implies, if his father had been John A. Dusenberry instead of John A. Dix! And, on the other hand, would not the zealous push of young Tyng have won him position, even if he had not been a son of the Rector of St. George's! Some of the Clarkes are light, others are dull, but neither their wit nor the lack of it made them clergymen; it was in the family. The same is true of the Potters, both of New York and Penusylvania. Part of the family have brains, they all have influence, and those who are mentally deficient are just as well fixed as those who are justly leaders in their denomination.

fixed as those who are justly leaders in their de-nomination.

Theodore Parker threw off the shackles of the church, hired the Music Hall, and preached. He attributed his wonderful success to the fact that he had something to say, and said it. Jonathan Edwards thought out a system and taught it. Lyman Beecher accepted the faith of his fath-ers, and waged war on all who failed to see it in the same light. Dr. Taylor was more select in his followers, but combated with equal energy. All these men were very poor. the same light. Dr. Taylor was more select in his followers, but combated with equal energy. All these men were very poor.

The present generation of ministers believe in fat livings. As the bright-eyed Bartlett (formerly of Brooklyn, now of Chicago) said, when asked if he would go to San Francisdo: "I will, if the call is loud enough." Some of the salaries paid to-day are phenomenal in comparison with the locuste and wild honey of the prophet who cried in the wilderness. How Matthew, Mark, Luke, and John would have stared at $10,000 a year! How that sturdy man, Paul, would have opened his eyes, if the men of Ephesus, or even the saints of Thessalonia, had suggested $20,000 as his year's compensation! Yet, in our cities, young men of God regard these quids pro quo with a tender eye. The sums annually paid to Dix, Tyug, Morgan, Potter, Storrs, Thompson, Taylor, Chapin, Duryea, and others are enormous, and, as a rule, are easily, very easily, carned. Chapin and Beecher, as lecturers, could earn much more than they are now paid, but the vast majority of city preachers ought to fall on their kness and thank the Lord for influential relatives and friends in position.

Methodists, Baptists, and Presbyterians are the worst paid in money. Episcopalians and Congregationalists next. The Catholists take what they need: the rest goes to the Church. But the Church officer does not, on the average, find preaching profitable. The Western settlements are still missionary ground, and a missionary, even if he be a bigot and a fanatic, is entitled to the respect the world always awards an earnest, honest man.

There are half-a-dozen newspaper writers in this city alone who can make a fair living by writing sermons for clergymen to read. There

There are half-a-dozen newspaper writers in this city alone who can make a fair living by writing sermons for clergymen to read. There are curled darlings in the pulpit as well as on the stage. There are hypocrites and scalawage in that trade as in all others. There are thousands of earnest preachers whose sole qualification is their earnestness. Example, and habit, and superstition force many a man to church, and nothing but self-control and good breeding keep him there till the services close.

The life of a country elergyman presents a charm for our starched student of theology. If you think I am in error, look at them. Their type and cut are unmistakable. Perfumed locks, stiff cravat, suit of black, chain of har, with a tiny, pendant cross, and general order of proud meekness, stamp them one and all. How the early Apostles would laugh if they could take a peep at these young gentlemen out for an airing!

early Apostles would laugh it they count take a peep at these young gentlemen out for an airing!

Education helps the man, but the man must be born in the student before he can teach to any advantage. I have heard theological students bombard the Church of Rome; scarify Pontius Pilate; fulminate against "error"; and annihilate the devil and his angels. I have seen them in most sentimental guise assault sin, and picture the sad condition of Adam and Eve after they were found out. I have known them with entire confidence to take hold of the Divine decrees, analyze them, dissect them, and In the first place, it is a fact that men are rarely made ministers because as children or last they manifest any special calling of fluess for the profession. A trade is a trade, all the world over. If a merchant, prosperous in life, has three sons, one of whom cares nothing for books, white the others are studious or average well at school, he is apt to take the one into his store or office and send the others to college. Whatever is the father's ineed affairs, as a rule, finds in that son a devotee. The others go ton-cliege of the college of the colleg

A SMILE.

"A smile is a trife, "—aye, truly indeed, — But a mission most blessed it hath: To dissipate sorrow, to brighten the home, And enliven the dreariest path. Nature sets the example, and smiles in her flowers, That peep from their sprinkling of dew; In a rainbow that shines, after heaviest showers, From a sky that is smilingly-blue.

How reluctant is man her disciple to be;
The slightest of cares can annoy,
And then he will wonder and dismally frown
At others that smile in their joy. Not a smile that is chronic,—not that do I mean That lingers forever and aye; Por is not the sunshine more welcome by far After darkness has reigned in the sky?

But one that is cheerful, and honest, and kind, That is brightened by charity's glow,— That loosens the ice by indifference made, So the waters of kindness may flow. There's plenty of sorrow, and trouble, and care, We cannot remove from the earth: But still, if "a cup of cold water is blessed," May not e'en a smile be of worth?

"Awful Gardiner" was once a well-known puglist and sporting character in New York." On one occasion he went to Newark with a "select party" to give a sparring exhibition. The negro who had charge of the hall where the show was to take place was of gigantic stature, and one of the party wagered a bottle of wine that "Awful Gardiner" could not knock the negro down with his fist. They all waited in the hall for the coming of the sable janitor with lights. He approached with a candle shaded in his hands, and, as he came within arm's reach, the "Awful" measured him, and struck square from the shoulder. The negro hardly winked. He simply turned his head round toward the puglist and said, "Gemmen, please be a little car'ful ob yer elbows." Didn't Like That Elbowing.

THE COURT-HOUSE.

Ald. Ballard's Application for an Injunction Against the County Board.

To Restrain the Ring from Participating in the Contract Stealings

Argued Before Judge Farwell Yesterday---Great Array of Legal Talent.

John Rountree and the Ring Determined Never to Let Go, If Possible.

The Court Takes the Question Under Advisement.

The arguments in the matter of the applica-tion for the injunction to restrain the Board of County Commissioners from erecting the Court-House were resumed before Judge Farwell yes terday morning. The proceedings were technical, and consequently rather dry, and not over ten or fifteen people felt enough interest in the talk to sit it through.

Upon the opening of the court,
Mr. Rountree, on behalf of the Board, asked eave to file a supplementary answer to the amended bill.

Mr. Woodbridge, for the complainant (Ballard), said the answer would probably present new points for the consideration of the Court.

He had not been able to make preparations to

There was nothing in the answer but what was before the Court the other time, except the fact of a tax-levy for the purpose of the Court-House, and stating the amount in the treasury. Counsel could not be taken by surprise very much!

Mr. Woodbridge rejoined that he was taken by surprise, because he understood that the $100,000 of fire boads were not to be disposed of until/the further hearing of the case.

Mr. Rountpee—No such arrangement was made.

Mr. Rountse—No such arrangement was made.

Mr. Woodbridge—They have anticipated your Honor's decision by selling them. Appropriations have been made for the work, and they require some examination.

The Court remarked that he could not judge as to whether it was necessary to take further time until he saw what was in the papers. He would allow the answer and anything else to be read, and if he saw from the facts it was necessary to give further time he would do it.

Mr. Woodbridge had no objection to the answer being read with that understanding. Mr. Rountree then read

It set forth that the only moneys appropriated by the Board of County Commissioners for any purpose whatever, and which were not transferable by the Board for other purposes, were the menery appropriated to pay interest on the bonded indebtedness incurred both before and since the adoption of the new Constitution, and to provide for a sinking fund for the bonded indebtedness incurred both before and since the adoption of the new Constitution, and to provide for a sinking fund for the bonded indebtedness incurred since the adoption of the new Constitution; that the entire amount appropriated for such purpose did not exceed the sum of $255,000; that the entire balance of moneys raised by taxation can be used by the Board in any way it sees fit; that the estimated cost of the Court-House will not exceed the sum of $255,000; that the entire balance of moneys raised by taxation can be used by the Board in any way it sees fit; that the estimated cost of the Court-House will not exceed the sum of $255,000; that the entire balance of the court-House will not exceed the sum of $255,000; that the entire balance of the court-House will not exceed $1,500,000, and that it was not true, as alleged in complainant's bill, that the interest of the court of the court-House will not exceed the court-House will not exceed the court of the court-House will not exceed the sum of $255,000, and that the was not true, as alleged in complainant's bill, that the interest of the court-Note will not exceed the court-House will not exceed the court-House will not exceed the court-House will not exceed the sum of $255,000, and that the was not true, as alleged in complainant by the court in determining the cash resources above 75 cents for every $100 of valuation of taxation and the issue of bonds to the vote of the property. The defendant denied that there was no law under which the Board could be adopted to the court-House the contract was entered into, and that the city and county had agreed upon a plan, but neither admitted nor denied (leaving the complainant to his proof thereof) that the proposed award of the contract to William McNell & Son to construct the county's portion of the building of limestone was opposed to the wishes of the Common Council. The defendant had urged the city to prepare for and progress with the work, and directed the proper Committee to hold frequent conferences with delegations from the Council with reference thereto, and had submitted various propositions to the city delegations, but all overtures upon the part of the defendant, and all attempts made to induce the city to proceed, had totally and entirely failed. That the city had at no time since the making of the contract been in a financial condition to warrant its entering upon the performance of the contract upon its part; that it was not in a financial condition to do so now, and that they had no prospect of it within a reasonable time. That, in fact, it had been proposed to the defendant to proceed and erect the entire building upon some arrangement on agreement to be made with the city, and it might be said that negotiations to that effect were still pending. The defendant, by reason of the refusal, after repeated demands, considered itself entirely released from its promises or obligations under the contract, and desired to proceed with the erection of the Court-House to meet the public interests. The defendant further said that the structure, when completed, would be in fact two buildings, and that the building one-half will. NOT INTERFERE with the design, and not increase the expense "in a very large sum of money," since it would be perfectly feasible to connect the two buildings without interfering with the harmony and safety. The only indebtedness of the county, except the bonded indebtedness, was a temporary loan of $150,000, which, in case of necessity, it believes could be indefinifely extended at low rate of interest. The bonded in

There stood to the credit of the sinking fund for the indebtedness accruing since the adoption of the new constitution, the sum of $48,909.07, and to the credit of the interest fund on new indebtedness, $41,578,99, and the credit of the interest fund on new indebtedness, $41,578,99, and the credit of the interest on old indebtedness, $119,983.50. The money standing to the credit of said everal funds had, in fact, been dimutable by the overdraft and the interest fund, or the greater part of it was required to pay the interest on the indebtedness maturing on Nov. 1, 1876. On the same date (Oct, 12, '76) there stood to the credit of the public building fund only $78.93. At the same date a negotiation was pending for the sale of $100,000 of "fire bonds"; but whether or not the sale had been completed and the same delivered, complainant could not state, but he insisted that the County Board had no suthority to issue said bonds under any existing law, and that the bonds, if issued, were absolutely void. At the same date there were orders outstanding against the public building fund amounting to $19,715.99, and complainant was informed and believed that, in addition, there were other large claims upon said fund which remained unsatisfied. The Board, fraudulently intending to evade the provision of the Countitution prohibiting them from incurring indebtedness without submitting the question to the vote of the people, and to proceed with the building of the Court-House in violation of law, and to impose upon the Court with a show of cash resources, when, in fact, the county was destitute of such resources, had attempted to make various appropriations for the work, said appropriations nominally aggregating $1,325,505.92, but an analysis thereof showed that they were all either illegal or fletitious. The first item (delinquent taxes) had been previously appropriated, and the Board had no right to devote the proceeds thereof or any part to the purpose of buildings a Court-H sum of $4.00,000 should have been allowed. In 1872, $100,000 was allowed for this purpose, and $75,000 for contingent expenses; in 1873, $60,000 for contingencies and $315,000 for abatements; in 1874, $30,000 for contingent expenses and $284,200 for errors and abatements; in 1875, $75,000 for contingencies and $315,775 for errors and abatements. Notwithstanding the large percentages to cover errors, abatement, and contingent fund, the said levies of the said several years failed to realize the amount of the remaining appropriations, and during the last two years the Treasury closed with a deficit, both it matter of the sinking fund and of the floating debt. The tax-sale for the year last named was now in progress and was nearly completed, and all the collections realized from said tax-sale and from a further sum of $188,181.40 for taxes of previous years which had been forfeited to the State amounted to the sum of $1,124,504.83, showing a defact of about $600,000. The omission of said items from the estimates of the current year was fraudulent, and said cetimates were made to convey to the Court a false impression, and to enable said County Board to involve the courty in debt without authority of law. It permitted to proceed with the Court-House upon the basis of said tax-levy, the collections of the current year would fall far short of the estimate, as to leave a probable defact of about the sum appropriated for the Court-House. The State Board of Equalization had not yet fully completed its work of equalizing and assessing taxes in the county, and their work had not been reported to the County Clerk, and completed its work of equalizing and assessing taxes in the county, and their work had not been reported to the County Clerk, and completed its work of equalizing and assessing taxes in the county and their work had not been reported to the County Clerk, and completed its work of equalizing and assessing taxes in the county of the said the $37,000 was back in the fund, having been drawn out only for a day or

The Court supposed the question was, whether, upon the statements made, the Commissioners should be allowed to go forward and make the contract—if there was any legal objection to the financial exhibit.

the contract—if there was any legal objection to the financial exhibit.

Mr. Herrick, for complainant, opened the argument. He said it was proposed, as appeared from the amended answer, to incur an ultimate liability of $850,000, and the question was, whether the Board, under the facts disclosed, could incur an obligation of that extent. He contended that it could not—that it would be a violation of the Constitution to do so. The Board was about to enter into an obligation, which would create an indebtedness within the meaning of the Constitution. Had they provided sufficient and appropriate means for the payment of the debt! The provision of the Constitution on this point was explicit. They must provide for its payment by a direct annual tax. They had not done so. A fund appropriated for current expenses was sacred. It could not be diverted by resolution passed after the money had been appropriated for specific purposes. He did not believe the Board had the right to sell the Reform-School propersy—that they intended to dispose of it. To sacrifice it now would be an abuse of authority to accomplish their end. He then attacked the tax-levy of 1876, saying, under the law, the purposes to be for the work contracted for.

Ju we Lawrence inquired if he contended that the Board should have levied $850,000, although one-half of it was to be expended year after next.

Mr. Herrick replied that the Board, if it chose, might provide for the payment of the entire sum out of the levy for this year.

in reply, said under the Constitution and the law, as he understood them, the whole subject matter of the element of fraud) was within the discretion and jud ment of the County Board in the county Board.

to pay the entire sum contracted for. He then discussed the question as to whether the fadebtedness was such an indebtedness as was contemplated by the Constitution, claiming that it was within the prohibition of the Constitution. There was no provision in the law authorising the Board to provide for any tax except for the current year. The only thing it could do with reference to the revenue of its own notion was to revise the assessment and then make what was called an appropriation bill, setting forth how much should be levied for taxes, and the particular objects of taxation. That was the end of its duty, and the end of its power. An annual tax must be provided in some way before the indebtedness could be incurred, provided the indebtedness could be incurred, provided the indebtedness was not made by a tax of a particular year. It seemed to him that it was very plain that no power was conferred by any legislation upon the Board to levy any such annual tax. They extainly had not levied it, and consequently were not permitted to incur the indebtedness. As to issuing bonds, he contended that the latest expression of the Legislature was that the people should pass upon it, and it seemed to him the Court would so hold. He then considered the condition of the Court-House without issuing bonds or levying a tax,—that there was nothing in it which could be put to this purpose, since the sinking fund would have to be filled and the floating indebtedness paid first. It had been demonstrated to his Honor that next year, if the appropriation proceeded, the Treasury would close with a deficit just about equal to the appropriation ($425,000), and it was in evidence that the Commissioners knew it. They could not proceed; because they had not made the sporopriation in such a lawful shape as the law would give the matter his immediate attention, and notify the attorneys when he was prepared to deliver is decision.

Delightful days, when all the hazy air
Is filled with perfume from the blood-red vines,
Climbing along the roadside's winding way,
Hiding the fences' rough and rugged lines.

The hills afar take on a dreamy look;
The valleys intervening, and the plains
Are spread by lavieh Nature—s fair, open book;
We read the waried pages, oft with hitter pair Perchance some other Autumn, when we gazed On mountain, meadow, and the clinging vine, By Love's delusions all our sight was dazed, And we had deeply drank of Passion's wine.

If so, a deeper beauty shaded field and grove: The pines took on a deeper added hue; The hazy skies were fairer; happy did we rove Where Nature's paintings widened to our view

The softened murmur of the babbling brook Seemed to us music of the rarest tone; All sounds of Nature added music took: Alas! this Autumn we are wiser grown;

For we have wakened from delusive dreams, And Love has—wounded—perished in our sight, And woodland, mountain, and the marmaring streams, Not by Love's lustre seen, but Grief's dark night.

All sounds are painful to our saddened ear; The tasseled pines a sombre music give; The blood-stained leaf, in falling, seems a seer Predicting swift decay for all who hope or live And Nature's paintings, touched with pencil rare,
To gloomy vision all too sombre seem;
And days to others seeming the most fair
Are but as mockery to our perished dream.

Remembering only how we once could see
The vivid landscape brightening all the time,
How faded all its beauties seem to be,
From amber foliage unto blood-red vine.

From amber foliage unto blood-red vine.

Time's healing lotion will be well applied,
Our pain will vanish as the years roll round;
But sadly still we view the Antumn-tide
When Lethe's waters we have—searching—found.

A few months ago one of the msters of a country grammar-school died. The school building was closed on the day of the funeral. Johnny Smith passed the time in playing by a pond near his house. A few days since his mother sent him to school as usual, but Johnny preferred playing by the pond, where he met his father, who inquired why he was not at school. Johnny said there was no school, and, when pressed for a reason, replied triumphantly,
"That man is dead again!"

Judge WILLIAMS yesterday gave his decis ion in the case of the Riverside land suits, which were a tangled mass of real estate, trust deeds, bonds, gas-works, water-works, and railroads. The only point of general interest was the subrogation of the city in the interest of David A. Gage in the Riverside property under what is known as the "JEWETT trust deed."

The Times of yesterday has some unjust and utterly uncalled-for remarks concerning C. L. Easton, one of the Republican candidates for the Illinois House of Representa-tives from the First District. Mr. Easton is a lawyer of more than average ability, is ed of general culture, and will make a good Representative. The writer in the Times could not have known the gentleman, and must have gotten his information at second-hand from some prejudiced person.

Ex-Attorney-General WILLIAMS, who has just returned to Washington from a thorough anyass of the State of Oregon, expressed the opinion that that State is as sure for licans in November as the State of Maine. The entire Republican element in Oregon is working in complete harmony, and, from the fact that the Democrats have heretofore only succeeded because of a lack of cohesion in the Republican ranks, it would seem that Mr. WILLIAMS' predictions ere well founded.

The names of the canvassers also are such as to insure accuracy and reliability.

No definite conclusion has been reached by the European Powers relative to the proposed armistice. and made clear what the Reform De mean by reform. The figures compiled from the official record show it. The total official staff allowed the Speaker by the Repub lican House consisted of a single officer, the Speaker's Secretary. The Democratic Reform House came into power and proceeded to retrench, after the Reform Democratic style, by doubling the Speaker's staff, for the purpose of creating the office of Special Messenger for the Speaker. The Sergeant-at-Arms of the Republican House ran his office with the aid of two subordinates. The Reform Democratic House retrehehed by creating the office of Paying-Teller, making the number three. The Doorkeeper of the Republican House discharged his duties satisfactorily with the assistance of 23 sub-ordinates, all told. The Democratic House was allowed 10 subordinates in his office. The Democratic House retrenched by increasing the number of employes in the Postmaster's office to 16. The Republican ttee clerks. The Reform House reched by adding 11 to the number of mittee clerks. To sum up, the Reform cratic House retrenched by increasing the number of House employes from 89 to 115. The figures indicate precisely wherein the retrenchment consisted. If Gov. Tilden is not a rapid writer, the renarkable document printed this morning, like his ustly-admired letter of acceptance, proves him a comprehensive one. The address of the National Democratic Committee may be accepted as in great part Mr. Tilden's handlwork. It has all the dacanlayan stateliness of diction with the brilliant lirectness of Burke. It is a significant document n tone as well as in composition. If the result of he election had not gone far beyond Gov, Tilden's anticipations he would never have permitted an address so positive se this to go out from his committee.—Chicago Times.

If he had not been heated and his head

whirling from the effects of the stimulants. Sam TILDEN would never have permitted his man Hewirr to issue that ebloviating pronunciamento, which is written in regular Mexican style. Hewirr himself must have been partly intoxicated when he penned it, and when he sobers off he will be ashamed of the ridiculous boasting in which he has indulged. The able editor of the Times declares that the maudlin pronuncian has all the Macaulayan stateliness of dietion, with the brilliant directness of BURKE"! It is clear that he, too, tarried too long over his bottle, and had reached the hiccough rame of mind when he made so prepo comparison. Indeed, it is nearly that he has never read a chapter of BURKE's writings in his life, else he would never, even when intoxicated, those eloquent writings to the drunken drivel issued in Hewirr's name, but which the able editor ascribes to the "Reformer" himself. It is an insult to the memory of the great essayist to compare the partisan election ing slush of Hewirr to the "stately diction of MACAULAY." The able editor of the Times speaks of "TILDEN's justly-admired letter of acceptance,"-a letter which neither that able editor nor any of his subscribers ever understood the meaning of. Perhaps it is for that reason the able editor 'admires" it. Col. INGERSOLL has the reputation of comprehending the meaning of abstruse documents as well as most men. He spent some time studying that "admired letter of acceptance" to find out what it meant, and this is all that he has been able to make of it, as set forth in his New York

There is a gentleman by the name of Tuben who call it a letter of acceptance. Now, suppose I read this letter, and, after having read it, got at the atmosphere, en rapport,—you know what I mean,—that I was full of it, and that I wrote in the same vein. Suppose I should, in the most solemn and impressive manner, tell you that the fluctuations caused in the vital stability of shifting financial operations, not to say speculations of the wildest character, cannot be rendered instantly accountable to a true financial theory. instantly accountable to a true financial theory, based upon the great law that the superfluous is not a necessity, except in vague thoughts of persons unacquainted with the exigencies of the hour, and annot, in the absence of a central reservoir of oin with a human intelligence at the head, hasten by any system of convertible bonds the expecta-tion of public distrust; no matter how wisely planned and discreetly pursued, failure is assured,

This is a perfect photograph of the mired letter of acceptance. Perhaps the able editor comprehends the true inwardness of it, but it is quite certain no one else doesincluding TILDEN himself.

THE COUNTY COMMISSIONERS. The City of Chicago, and the county of which it is a part, is a large political community. The taxes levied and expended for local purposes here are greater than those levied for the support of the Government of the State of Illinois. They are greater than are levied and expended for the Government of any one of the States of the Union except two. The combined public debt of the several parts of this community is greater than that of any one of a majority of the North ern States. In point of population and in the amount of taxable property, it outranks many of the States. The power to tax and the power to expend and to create debt i lodged in two municipal Boards, the City Council and the County Commissioners. At the election a few weeks hence one-third of this Board of County Commissioners is to be elected. The retiring members of this Board are Messrs, Busse, Burdick, Herring, Lox. ERGAN, and JOHNSON. No one of these members has been nominated for re-election. though Messrs. Busse and Burdick have stood high in popular estimation, and Messrs. LONEBGAN and HERTING are men of fair reputation, and have been in no way personally implicated in the questionable transaction of the Board. All the candidates, therefore. for this Board are new men for that offi The opposing candidates are as follows:

(One vacancy.) decided preference for the Republicans; nevertheless, the question will suggest itself, in the light that the most of these men sought the nominations, What they desired the office for? The compensation, at the greatest stretch of the law, cannot be made to exceed $1,400 a year, and then only by giving their whole time on every business day of the year. Is the office sought for the compensation? If so, then the seeking of the office for the compensation indicates that the men have no occupation or business that the office is sought for its profits. If form or a correction of abuses is a We may, however, do injustice to eut neglect of their own duties, to give 280 days' time to the public without other pecuniary reward than the paltry sum of $5 per day. The whole Board consists of fifteen members, and eight members constitute a ruling majority. The public are asked to elect five from the persons named on these two lists. The present Board has been considered as uled by a majority which is essentially rupt, and which has sought the office for the oney that is in it. How are the public to elect from these ten men? Will the selection improve the Board, or will it tend to onsenting to serve in the Board, and will be BURDICK, who ought to have been, but was Busse, who lives in the country, has consented to be a candidate, and we trust will be re-elected. He has served ably, faithfully, and to the great protection of public. In selecting members for this Board no party considerations should induce the public to vote for a man who ought not to be elected, nor vote against any one who is known to be competent, and who seeks the office for an honest purpose.

This Board has the power to create a debt of several millions of dollars, and to spend the money at their exclusive discretic It has the power of taxation any purpose which the majority may select. The expenditure of several for a new Court-House is now in progress, and the history of the stone contract nishes indications of what dishonest men may do and will do when they have the power Here there are five officers to be elected clothed with absolute discretion to levy taxes, and borrow money and expend the proceeds. Each one of these offices is more mportant to the public than Sheriff, or Reorder, or Secretary of State, or Treasure and yet for these offices the two parties have ninated the persons named in the two lists we have given. The Democratic party is grossly criminal that, preaching reform, it did not nominate even one suitable person for Commissioner It would have won some respect for its professions of reform had it nominated five persons for Commissioners who were known to the public as competent and experienced men of integrity and character. It not only failed to do so, but made such nominati that, if successful, will hand that Board over to the corruptionists beyond all deliverance or rescue for years. It is to be regretted that the Republican party did not, while selecting Mr. NEWCOMB, strengthen their noming tions by making the whole ticket equally acceptable and equally proper to be elected protect the large public interests at stake.

THE REFORM CANVASS. TILDEN and Reform is the outcry that is borne upon the breeze in this breezy campaign. In his letter of acceptance and in his pronunciamento over the Indiana election, Mr. Traden himself shouts it londest of all. JOHN MORRISSEY, with a hand full of trump cards, pauses in the game to take up the cry for reform. From Tammany Hall JOHN KELLY re-echoes it. WADE HAMPTON passes it along in South Carolina. In Georgis BEN HILL sounds it, and "Gen." Bur-LER, of Hamburg massacre, repeats it down there, while every Confederate, and party hack, and camp-follower, and machine politician educated in that school of which the cardinal doctrine is, "To the victors belong the spoils," swells the chorus for reform. What do they mean by it? When did Mr. TILDEN, OF FERNANDO WOOD, OF Mr. HEN-Hall, or the New York World, or the Cincinnati Enquirer have any other or higher idea of reform than that of kicking Republicans out of office to make place for Confederates and party hacks? The only reform they propose is to turn out of office everybody, without regard to his qualifications, fitness, and fidelity, in order to make place for the Democratic howlers for eform. The character and antecedents of the men who raise this tremendous din about reform prove it. Mr. SHAMMY TILDEN WAS never, in all his shamming career, so much of a sham as when he lifts up his voice and cries aloud for reform. He is a product of the spoils system. He has never failed in making his appointments to reward his friends and punish his enemies. The same is true of HENDRICKS; and the whole army of strikers and wire-pullers are already busy bargaining for the places they expect to capture under the rallying-cry of TILDEN and make place for the army of spoilsmen, gaunt and hungry," who shout for TILDEN Those who have been carried off their feet by this reform din and clamor would be wise o stop and ask themselves where it comes from, and what it means. Then let them ontrast with it the unmistakable utterances of Gov. Haves on the same subject. In his etter of acceptance, with reference to the spoils system, he said : More than forty years ago a system of making appointments grew up, based upon the maxim, "To the victors belong the spoils." The old rule, the true rule, that honesty, capacity, and fidelity constitute the only real qualifications for office, and that there is no other claim, gave place to th dea that party services were to be chiefly consid ered. All parties in practice have adopted this system. It has been essentially modified since its first introduction. It has not, however, been improved. At first the President, either directly on through the heads of departments, made all the appointments; but gradually the appointing pow-er, in many cases, passed into the control of members of Congress. The offices, in these cases, have become not merely the rewards for party services, but rewards for services to party leaders. services, but rewards for services to party leaders. The system destroys the independence of the separate departments of the Government. It tends directly to extravagance and official incapacity. It is a temptation to dishonesty; it hinders and impairs the careful supervision and strict accountability by which alone faithful and efficient public bility by which alone faithful and efficient public service can be secured; it obstracts the prompt removal and sure punishment of the unworthy. In every way it degrades the civil service and the character of the Government.

. It ought to be abolished. The reform should be thorough, radical, and complete. We should return to the principles and practices of the founders of the Government—supplying by legislation, when needed, that which was formerly the established custom. They neither expected nor desired from the public officers any partisan service. They meant that public officers should give vice. They meant that public officers should give their whole service to the Government and to the people. They meant that the officer should be se-cure in his tenure as long as his personai character remained untarnished and the performance of his duties satisfactory. If elected, I shall conduct the administration of the Government upon thes principles, and all constitutional powers vested in the Executive will be employed to establish this

There is no mistaking the exact meaning of that. It is a declaration in favor of th reform that disposes of the whole question of administrative reform; for when ment officials give their whole service to the dovernment instead of to party, when their ciently and honestly discharge and when the Adm on those principles, there will remain nothing to be accomplished in the way of admin strative reform.

The principles declared by Gov. HAYES in his letter of acceptance are not new with him. In 1872, in his speech at Glendale, which was reported in full in the Cincinnati papers, he took occasion to refer to the published speech of the Hon. AABON F. PERRY on Civil-Service Reform, and to indorse it as "sound doctrine," and to add that he trusted the day was not far distant when the docared by Mr. PERBY would be carried out in administration. What Gov. Harrs then held to be sound doctrine is nanifest from the following extract from Mr.

tense of appointing men for the benefit of the party, when, in fact, they are not appointed for any such purpose, but to secure followers, and runners, and electioneerers for the men through whose influence they are appointed. If we can get rid of this difficulty, there will be very httle left to be got rid of. be got rid of.

by the force of opinion, by the action of the Presi-dent and heads of departments, and, if necessary, by act of Congress, to forbid members of Congress, both in the House and Senate, Federal officers, judicial and other, of all kinds, from asserting, as perguisites, the right of nominating for offices of perquisities, the right of nominating for offices of any kind, and of preserving to the President and heads of departments the right given them by the Constitution, to nominate the officers without ex-ternal pressure, and the Senate to act upon them without reference to personal arrangements among the Senators themselves.

Gov. Hayes, too, has acted upon the reform principles declared in his letter of acceptance among his appointees as Governor of Ohio, the record showing a long list of Democrats appointed to office by him, foremost among whom was Gen. Tom Ewing, whom Gov. Haves made one of the Board of Directors of the Soldiers' Orphans' Home a most important trust, involving the expenditure of large sums of money and no small share of what is denominated " patron-

Those who are sincere in their demand for reform who will review the record and party affiliations of Gov. HAVES and Gov. Tunes respectively will see how they may throw away a man who means reform for a man who himself is a part of the spoils system, and whose professions for reform are to trusted precisely as much as would be the professions of the Turks of a heartfelt desire to protect the Christians in Servia. THE LEGISLATIVE CANDIDATES.

Both parties have nominated their candi-dates for the Legislature. The Republican nominees are a decided improvement upon hose of the Democratic party. This could hardly have been otherwise, considering the general character of the Democratic Legisla tive ticket. In the choice of members of the Legislature, each party has a direct interest in the character of the candidates of the other party. Under the minority plan each party must elect a proportion of the Repre-sentatives. The political contest is really confined to one member from those districts where there is a contest at all. In the Third District a Democrat is to be elected, and the candidate, Mr. SMITH, will be creditable to the district. In the Third District but one Republican can be elected, and but one is nominated. In the Fourth District but one Democrat can be elected, though two have been nominated. In the First, Fifth, and Sixth Districts each party has named two candidates. It is unnecessary to call names,— the public are fully advised as to the men on both tickets, -but inasmuch as nomination in each district are equivalent to an election of at least one of the minority candidates. there exists a strong reason why the future but also a man of established character pecially for integrity. The public have an appeal even from the mistakes of conventions, and party managers will be false to their duty if they do not take these two lists of candidates and purge them of the name of every man who is notoriously incompetent and notoriously unfit for the office. If party managers will not do this, then the voters of each district, of both parties, can unite in the selection of men who are fit to go to the Legislature, and who will be of some service when there, and by combining their votes do two good things: 1. Elect proper Representatives. 2.

Defeat and punish bad nominations. The interests of Chicago in the next Legislature are too great to be sacrificed by mere party discipline. If the party insults public intelligence, then the party asks to be and should be defeated. We hope the voters will severely scrutinize these Legislative nominations, and in no case vote for a man to represent the public whom the voter would not select to represent him personally in any matter requiring ability, information, experience, and honesty. But the best and wisest course is for the managers of each party to ask the withdrawal of the improper candidates, and, in case the candidates persist, then inform the public, and leave it to the voters to apply the remedy at the polls.

AN OFFICIAL OUTRAGE. Some years ago, Mr. C. F. PERIOLAT, a that time a member of the firm of JAMES FORSYTH & Co., wholesale grocers of this city, bid for and obtained, in the name of the firm the contracts for supplying the various pub lic institutions of this county with a grea variety of goods. Though these contracts were taken in the name of the firm, they were in fact almost exclusively managed and controlled by Periolat. The goods, etc. were delivered, practically, by the firm to PERIOLAT, who furnished them to the county, and he conducted the whole business in sort of confidential way with the officials representing the county. In January, 1875, the firm of FORSYTH & Co. was dissolved by the retirement of PERIOLAT. In the subse quent investigations by the Grand Juries of the transactions between PerioLAT and sev eral county officers, the testimony of the books of Forsyth & Co. while he was a member of the firm came of some importance, and Mr. JAMES FORSYTH, senior partner, was summoned That gentleman frankly and fully stated to the Grand Jury all that he knew personally, or that the books of the old firm contain which had any bearing on the irregularities. I will be remembered that PERIOLAT, KIMBER LY, SWEETZER, and several Commi were indicted for conspiracy to defraud Cool County. Some of the Commissioners were tried and acquitted for the want of sufficient testimony, while PERIOLAT and the other Commissioners have taken a change of venue to some other county, and are ye to be tried. This letter, preceded and followed by mass of verbiage, is paraded before the read-ers of the Times as if it proved something, was something, and yet the editor knew the letter was a forgery, and that the crime had been exposed. He attempted to pass a counterfeit bill, when all the world knew the note was worthless. This particular forgery s No. 2 of the series. The first one was furnished by the Literary Bureau of TILDEN & Co., manufacturers of spurious fac similes, campaign slanders, Know-Nothing scares, etc. It was supplied in wholesale quantities to the Times and other passers of counterfeits editorial shovers of the queer. That was speedily detected, exposed, and its circula-tion stopped. Then the Bureau manufactured the letter given above, and recomm it to the trade as a fine specimen of the bogus." No sooner was it in than the cheat was discovered. The editor of the Cincinnati Volksblatt, suspecting the forgery, addressed himself to Gov. HAYES' Private Secretary, Mr. A. E. LEE, and promptly received the following by

Is it he part of a reformed journalist, is it one of the methods of a reform campaign, to obtain votes by fraudulent pretenses? Are the polities of the country to be reformed by forgery, and is honesty to be secured by dis-honesty? It has hitherto been customary to appeal to the reason of an opponent by arguments. It is now proposed to appeal to his passions with falsehoods, and defraud him nto voting against his principles, his conrictions, and his party. As these were wards largely made up of foreigners, it is fair to presume there were several thousand unnaturalized persons; yet, notwithstanding that, the vote far exceeded all the male adults in those wards. It is the opinion of those who are investigating matters that 8,000 or 4,000 fraudulent and spurious ballots were added to the legal votes cast for the Der ocratic candidates. By these means they have corruptly returned two men as elected to Conress who were clearly beaten. These books are commonly regarded as expounding the religious system of China, whereas "The South African Republic," as the Transval State is styled, and which is about to be come a British dependency, will have lasted as Republic about a quarter of a century whe that event takes place. The Transval Declaration of Independence was made in 1852, and to independence was made in 1853. The Pat Mall Budget furnishes some facts concerning this moribund Republic, from which it appears that it embraces a territory of 120,000 squaramiles, and has a population of 300,000 inhabitants. It is intended to federate with the Transval State the Orange Pree State as Cape Colony. The freedom and sincerity of an irresponsible party-follower which are apparent in Mr. Gladstone's late speeches are in refreshing contrast with the cautiousness which his position as a party-leader imposed upon him.

Privilence, Pa., Oct. 14.—A bloody murder has added its quota to the terrible record of the week in this city. The body of a man was week in this city. The body of a man was brought to Allegheny City this morning from the suburb, where he had fallen a victim to the love of money two days before. It was soon recognized as the body of Henry Schaffer, a well-known cattle-dealer of the South Side, who has for years bought cows and calves from farmers near the city and sold them at the Red Lion sales stables on such street, this place. Immediately was a south street, this place. Sixth street, this place. Immediately upon the recognition of the body detectives ar-rested a man named Linkner, a partner of the murdered man, and placed him in a cell at the station to await hearing. The following particulars of the mur-der have been received: About 11:30 o'clock der have been received.

at some object lying near the roadside, and, upon examination, it proved to be the remains of the murdered man. News was immediately communicated to the neighbors, and the body was at once brought to the office of 'Squire Magill, residing near the scene of the tragedy. It was at once seen that the victim had come to his death by heavy blows on the head and face from two large clubs found near the remains, and a heavy stone all being covered with blood and hair. The skull was crushed in three places, and the side of the head beaten almost to a jelly. The deed had been committed in a fence-corner, and the body dragged from the spot into the woods. Upon the inquest being held, the fact was developed that Linkner was seen riding in a buggy with deceased, and driving a cow before them about dark on Thursday at a point four miles from where Schaffer's body was found. They inquired the way to Hare's Tavern on the Kittaning road.

quired the way to Hare's Tavern on the Kittanning road.

Linkher, in the police-station, stated that they arrived at Hare's Tavern about dark, but there is testimony to prove that they never reached the tavern at all. The prisoner furtner stated that he got out of the buggy and went ahead for a short distance, and a while afterwards the horse and buggy overtook him, but only Schaffer's hat and cost were in it. The hat was covered with mud, and had evidently been trampled in the road. Further it was proved that the horse and buggy were seen with the prisoner horse and buggy were seen with the prisoner about 4 o'clock of the day on which the murder was committed, which was after Schaffer had met his death.

On Linkner's clothing were several large spots of blood, and two pocket-books were found in his possession, one containing $17, and the other, securely tied, belonging to the murdered man, having over $100 in it. The pockets of the victim had been turned inside out, and nothing but a handker-chief was found on his person. The prisoner, upon his arrest, expressed surprise that Schaffer had been killed, and insisted upon seeing the body of his late partner, manifesting the greatest grief, either real or pretended. He will be given a hearing early in the present week.

Schaffer was a married man about 40 years of age. Linkner is probably 50 years of age, and a man of heavier and stronger build than his murdered partner. They have been intimately associated for three years, and lived in the same house.

THE NORTHFIELD BANDITS. Sr. Louis, Oct. 14 .- On the 3d inst., Deputy Sheriff Lawrence, of Jasper County, came to St. Louis and reported that Jesse James had passed through that county the Monday previ-ous on horseback, and that he had left his brother Frank, who was badly wounded, with friends in the northern part of the State to recuperate. The James boys are the notorious Missouri desperadoes, who are charged with be-ing the leaders in the numerous train and bank robberies of the past five years. Acting doubting the leaders in the numerous train and bank robberies of the past five years. Acting doubtless on this suggestion, Sergeants Boland and Joyce, Pand. Officers Ost, Stewart, Willow, Palmer, Purcell, and Gardner, of the St. Louis police force, were sent out to capture the wounded man. On Friday afternoon, between 4 and 5 o'clock, they surrounded the residence of Dr. Noland, nine miles from Independence, in Jackson County. Five of them, armed with double-barreled shot-guns, burst open the door and entered. They found a man who was under surgical treatment for a severe wound in the thigh, which had been received sometime previous. They presented their guns at him, and he quietly surrendered, stating that he was not Frank James, but from Mississippi, and named Goodwin. The detectives had a special engine and caboose, which stopped at Little Blue Station, the crossing of the Leavenworth, Lawrence & Galveston and Missouri Pacific Roads. Deputy Marshal John Hope, of Independence, tried to interview the prisoner but was not allowed, and his captors placed him on the train, taking him to Olathe, kan., and thence to Kansas City. The party left for St. Louis this morning and arrived here tonight. There is a good deal of dispute as to the prisoner's identity; but it is more than likely that he is really one of the Northfield robbers, as your correspondent received tonight information from Kansas City, stating that Mrs. Samuels, mother of the Jemes boys, is of opinion that the man in custody is her son Frank, and this, taken in connection with Jesse James' statement that he had left Frank wounded among friends, would seem to place the matter of identity beyond doubt. Parties who know the James boys will be here in the morning to identify the prisoner if possible.

THE CHEESEMAN MYSTERY. New York, Oct. 14.—The reported shooting yesterday of Mrs. Cora Cheeseman, by herself, ing the subject of public interest Early this morning Coroner Ellinger visited the bedside of the wounded woman, and bedside of the wounded woman, and found a strange lady attending her. Mrs. Cheeseman, who had spent a very bad night, was considerably excited, and more than ever refused to make a sworn statement to the Coroner as to how she had received the wound. The Coroner, finding he could obtain no statement from the patient, turned his attention to the strange lady, and elicited from her that she was a friend of Mrs. Cheeseman, and had come from Lynn, Mass., in answer to a telegram sent Thursday night informing her Cora had been murdered, and that she should come on at once. This dispatch is signed "Cora." The Coroner questioned the lady in the parlor adjoining the room in which Mrs. Cheeseman was lying. When the latter saw the Coroner speak to her friend she called her to her bedside, and forbade her to make any further statements. Thus baffied in all his efforts, the Coroner applied to the Superintendent for his official assistance, as the case, since the contents of the telegram are known, has become more mysterious than ever. The condition of Mrs. Cheeseman is very precarious. Nothing has been seen of or heard from the husband of the wounded woman.

A BLACK HILLS MURDER. Special Dispatch to The Tribune. SIOUX CITY, Ia., Oct. 14.—The Grand Jury at Yankton yesterday found a true bill against Jerry McCarty for the murder of John Hinch in the Black Hills on the 10th of July last. McCarty was arraigned and pleaded act guilty. The trial will probably occupy the time of the court all next week.

SWIFT JUSTICE. CAMP EXPEDITION, NEAR CUSTER CITY, Oct. 13, VIA SPRING ON THE HILL, Wy., Oct. 14.— were shot this afternoon near here. They were caught in the act of stealing horses and mules from the camp, and summarily dealt with. This was only accomplished after a hard fight. Since our arrival in the hills a large number of public and private animals have been stolen from the command, and this is the first writ we have been enabled to issue.

Bosrox, Mass., Oct. 14.—News of a probable triple murder has just been received from Bucksport, Me. The victims are an aged man named Trim, his daughter, Mrs. Thayer, and her little girl. Trim's house and buildings were burned last night and his charred remains were found in the debris of the carriage house. A bloody trail was found leading from the house to the rear of the barn, and it is supposed that Mrs. Thayer and her daughter were murdered and their bodies dragged to the barn, though they have not been found. Mrs. Thayer was known to have had $8,000 in the house, and plunder is supposed to have been the incentive. TRIPLE MURDER. though they have not been found. Mrs. Thayer was known to have had $8,000 in the house, and plunder is supposed to have been the incentive.

The community is intensely excited, and this morning turned out enmasse to investigate and secure the murderer. Bloodstains were found in the road. A broken comb, some hair, and other indications pointed to a struggle at that point, and by the bloodspots the trail was followed to the barn. During the forencon the charred remains of Mrs. Thayer were taken from the debris of the barn. Body of child not yet discovered, though it is believed she also was murdered. She had been visiting a neighbor, and started to return home at $ p. m. Since then nothing has been seen of her. The body of the cld man was first found in the ruins of the carriage-house. The murder was undoubtedly deliberately planned, and the building burned with the expectation of concealment. The ditizens scoured the country, and late this afternoon arrested at Hampden Frank Landers, against whom it is said the evidence is very strong. The feeling against him is intense, and it is thought probable he will be lynched before morning, capital punishment having been abolished in this State.

Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 14.—The Coroner's jury, sitting on the bodies of Mary Russell, mother of Nellic and Willie Russell, children killed by the cars on the Atchison & Nebraska Railroad here resterday, had a session to-day, and returned a verdict of culpable carelessness on the part of the Railroad Company in running so fast over crossings without signals or watchmen. Willie died during last night from internal injuries. Voluminous evidence was taken, carefully sifted by the jury and Dr. L. II. Robbins, Coroner. There has been considerable feeling manifested in the community against the railroad operating at reckless speed across this thoroughisre, which is the one principally traveled by farmers coming into the city. Russell and family lived in Harvard County, this State, and were going on a visit to Cedar Rapids, Ia., their former home. The bodies of the three persons killed were sent to Cedar Rapids to-day. Mr. Russell is badly injured, his, leg, arm, and collar-bone being broken, but he will recover. internal injuries. Voluminous evidence was JEFFERSONVILLE, Ind., Oct. 14 .- A distress ing accident occurred at 4 o'clock to-day, result-ing in the death of Capt. James Howard, a well-known steamboat builder of this city. Mr. Howard with a horse and buggy was returning from Louisville on a ferry-boat. When half-way across the horse commenced backing, and backed against the apron, which was not fastened. As a result, the horse, buggy, and Mr. Howard want into the sizer. The boat and Mr. Howard went into the river. The boa and Mr. Howard went into the river. The boat stopped, and efforts were made to loosen the yawl, but the rigging, swollen by rain, was unmanageable. He swam 100 yards with a heavy overcoat on, but sank within fifty yards of the shore. The body was recovered. He was 62 years of age, and universally respected in our midst. His death casts a terrible gloom over our people. He was the most noted steamboat builder in the West, having built a large number of the finest steamers that float on Western waters.

An Evening Merrily Whiled Away Within Its Walls.

Music, Mirth, Minstrelsy, and Burlesque During the Past Week, and Pleasing Features Promised for the Future.

The amusement record of Chicago affords no parallel to the growth in popular tavor exhibited at the Coliseum. Our city never has supported and never will support poor shows for any length of time. Even tolerably good performances do not suffice. Only excellent entertainments earn favor, and of this the manager of the Coliseum seems aware. First-class perform ers, good singers, and excellent music are made the rule. Houses crowded with intelligent and orderly andiences have been and are the result.

During the past week a bill of unnsual excellence has been presented. Mr. Frank Bennett introduced to the audience a member of the Arkansas Colored Police Force, following with a laughable travesty upon Captain Jinks. "The First Trial," introducing operatic and dramatic selections, proved highly amusing to the lovers of buriesque. Miss Fanny Delano in a solo upon the staff-oells won lavor by her skillful performance and pleasing manner. Her "Beautiful Bells,"—a very appropriate selection, by-the-by,—was promptly recognized by the audience.

The French Twin Sisters, both "Pretty as a Picture," sang "Down Where the Pansies Grew" with much grace and sweetness. Later in the evening their skill in dancing was admirably shown in a double clog, executed with so much neatness as to cause wonder how performers so young could have arrived at such absolute perfection in their art.
Jeppe, in genteel character-songs of the Lingard order, made a very favorable impression, with his fine baritone voice and pleasing manner. He sang "Yachting in the Bay," was twice called out, and his last selection, "That's What I Like to See," was applauded after each stanza.
Jeppe is as neat a dresser as the best, and wears his clothing as charmingly as the exquisite he portrays. Then came a series of good things, as follows: "A Perplexing Predicament," with plenty of work for Messrs. Lang and Hawkins and fun for the audience; Miss Bertha Rowe in a bouquet of sweet songs; Thatcher and Hume who sing, dance, and tumble to everybody's satisfaction; the Gorman Brothers in artistic reel and clog dancing, followed by Miss Nully Pieris, whose vocal selections could not have been better rendered, the first being the Kiss Waltz from "Arditit," and the last O'Reardon's beautiful rong, "My Dream of Love is O'er," written during a hopeless attachment formed by the author for Mrs. James A. Oates.

"Brass versus Gall," a laughable afterpiece, glittering with stuffed-clubs, scoop-shovels, etc., in the hands of performers who wielded them with telling effect, sent the audience home fully satisfied with the feast of fun and song count of the collegem.

fully satisfied with the feast of fun and song served nightly at the Coliscum.

In addition to the most pleasing features above noted, new attractions are announced for the present week, among which are the Morasco family gynnasts, who perform double somersaults, shoulder to shoulder and foot to foot; Worden and Mack, a pair of the cleverest song and dance artists in the country; Banker and Mills, protean and sketch artists, with new pieces; and the "Three Arnoids." Herr Schulze, the famous facial performer, who was to have appeared at this theatre during the present week, died Oct. 5 at Chncinnati, of consumption.

An interesting feature of the week will be the debut of Miss Marie Louise Andre as a professional singer. She is known to be a lady of many attainments and a fine vocalist, and has adopted the stage not from choice, but to enable her to support an invalid relative depending wholly upon her individual exertions. No person can fail to wish her a success as ample as her ambition is praiseworthy.

All the above features at the Coliseum, with its popular prices, contribute to an entertainment varied enough, good enough, long enough, and cheap enough, for the most exacting, and crowded houses cannot fail to be the result.

THE BRODERICK WILL.

George Wilkes Charged with Forgery. Special Dispatch to The Tribune.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 14.—Col. George Butler publishes a sensational card in the Washington Republican, in the course of which he says that George Wilkes forged the noted Broderick will, and that by that means he obtained a share in Broderick's estate, which he sold to William P. Garrison and David Colton. Butler claims that rison and David Colton. Butler claims that Moses Flanagan signed the will, and on his deathbed confessed the act to James M. Selaver, broker, New York. Butler states that his father's name was put in as executor to conceal this alleged forgery, and that his father never touched his executor's fees or recognized George Wilkes. Butler declares that he was impelled to write this card to defend his dead father's memory, and that he, George Butler, has been engaged for years in discovering the proof of what he here charges.

A bright little girl at one of the fashionable hotels recently surprised the waiter and guests at her table by hurrying in to dinner among the first, and in advance of her mother, and ordering ice-cream, raisins, and other delicacies of the dessert before her sort and meats. The solution of her conduct appeared shortly, however, after the arrival of the mother, who watched with great solicitude the food taken by the child. It was "Baby, don't eat this," and "Baby, don't eat that," until dessert was reached, when "baby" ordered ice-cream. Being cut down in her allowance by her mother, she took it with such unusual quiet that surprise was manifested, when she naively exclaimed, "I took my dessert first to-day, mamma, so I should be sure and have enough."

VEGETINE.

OF THE PUBLIC!

During the past five years the public have carefully observed the wonderful cures accomplished from the use of VEGETINE. From its use many an afflicted sufferer has been restored to perfect health, after having expended a small fortune in procuring medical advice and obtaining poisonous mineral medicines. It is now justly remarked by all classes of people that VEGETINE holds a higher position in the estimation of the public than any other medical compound, and it has won its great reputation and immense demand from actual merit. actual merit.

Its medical properties are Alterative, Tonic, Solvent, and Diuretic. There is no disease of the human system for which-the VEGETINE cannot be used with perfect safety, as it does not contain any metallic or poisonous compound. It is composed exclusively of barks, roots, and herbs; it is very pleasant to take; every child likes it. It is ease and reliable, as the following evidence will show:

Valuable Evidence

The following unsolicited testimonial from the Rev. O. T. Walker. D. D., formerly pastor of the Bowdoin Square Church, Boston, and at present settled in Providence. R. MR. H. R. STEVENS:

DEAR SIX—Though a stranger, I want to inform you what VEGETINE has done for me.

Last Christmas Forofula made its appearance in my system—large running ulcers appearing upon me, as follows: One on each of my arms. one on my high, which extended to the seat, one on my head, which eat into the skull-bone, one on my left leg, which became so bad that two physicians came to amputate the limb, though upon consultation, concluded not to do so, as my whole body was so full of Scrofula, they deemed it advisable to cut the sore, which was painful beyond description, and there was a quart of matter run from this one sore.

scription, and there was a quari of matter run from this one sore.

The physicians all gave me up to die, and said they could do no more for me. Both of my legs were drawn up to myseat, and it was thought if I did get up again I would be a cripple for life.

When in this condition I saw VEGETINE advertised, and commenced taking it in March, and followed on with it until I had used sixteen bottles, and this morning I am going to plow corn, a well man. All my townsmen say it is a miracle to see me around walking and working.

In conclusion I will add, when I was enduring such great suffering from that dreadful disease. Scrofula, I prayed to the Lord above to take me out of this world; but, as VEGETINE has restored to me the blessings of health, I desire more than ever to live, that I may be of some service to my fellow-men, and I know of no better way to aid suffering humanity than to inclose you this statement of my case, with an earnest hope that eply to any communication when the service to may receive therefrom. MR. H. R. STEVENS:

DEAR SIR—I will most cheerfully add my testimony to the great number you have already received in favor of your great and good medicine, VEGETINE, for I do not think enough can be said in its praise, for I was troubled over thirty years with that dreadful disease. Catarrh, and had such bad coughing spells that it would seem as though I could never breathe any more, and VEGETINE has cured me; and I do feel to thank God all the time that there is so good a medicine as VEGETINE, and I also think it one of the best medicines for coughs and weak, sinking feelings at the stomach, and advise everybody to take the VEGETINE, for I can assure them it is one of the best medicines that ever was.

A CONVERTIBLE DRESS.

Special Correspondence of The Tribuna.

New York, Oct. 13.—It is almost impossible to decide to what department preference should be given in a fashion letter nowadays. Everywhere in the city, the suit department is filled to repletion with the most skillfully arranged costumes. One very elegant dress is of black matelasse, in form somewhat like the modified Princess dress. The waist and skirt are in one, and the entire fullness of the latter is in the centre of the back, and composed of side-folds. These are trimmed with loops and corded buttoms. The front of the dress is trimmed with folds of plain black silk, laced through the centre with heavy cords. Originally intended for a house dress, this handsome toilette may be converted into an degant street costume by the addition of an outside garment, also of matelasse. This is double-breasted, and laid in many klit-plaitings at the back. A fanciful pocket ornaments the side, and is trimmed with wide basket braid, as is the edge of the garment. The coat-sleeves are trimmed to match, and a silk-corded collar finishes the nack. A myrtle-green silk has the demi-train trimmed with double box-plaiting surmounted by a pointed side-plaiting. The overskirt is a scarf shirred bias on each side, and edged with green chemille fringe. The back is elaborately drapped and cut in pointed seallops, which lie over the front, and are tightly fastened. The basque is cuirass-shaped, with a plaited front and neck.

A striking novelty is a black matelasse costume of superbugulity, trimmed with fine knife-plaitings or cardinal silk, half concealed by a fall of magnificent chemille lace. The back is a sorgeous mass of cardinal silk, half concealed by a fall of magnificent chemile lace. The back is a sorgeous mass of cardinal silk, half concealed by a fall of magnificent chemile lace. The back is a sorgeous mass of cardinal silk, half concealed by a fall of magnificent velvet and chemille fringe of mingled garnet and apricot. The long, sweeping trains tri side trimming consists of pulls of dark green velvet set off by cut-steel bands.

IN FLOWERS, BUCKLES, PLUMES, and all the thousand charming accessories of millinery, there is a most beautiful display. Among the other novelties are clusters of cardinal and blush roses, in whose heart is half-concealed a tiny humming-bird. There are wreaths of fern-leaves mingled with oak and maple just touched with the vivid antumn tinges; coronets of moss, mixed with wild whortleberries and soft wild rose-buds. The fern-leaves are particularly attractive. Sprays of glistening by have bright-feathered birds perched in their midst. In plumes, there is much variety and elegance. There are cogne plumes in every conceivable color, long ostrichleathers and short full tips, and the beautiful knotted willow plumes and pompons, beaides the stately jeweled and jetted aigrettes.

A novel-looking evening bonnet attracted my attention by its simplicity, and I ended by giving my admiration. The brim consists of shirred light-blue groe-grain ribbon, and the crown is of puffs of the same. The spaces between these puffs are left open, and the hair of the wearer is plainly seen through them, and the effect, by contrast or harmony, should be handsome steel clasp. From tims, two beautiful ostrich tips fall over the crown, while a third curis over the back and brim, and half-concealed under its graceful curve is another cluster of pale-pink roses. The face trimming is of blonds lace and the same delicate flowers.

And now a word for

of millinery. A handsome French bonnet is of crape, trimmed with heavy folds of English crape. Long streamers of grosgrain fall at the back and are aurmounted by a fine black feather curling over the crown, and fastened by a carved jet ornament. A pretty bonnet for half-mourning is of turquoise silk, with puffed crown and shirred brim. The crown is encircled by a beautiful wreath of lavender leaves and jet berries, and a jet buckle holds in place loops of silk at the back. The inside trimming is of white tulle sprinkled with bowdered jet. A French felt hat with rolling brim represented most pleasingly the "luxury of wee." The trimming was of black grosgrain silk artistically arranged about the crown. An elaborately carved band of jet ornamented the right side, and a full plume fell gracefully over the crown.

Ball dreases of cardinal crape and tulle, and dinner dresses of cardinal faille, are already very popular across the water, and a few that have been imported here found rapid favor and immediate sale. Mascullne-appearing costumes of cloth, consisting of a vest and coat like the conventional swallow-tail, are among recent importations. They are shown only in the coatiler goods, as armure, matelasse, brocade, etc.

The long lace scarfs which have lingered so long with us, are at last to be ostracised, and to replace them are pretty three-cornered kerchiefs of silk, linen, or lawn. An innovation in bairdressing is threatened, but it is hardly probable it will effect anything. It is that all braids, puffs, coils, and other beauties of the present mode are to be laid aside, and the hair is to be worn short in a "manly" fashion. It is a style that will obtain only among "bloomers," and others of t

THE EXPOSITION OF 1878.

Special Correspondence of The Tribune.

PARIS, Oct. 2.—In view of the great Exposition which is to take place in Paris in 1878, and which is to take place in Paris in 1878, and which is to take place in Paris in 1878, and which is to trival all such exhibitions the world has ever seen, Parisian ladies are arousing themselves to action, in order to establish their claims in the world of art. "M. le Senateur, Commissaire de l'Exposition Universelle a Paris," to whom all demands for space, etc., should be addressed, has received notice that several historical copies from ancient tapestry are in course of execution by ladies well known in the social world of Paris. The revival of this art has created a demand for thousands of shades unknown in ordinary embroidery, and the beautiful Algerian silk is now manufactured to suit every variety of tapestry on exhibition in the Hotel Cluny. For that of Henry II., Louis XVI., and the Orientai each requires a different scale of colors entirely opposed to the others, which are styled primitive tints, actual tints, and tints "passees," and in ordering materials for the work, the date of the tapestry to be copied must be stated. This study of colors in its minute gradations and charming effects might be of advantage in other directions by checking the decline so visible in all art, tendencies of the age, and the consequent dapressing influence in social surroundings. Glare and glitter in furniture or dress do not accord with the fine elegance that displays good taste in everything, and which is the essence of true enjoyment, and Dame Fashion would not prove her ignorance by flaunting her gaudy colors under the prestige of the sanction of great masters of the olden times. She now presents concession to simplicity is requisite to make them presentable. But away with these hideous creations! I will seek for beauty among the charming summer shapes, which now respect, with some modification, in felt and velvet, and among which the capote is again in favor. One of the latter has been ordered by the young Princess S., and consists of a white plush, whose only ornament is a blue bird with outstretched wings, clinging to the crown. Trimming is very limited in the nevert styles, which fact offers a wide range for the exercise of good taste, as eccentric simplicity is not elegance, and is as much to be avoided, as a profusion of the cheap feather shominations, which are still largely exported. The tollettes prepared so lately for the receptions and dinners which always take piace at the opening of the races are now succeeded by those of sibly will resume their place for visiting costume in the depth of winter. A magnificent trousseau was recently forwarded to Brest by one of our celebrated modistes, but as a description is impossible in this limited space, I will merely state that it was ordered by Mile. de Trobriand, a daughter of Gen. De Trobriand, who served in the late American war.

AMONG THE NOTABLE RECEPTIONS here, those given in honor of the Princess Louise, daughter of Queen Victoria, has been quiet, but of course elegant in the extreme. In the grand old hotels, where the princess was received, all breathes of a nobility that has a descent of many generations and of undisturbed artistocratic luxury and ease. Nothing of the parvenu here; no crowding, no stiffness, and nothing to offend the eye in tasteless decorations. Toilettes look marvelously beautiful in these immense drawing-rooms, where graceful trains spread out their wealth of silk and satin, and vaporous laces all untrained. One of these was of azure silk, tissued with gold and trimmed with white rose wreaths, presenting a peculiarly charming appearance. Whether it was the refreshing novelty of the absence of founces and bows, or the soft candle-light playing in the delicate tracery of gold, or the pale beauty of the roses, conforming so well to the purity of all, is unknown; but, nevertheless, it was conspicuously beautiful even among the brilliant toilettes that surrounded it.

A grand spectacular piece has just been completed for the Opera-Bouffe by M. Beauvallet, called "Le Dernier Coucou," the music of which will be taken from the old operettas of Herve. Albani is engaged for the asson at Les Italiens," which will be opened Oct. Si with "La Forza del Destino." MATHILDE.

An', while hundreds died around me, I struggled through it all. through it all.

Again at the dreary outposts, when the fields were frozen hard

On the banks o' the bleak Potemae, I stood in the sense, on guard.

I dreamed I stood on the battle-field, with the bullets a-whistlin' by.
With the smoke so thick about my head that I couldn't see the sky;
With the cannon around me rearin', like bursts o' thunder-sound;
Where the dyin' an' deae together lay in heaps upon the ground;
Where many a fallen hero, with his last expirin' breath, as his galiant comrades swept along in their last wild charge o' death, Rose up on his hands an' cheered 'cm, from the furrow where he lay,
A-burnin' with thirst an' fover, while his life-blood ebbed away;
Where the terrible cries o' the wounded resounded through the air,
As the sun went down, at the close o' day, with a red an' awful glare;
Where, down in the dark ravines, at night, in trenches long an' deep,
We buried our dead, an' left 'em to their last, unbroken sleep.

Once more in a Southern prison in anguish I seemed to lie,
With nothin' o'erhead for shelter, —on a pile o' moldy hay,
With hudreds around me starvin' an' a-dyin' every day.
I was chilled by the dewso' the evenin'; I was wet hy the fallin' rain,
An' with lips that were parched with fever I prayed for death in vain.
We were tortured beyond endurance, while Rebel fiends stood by,
Who gloated upon our anguish, an' smiled to see us die.

Hannah! I woke from my awful dream with the cold sweat on my brow.

An' I thank the Lord with all my soul that the War is over now;
That over the country everywhere the Old Flag still remains;
That the millions are freed from their bondage who once were held in chains;
That the terrible Southern slave-pens their prey no longer hold;
That the suction-blocks have vanished where human flesh was sold;
That no more amid the tangled swamps we hear the baying hound;
That the whipping-post is overthrown to which the slave was bound.

Some of the paper of Frank Sturges & Co., deal to a relative, it is said; there is also the manufacturing property on the corner of Harrison and Peorla streets, with a frontage of about 200 feet. The lands, building, and machinery are worth $100,000 to $125,000. This property is also said to be mortgaged for about all it is worth. The firm have reorganizes on the 30th ult. as the Chicago Stamping Company, and transferred the above manufacturing property at a valuation of $90,000 and their stock on hand to the new corporation, which has a capital of $350,000. The stock of the Chicago Stamping Company is most of it, it is said, held by relatives as collateral for bank loans. About $97,000 is claimed to be due the Northwestern National Bank. As no assignment has been made, and no meeting yet held of the creditors, it is too early to speak of the terms of settlement. Frank Sturges failed in 1871 for about $350,000, and settled at 50 cents on the dollar.

BETTER TIMES ARE HERE. Clearing-house returns prove beyond dispute that transactions during the first week in October were larger than those of the corresponding weeks last year, not only in quantities, but also in values. New York clearings exceed those of the corresponding week last year by 8% per cent. This gratifying fact, if it stood alone, might be attributed in part to the magnitude of stock operations. But no such explanation serves for the return from Boston, which also exceeds the estimated proportion for explanation serves for the return from Boston, which also exceeds the estimated proportion for the first week of October last year by more than 8 per cent. Nor does any such explanation apply to the returns from Philadelphia, which show a gain of 24 per cent, or of Chicago, which show a gain of about 5 per cent, or of St. Louis, which, in view of the change of prices since 1875, show increase in

The stock market was stronger and higher, prices showing an advance of ½ to 2% per cent. Delaware, Lackawanns & Western advanced to 72%.

New Jersey Central to 35%, Lake Shore to 56%, New York Central to 162, St. Paul common to 26%, preferred to 53%, Michigan Central to 44, Pacific Mail to 25%, and Western Union to 71. The strength of the market to-day was largely due to the semi-official statements that rumors regarding the proposed lowering of freight rates by the trunk lines were unfounded. A dispatch from Detroit says that the Canadian freight agents, at their meeting there yesterday, agreed upon an advance of about 25 per cent upon all eastward bound freight.

At 2.15 deliveries of Delaware & Lackawanna stocks were in default to a conederable amount, and the stock was bought in at the exchange, under the rule requiring prompt deliveries before 2:15 p.m.

Transactions were 106,000 shares, of which 16,000 were Pacific Mail, 6,000 Western Union, 33,000 Lake Shore, 5,000 Michigan Central, 28,000 Delaware, Lackawanna & Western, and 11,000 New Jersey Central. The Express says a special dispatch from St. Petersburg to-day states that a report was current that Russin was about to issue a large loan. and dried-fruit markets. Coal and wood remain dull. Oils were quoted quiet at Friday's prices. The leather market is active, strong, and advancing.

Hogs were moderately active at a furthur decline of 5@10c, the market closing weak at $5.90@6.00 for light, and at $5.50@5.80 for common to good heavy. Extra heavy sold at $6.20@6.30. Cattle were in fair demand at onchanged prices; quoted at $2.50@5.00 for common to choice. The sheep market was steady at $2.75@4.50.

The wholesale lumber market was quiet Saturday and firm, the offerings being very small, and there was a fair inquiry from retailers. At the yards the demand for lumber continues fair, and the market is tolerably steady at present quoted figures. The offerings by cargoes will probably be fair by Monday. Wool continues firm under a good demand from the East, and a few orders are coming from the interior mills that are no longer able to supply themselves nearer home. A fair demand for hope is reported and the market is fair at recent quotations. The Western crops is moving freely. The medium and lower grades of broom-corn are in fair request and firm, while the higher grades are easy, being quiet, with large stocks on hand and to arrive. Hides were firmer. Seeds were again in good demand, and firm, under comparatively small offerings. Poultry and game were dull and lower.

Lake freights were active to the extent of the offerings, and 16@4c higher, at 4c for corn and 44c for wheat to Buffalo. Rail freights were quiet and nominally firm, at 20c to New York, 18c to Philadelphia, 17½c to Baltimore, and 22c to Boston per 100 lbs. cars being withheld by agents, though they do not offer to sayance rates. Some shippers stated that they had asked for cars and could lot obtain them. Turough rates by lake and rail were quoted at 12c for corn and 13c for wheat to New York, and 14c quictorn via Raffalo to Boston. Freight engagements were reported for 58,000 on wheat and 237,000 ha corn.

Special Disputch to The Tribuse.
St. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 14.—The champ

stock of the Chicago Club is owned in Rochester.

The Philadelphia Mercury thus records the latest development in Athletic Club matters:

At a meeting of the Athletic Club players the rather chimerical offer was made to give the players notes to their indebteness, payable in one year; but, as it was said that the payment of those notes would depend on the sanctial success of the nine next year—a rather dubious matter—the offer was unanimously rejected. The players then made the proposition that they would accept the said notes provided that they would accept the work and it can be not a trifling indebtedness. Many of the stockholders of the Club have expressed their willingness to pay an assessment or subscription to pay of the debt, and, in case that falls, efforts can be made to dispose of the 150 shares of stock remaining unsold. The stockholders should see that their interests shall not be sacrificed.

In last Sunday's Tribune was given a dis-White Stockings made their appearance in this dty today in a game with the Red Caps, and city to-day in a game with the Red Caps, and the large andience in attendance fully appreciated the fine exhibition of the visitors. The home nine played far below their standard, while the Chicagos' play was perfection. The Chicagos scored 19; Red Caps, 1.

The Whites play in Minneapolis Monday and Widnesday, in St. Paul again Tuesday, and in Milyankee Thursday, which will probably finish the season's work.

that their interests shall not be sacrificed.

In last Sunday's Tribune was given a discussion of the League Constitution as it governs forfeited games growing out of the failure of a club to carry out its engagements. The author of the letter, a gentleman well known in baseball circles, advocated, substantially, that the clubs which withdrew forfeited their games, but that those games must be counted in the championship record. The letter was considered by several managers, and from an expression of opinion received from them it appears that that view of the case is quite likely to be discussed in the League meeting. It is fair, then, to see what effect the ruling referred to would have on the record. It would make the clubs stand as follows: hispatches show that the White Stockings are at present in the extreme Northwest, somewhere in the wilds of Minnesota. They will return hete Thursday or Friday of this week, and, if the present weather continues, will probably disband for the season. It is, however, on the cards for teem to take a trip down into Indiana if the expected "Indian summer" shows up. They will in the latter case be joined by the St. Louis Club and the two will play games in Indianapolis, Ture Haute, and other cities.

The many tiends of Fred Andrus, of this year's White Sockings, will be pleased to learn that there is a sood prospect of his being engaged to manag; the Milwaukee Club of next year. He has hid an excellent drill for that position this season under Mr. Spaiding, and knows the husiness well. Beade his acquaintance with the manager's duties, Andrus has this season proved huself a fine player, and especially a superior batter.

The Pacific Life the only sporting paper of any account in California, thus sends greeting to the Calcagos on their capture of the championship: "A game played in Chicago Sept. 25 settled the question of the championship for the season of 1876, and secured for Chicago the coveted token of supremacy in the national game. There is the more satisfaction in this from the fact that the successful club is largely made up of Western players, and that among them the chament of rowdyism and the imputation of dishonesty have been conspleuously absent. It will be a grainying reflection to Chicago enthusiasts that the best club in every essential particular has wen the championship."

A QUESTION OF SCORING. Only one game was played during the week last past—Hartford-Cincinnati—and that affected nothing as far as second place was concerned, unless to give the Hartfords firmer hold on ft. The showing now is:

pene. There a ten more authorities in the make price of worth players, and the make price of the control of the In the races for all-ages' stake, one mile and a half, Parob, St. Martin's, Virginius, Warlock, and Rhadamanthus started. Parole was Figreat favorite, sellag in the pools for more than all the others carbined. The favorite won éasily, with Warlock and St. Martin's running a dead heat for thesecond place. Time, 2:38.

The race for the maiden 2-year-olds, three-quarters of smile, was won by Princeston, with Benzine secund and Lucifer third. Time, 1:19%.

The sellinis race, one mile and three-quarters, had six stariers: James A, Galway, Ambush, Partnership, Sister of Mercy, and Rappahannock. The nee was won by Partnership by half a length, Gaway beating Ambush by a head for the second place. Time, 3:12%. James A sold in the pois at $10.25 to $5 for Galway, $2.50 for Amush, and $1.55 for Partnership.

The closity race was the handicap steeple chase over he usual course, about two and three-quarter miles. The starters were Deadhead, Bullet Risk, Resolute, Capt. Hammer, Scamp, and Dxmore, and sold in the pools as named. This stay the hundles were well taken. Oxmore bolled at the third, but his rider kept him on the sourse, and taking the water jump the horse fall severely injuring both hind legs, and was led to the stable. Scamp bolted at the stone jump and was afterwards out of the race, which now was with Resolute, Deadhead, and Pullet. The two last named took the jumps in fine style, and drew ahead of Resolde but in the meadow Deadhead fell, injuringher rider, Mearney. Resolute now rushed for Billet, and the close was very exciting, Resolute winning by a head, Capt. Hammer third. Time, 4:22.

It the second race, 15 per cent of the stake will be dvided between St. Martins and Warlock. There will be an extra day's racing the first Satzday in November.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—A delightful October sun and the last days of the fall meeting of the for youngsters, any a purse for 5-year-olds, and a stake race for colts and fillies in their third year. Such a programme, rounded off with a reasonable number of contests to harness, would be both novel and attractive, and the manager who chall first introduce it will not fail of being rewarded, not only by the memey of the people, but by the benisons of all who patronize turf sports and take an interest in their success.

To a considerable extent The Transum can indorse the above, but it lifts up its most vigorous protest against any trotting of 3-year-olds or other colts. Every wise horseman has been greatly scandalized of late by the attempt to trut youngsters when they ought to be as free as air, and at an age when they should never have known the weight of a harness. The 2-year old race in the Breeders' Meeting at Philadelphia was an outrage. If breeders of trotting stock would stop long enough to examine the effect of forcing running horses, they would quickly abandon entering for colts' purses. The runner begins at 2 years and lasts, maybe, two more,—perhaps he may last to 6, but a very large proportion of runners are never heard of after they reach 4 or 5. There are no Goldsmith Maids, American Girls, Lucya, Dexters, Hambletonians, Ethan Allens, or Black Hawks among the runners, and it is sure that there never will be. It is just as sure that if the forcing process—the colt race and early training—is introduced into trotting, there will be no more trotters to outlast a third of Goldsmith Maid's age. Give us, then, all the novelties you please in the way of weights, distances, or breeds, trot the Percheron stallion if you want to, but don't let us have any more colt stakes. enough is known to say that the following men lead the scores in the clubs named:

Barnes, Chocaso.

Fike, St. Lonis.

Clinton, Louisville.
Jones, Cincinnati.

The Bochester Express has the following:

"Mr. Brackett, the organizer of the Syracuse Stars and Auburns of Auburn, has been engaged at $125 per month to organize a first-class professional club in this city for the next season, to be called the Rochesters. The capital stock has been fixed at $5,000." This is all very well, but when the Express adds the following it oversteps the bounds of truth: "Base-ball club stock pays; a Rochester man is a stockholder in the Chicago Club, and for the $500 which he invested last fall he has already received $400, and the stock is exceedingly valuable for next season." The fact is, that not even $1 of the stock of the Chicago Club is owned in Rochester.

SALE OF MUNNES.

Tuesday last Col. L. A. Hitchock's stud of runners was sold in New York and proved the largest sale of the kind ever known in that city. The former owner is a Boston gentleman, who retires from the turf on account of ill health. The following horses comprised the stable, and below will be found the prices they brought at the sale: Limestone, chestnut horse, 6 years old, by War Dance, $2,500 (bought in); Galway, the winner of the selling race at Jerome Park, chestnut horse, 6 years old, by Concord, $600; Quits, chestnut mare, 6 years old, by imported Lealingaton, $450; Leap Year, 4 years old, by imported Lealingaton, $450; Leap Year, 4 years old, by Virgil, $1,500; bay colt, 2 years old, by Planet, $750; bay colt, 2 years old, by War Dance, $10; bay clt, 2 years old, by Melbourne, Jr., $810; bay colt, 2 years old, by War Dance, $10; bay filly, 2 years old, by War Dance, $110; bay filly, 2 years old, by War Dance, $110; bay filly, 2 years old, by War Dance, $110; bay filly, 2 years old, by Baywood, $180; bay brood mare Flore McFor, an old racer, by Adexander's Lexington, $200; bay brood mare Julia, by Revenue, $180. Five of the colts were sold on their pedigrees alone, as they are at present in Kentucky.

A CHALLENGE.

Last evening THE TRIBUNE received a letter signed by George E. Colson, No. 170 West Monroe street, challenging the winner of the Bauer-Miller match to wrestle for $500 to $1,000. The writer asserts that he can be found at the number above given any evening. Inasmuch as the name mentioned is not found in the directory, no particular faith—that is, not more than is due the ordinary wrestling match—is placed in the letter here.

PEDESTRIANISM.

SHORT STEPS.

A pedestrian named Forrest proposes to attempt to walk fifteen miles in two hours and thirty minutes to-morrow evening in Union Hall, corner Clark and Monroe streets. John Ennis, of this city, has published a hallenge to walk any man in America 100 miles for $350 to $500 a side. He seems to be gunning for Miller, the wrestler, who once offered to walk any Chicago pedestrian.

Henry Schmehl, Jr., a pedestrian of this city, is anxious to walk Weston if a 500-mile match could be brought about. Inasmuch as the latter was in England at last advices, there is very little likelihood of a match at present. It is

O'Leary, the Chicago pedestrian, has arrived in London, and promptly makes himself heard in the following challenge:

Editor Bell's Life—Sin: Having arrived in this country a few days ago, and being desirous of forever settling the question, "Who shall be champian pedestrian of the world" will you be kind enough to give insertion to the following proposition: For a wager of not less than £100, nor in excess of ten times that amount, I hereby agree to walk against any man in England—Vanghan, of Choster, preferred—the following distances: 100, 250, and 500 miles, "best two in three" to be declared the winner. If any pedestrian in this country, or elsewhere, considers the first-named distance too short and the last too long, then I will strike out both, leaving the 250-mile stretch to settle the question of champion ship. Should Weston be desirous of entering into a side-by-side contest of 500 miles with me, I hereby agree to give him a start of twenty-five miles in that distance, and stake two to one on my ability to defeat him, the track to be measured by a competent surveyor, the judges, referees, and timekeepers to be selected from the sporting press of London, the money to be competed for to be placed in the hands of Bell's Life, and, after all necessary expenses are deducted, the winning man to receive two-thirds or all of the winning man to receive two-thirds or all of the winning man to receive two-thirds or all of the winning money—whichever Weston may prefer. Hoping to meet some of your best pedestrians between the hours of 3 and 4 p. m. on Taosday next. at Bell's Life office, believe me, eir, sincerely yours.

GARNERS.

The Clipper sneers at Garnier's acceptance of Dion's challenge in the following characteristic language:

Dion's challenge in the following characteristic language:

More than a year ago Garnier retired from the arena, declaring that he would play no more public games. This resolution he modified, after the need for it had passed by, by restricting his retirement to match games only, leaving himself free to participate in tournaments. Under that resolution he has once forfeited the emblem he now holds, and which he has never won by play, and yet, in defiance of that resolution, he has received the emblem back again by the same process of forfeiture. In other words, he has entered into a match, as challenger, when it suited him to do so, and has declined challenges to matches when it did not suit him to play them. Rather than play Sexton or Siouson, he will now play Joseph Dioz. The chal-

learned that Sexton and Slesson were marching into town. It shuts them both out; and in consenting to play Dion, who has never won a 600-point three-ball game, who has not won a match of any kind in about six years, and who is an opponent not at all to be feared in long games. Garnier is spared the necessity of refusing to play Slosson, as well as Sexton, once again. Could either of these younger players have, by some hocus-nocus, squeezed in a challenge. Garnier would probably have braced himself back upon his announced retrement of upwards of a year ago, for he would be apt to recollect, however lightly he may hold Slosson, that Sexton has never yet failed to beat him in a long game.

aon, that Sexton has never a long game.

To properly appreciate this one must know that Garnier belongs to another paper than the Cupper, and uses somebody clse's tables than those at present puffed by the Clipper. LA CROSSE.

Special Dispatch to The Pribune.

TOBORTO, Oct. 14.—The in crosse match for the championship of the world took place here to-day between the Shamrock Club, of Montreal, and Toronto Club. Twelve thousand people were present. The interest and excitement throughout were intense. The Shamrocks were the favorites, and sold in the pools at 10. were the favorites, and sold in the pools at 10 to 8. The Torontos won the first game in nineteen and-a-half minutes. The next two heats were decided no game. The second game, which occupied one hour, was won by the Shamrocks. The next and third game was won by Torontos, in six-and-a-half minutes. Darkness coming on the match was declared a draw, the Torontos winning two games and the Shamrocks one, the Torontos retaining the championship.

Mr. J. Jenn, of London, has written to several American sporting papers that a person named Cole is authorized to match somebody, at present in doubt, against Capt. Bogardus at trapshooting. The letter is wonderfully indefinite, and it is fair to prophesy that nothing but talk will come of it.

To the Editor of The Tribune. Cuicago, Oct. 14.—Having noticed in your columns an article which conveyed the impression that there was not, and has not been, a free Homospathic Dispensary in this city, I beg leave to state the following facts: The Dispensary connected with the Hahnemann Hospital was organized and opened nineteen years ago last April. Since that time it has never been closed to the sick and poor, and more than 100,000 free prescriptions have been made. Medical and surgical treatment and the necessary medicines have always been given without charge. The dispensary, located at 287 and 289 Cottage Grove avenue, is open every day, is in charge of a competent corps of physicians and surgeons, and is now averaging 600 prescriptions every month. This institution has always depended upon the charity of the friends of homeopathy in this city and vicinity for its support. It must and will continue to do so in the future. Very respectfully,

Decline in Building in New York.

The great decline in the building business cannot fail to be noticed by every observer who is familiar with the past of New York. During the year no large edifices have been commenced in any part of the city. For the first time in a long period, Broadway is unobstructed by mounds of building materials. This is a gain to stage-drivers and pedestrians, but a great loss to a trade formerly most prosperous in this metropolis. Buildings are still going up in the side streets, but they are mostly modest structures for residences, cheap in cost, and more likely to be rented at a profit than the stately brown-stone fronts of former days. In this class of enterprise there is no great failing off from last year. Wages and the cost of materials are now much lower than in 1873-74, and the owners of large estates still think they can do nothing better than to improve their property gradually by freeting cheap and desirable houses. Their calculations are probably not far out of the way. There will always be a fair demand for residences on this island, but it will be some time before we again see the rents up to pecent figures.

We may now look for a long panse in the work of beautifying the city with those grand, imposing piles which have been reared within the last five years on Broadway. Ambitious owners have found, to their cost, that such investments de not pay.—New York Journal of Commerce. Decline in Building in New York.

> LOVE-LIGHT. Beyond all lights that ever shone On land or glittering sea. The love-light shining in your eyes The fairest seems to me.

Quickly to meet the sunbeam's kiss The rose with beauty glows; Swiftly beneath your tender glance My warm blood comes and goes.

If the sun sees an answering smile
On land or glancing wave,
Can you not see in my eyes, dear,

WOMEN IN ITALY. Italy first, toward the close of the Middle Ages, permitted to woman the free exercise of distinguished talents (says the New York Tydwaw). Olympia Morata lectured publicly in Ferrara, the universities of Padus and Bologna gave chairs to female professors, and the study of medicine, the higher mathematics, and classic literature was open to the sex. Shakspeare's Portia is less than a full type of the accomblished Italian woman of that day. At this moment, three or four hundred years later, Germany, France, and even England are not much in advance of the public sentiment which then accepted such a recognition of woman's capacity; while no modern university has ventured to go so far. Already, in the present general development of Italy, the women are preparing to claim their ancient privileges. A new intellectual activity is stirring in the sex; not only in literature and art, also in politics and sociology, we are beginning to hear softer voices. The popular sympathy with the martyred Bulgarians, which expresses itself through immense mass meetings in Rome and Naples, no less than in London and Giasgow, has given the Italian women an opportunity which some of them have instantly seized. It is true, indeed, that the Italian poetess, Signora Fua-Fusinato, has frequently made brief addresses before societies; but we cannot recall any previous instance of a woman addressing a great assembled for the Apolio Theatre, on the 8d ult., the Countess Chiocci appeared upon the platform, and presented a written andress, which she requested to have published with the proceedings of the meeting. It was accepted, and the address would have been willingly heard by the autience, had the Countess not lost her courage.

A week afterward an immerse multitude assembled in the strium of the monastery of Santa Maria la Nova, in Naples. Thousands upon thousands of all classes of the people were present. She took the nearest seat with a nod to all and a bewitching smile: six young men bowed and stood up, and imagined himself a martyr. She carried a beautiful child in her arms, and it was very playful. One young man thought she was its aunt, and two others were quite positive she was not its mother. Meanwhile 'the child amused itself. It climbed, and crowed, and haughed, and played, and the lady laughed and petted it. One of the young men, a sacrilegious wretch, commenced humming, "I wish I was a baby," when the child, inking in a playful mood, knocked a handkerchief from the lady's lap on the floor. There were four of the young men who made a simultaneous dive for the muslin, and two got it; they came up smiling, neither willing to relax his grasp, and two hands were extended toward the fair one. An old lady on the opposite side tittered, and the young lady held the child in front of her face and blushed. The young men looked at each other and then at the — Their mouths and eyes opened; each handed it to the other; something fell upon the floor, and the two young men silently departed from the car. The other young men looked out of the windows, and somebody whimpered, "It wasn't a handkerchief."

seem to have a great fondness for carrying gold Strangers often remark that Detroit ladies seem to have a great fondness for carrying gold watches, and any person walking ten blocks on Woodward or Jefferson avenues will see, if it is a fine day, at least 100 ladies with gold chains hanging down to the watch pocket. But, is the watch there? On a Woodward avenue car yesterday there were half a dozen ladiesjand only one gentieman. Satan must have put him up to do a mean thing. Taking out his watch he looked at it, shook it, sighed heavily, and sald: "Ought to have been cleaned a week ago. Will you please give me the time?"

The lady addressed had on a magnificent chain, but she blushed, half rose, sat down again, and whispered:

"My—my watch is—is out of order."

"You have the time, perhaps?" he asked of the next.

"Y-yes, sir—it's 10 o'clock," she replied, looking out of the window.

"Does your time agree with that?" he asked of the third.

"I believe so," she coldly replied, though she well knew that her chain was pinned to her dress.

"And what does your watch say?" he smilingly asked of the fourth.

"It's a little slow, I think," she answered, drawing her shawl closer.

The fifth lady had a watch, and a fine one, too. She drew it out, made as much display as possible, and called out:

"Ten minutes after eleven!"

The gentleman smiled, the other four ladies bit their lips and scowled, and the driver shook up the lines and called out:

"Go on, now, you old raw-bones!"—Detroit Free-Press.

WANTS TO MARRY.

A Southern Barkis is willin'—willin' to do anything except advertise in a country paper and avail himself of postal facilities. He has written a love-letter, and, instead of hiding it in the hollow of a tree, or in a hole in a mossy wall, or under a brick in the garden, what does he do but stiff into a cotton-bale and then ship it to market. It was directed "To anyone who finds this note," and fell into the hands of a staid, annormantic merchant in Hawkin-wille, Ga. "I want to marry," quoth Barkis. "Am but It years old. sign of emigrants from over the great plains. Everybody went down there, and a shout went up when an actual, bona fide dress was discovered fluttering in the wind. The male emigrant was visible. The miners said: "Fetch her out!" He said: "It is my wife, gentlemen; she is sick; we have been robbed of money, provisions, and everything by the Indians—we want to rest." "Fetch her out!" That was the only reply. He did "fetch her out!" and they swung their hats and set up three rousing cheers and a tiger; and they crowded around, and gazed at her, and touched her dress, and listened to a memory rather than at a present reality; and then they collected $2,500 in gold and gave it to the man, and swung their hats again and gave three more cheers, and went home satisfied.

street returned bome the other evening with a copy of the Register, and in it he discovered the following item:

"Somehow a magnificent girl always marries an insignificant whiflet of a man, and a very handsome fellow gets hold of an ugiv woman."

"There's a good deal in that," said A.—.

"I shouldn't wonder if there was," says Mrs.

"Now, for instance," said A—, "you used "Now, for instance," said A.—, "you used to call me handsome."

"Yes," said Mrs. A.—, "I know I did; but you see I had to flatter you."

"Do you mean to call me an insignificant whiffet, madam?"

"No, sir; I only want to say that you used to call me a magnificent girl."

"I know I did; but, confound you, a handsome man has to compliment a homely woman."

Then he went out on the back stoop and meditated on the trials of life.—Newark Register.

PRISON VS. MARRIED LIFE.

PRISON VS. MARRIED LIFE.

In a trial of a divorce case recently in the Detroit Superior Court, the following letter to the Judge was introduced in evidence, forming a unique piece of documentary testimony:

Jackson Prison, June 11, 1878.—The Hon.
Judge Cochrane—Dana Sir: I take this opportunity to inform you that I had a subpems served on me to be in court on the 22d of June, this month: that my wife has applied for a divorce. I don't know on what grounds she has applied, but I hope and trust from the bottom of my heart that your Honor will be kind enough to grant it to her, as I am positive that we never could be reconciled to each other again, as God knows I never had a day's lack from the first of our acquaintance.

Although I am here in prison. wearing the convict's stripes, it would make me a happier man to hear that we were divorced than for me to have a pardon sent to me for my liberty from this prison.

Praying that your Honor will grant it to her, Respectfully and truly yours.

THE DANGER OF IGNORANCE. A gentleman proceeding leisurely along Mun-son street, Saturday afternoon (says the Dan-bury News), heard groans proceed from the rear of a house. He stepped back there to see if he could be of help to any one in distress, when he could be of help to any one in distress, when he met with a most singular spectacle. A very large man, short in the neck and red in the face, was on his back on the grass, while a woman with sharp features of an acid cast was holding him down by his collar.

"What on earth is the matter?" cried the astonished stranger.

"Nothin's the matter," retorted the woman, in a sharp voice. "Only the old fool thinks he knows what kind of ascarf I shall wear, an' I'm going to show him he don't; an' outsiders better look out for their own hair."

The stranger precipitately retired, deeply affected by the progression of the age.

A MIDDLE-AGED WOMAN. A MIDDLE-AGED WOMAN.

In a recent case before the English Court of Chancery, the plaintiff asked to be relieved from a bond which he had given, on account of his incapacity, he being 90 years of age. The Court, having learned the great age of the plaintiff, expressed a desire to learn the age of the defendant,—Miss Miller, a maiden lady,—when the following proceedings took place:

Mr. Glasse, Q. C., for Miss Miller, said she was in court, and would, no doubt, heraelf give the answer to that question.

The Vice-Chancellor said—Miss Miller, you are, I believe, the defendant in this case. What is your age!

The defendant replied—Middle-age, if it please your lordship. [Laughter.]
The Vice-Chancellor—I mean how old are you?
The defendant—Fifty, if your lordship pleases.

Mention was made in the law columns yesterday of a suit brought by F. E. Hinckley against the Freis Presse Printing Company et al. for $18,000. The News Freis Presse of yesterday says that the plaintiff has nothing due him except a month's rent due from the old Freis Presse, which was sold out at Sheriff's sale in order to satisfy some claims against it by Mr. Hinckley. The German-American Publishing Company, the paper says, never used the building, and naturally he has no claims against it. According to the Freis Presse this bill is merely an attack to injure the credit of the paper.

The Chicago Coal Exchange had a meeting yesterday afternoon in their rooms on the northwest corner of LaSalle and Washington streets, President Waldron presiding. Migutes of the previous meeting were read and approved. when it was announced that the object of the gathering was the discussion of the practicability of raising the price of Brier Hill and Erie bituminous coals. The Chair said that he understood that the Wilmington coal-dealers and those of the Indiana block coal were desirous of raising the price about 50 cents per ton. Several opinions were expressed to the end that, if the price of one variety was raised, the prices of all should be proportionately increased. There being not enough members present to warrant any action, the meeting adjourned. The Secretary, Maj. Kirkland, presented the following figures showing the lake receipts of coal since May 1, 1876, and comparative figures: From May 1 to Oct. 14, 1876, 240,642 tons of anthracite and 231, 420 tons of bituminous; during the same time in 1875 the receipts were 324,648 tons of anthracite and 204,419 of bituminous.

HEAVY FAILURE.

SUSPENSION OF THE HOUSE OF FRANK STURGE An ugly rumor was in circulation yesterday norning to the effect that Frank Sturges & Co. the well-known dealers in metals, had failed. The rumor received very little credence from the fact that the house has always stood well, and from the other fact, that its head is known to possess a considerable amount of property of various kinds easily convertible into cash. A TRIBUNE reporter, however, inspired with a desire to get at the bottom facts, started out on his mission of inquiry, and succeeded in finding Mr. Sturges in his office on Lake street.

Introducing himself, the reporter said: "I have heard that you have failed to-day. Is that true!"
"I haven't anything to say," was the short, but pleasant enough, response.
"THE TRIBUNE and the public would like to know what there is in this rumor," urged the know what there is in this rumor," urged the reporter.

"You must excuse me," was the resolute reply, "I don't wish to say anything to-day."
The reporter, after further ineffectual attempts, gave it up, and took a walk around among the iron-men.

William Blair & Co., on Lake street, had heard of the rumor, but did not think the trouble amounted to anything more than a temporary suspension. They considered that the firm would ask an extension and go on. They had an idea that the nouse was troubled with its country collections, which all the iron firms here have found to be very slow of late. But they scouted the idea that it was a clear case of failure, and thought everything would be all right in a few days, as Mr. Sturges had a great deal of property which could be converted into ready money.

S. D. Kimbark had not heard the rumor, and had nothing to say anyway.

S. D. Kimbark had not heard the rumor, and had nothing to say anyway.

John V. Ayer & Sons had not heard it, either, and were considerably surprised. After the first surprise, they said they didn't believe it. The house had an established reputation, and if there was any trouble at all, it would be only temporary. As soon as collections got better, everything would be all right. The idea of certain, irremediable failure was something to be dismissed at once as incorrect.

The reporter next called upon Mr. George Stugges, President of the Northwestern National Bank, and was rewarded by something more like positive information. The reporter stated that he had called on his brother, Frank, who had declined to say anything, and he had therefore sought him, to ascertain what truth there was in the report.

"Those are the facts," replied Mr. Sturges.

"When did this occur!" asked the questioner.

"Frank suspended payments three or four days ago."

"Do you know the reasons for the failure!"

"It's the old fire trouble. You remember he compromised with his creditors after the fire for 50 cents on the dollar. Since then he has undertaken to pay them all in full, and has succeeded in paying quite a number of them. The result is that he now finds himself hard up."

"Don't you think he will pull through,"

"Don't you think he will pull through, though, ultimately!"

"Really, I don't know. It's pretty hard to though, ultimately?"

"Really, I don't know. It's pretty hard to say."

"Do you know for what amount he failed?"

"No, I don't know that, either. I told him if $100,000 would see him through I would become responsible for that amount myseif. But he wouldn't take it."

"Did he say it wasn't enough?"

"Yes, he failed for a larger amount thanthat, but I don't know just how much."

"The iron firms here seemed to think the trouble would only be temporary."

"I wish it were so, but I'm afraid it's much worse." And so the conversation terminated. Mr. Frank Sturges' partner is Mr. William S. Potwin. The firm is really known as the Chicago Stamping Works, the house having been merged into a stock company during the past few months. The failure will cause general surprise, both here and elsewhere, and hot a little sympathey for the unfortunate firm. The extent of the failure is not definitely known, but report puts it at $50,000. The firm will issue a card on Monday to their creditors, who are mostly in the East.

The assets are said to be valuable, but heavily incumbered. They include the property corner of Harrison and Peoria streets, worth $100,000, and 300 acres of land west of the city limits worth $300 an acre, but also mortgaged. It is said that $97,000 is due to the Northwestern Bank.

ALEXANDER SULLIVAN. HE WILL BE TRIED ON MONDAY BRFORE JUDGE M'ALLISTER. Alexander Sullivan case was heard in the Criminal Court yesterday morning. The prisoner was in court attended by his attorneys. The first proceeding was the reading of the following petition by Mr. Moran, one of the attor-ing petition by Mr. Moran, one of the attorneys:

The petitioner, Alexander Sullivan, defendant in the above entitled cause, respectfully represents to the Judge of said Court, holding Court at this time, that he fears that he will not receive a fair and impartial trial in the above entitled cause, if tried before the Judge of said Court now holding and presiding at said Court, because the said Judge thereof is prejudiced against him. That the same state of facts applies to the Hons. John A. Jameson, Samuel M. Moore, William W. Farwell, Erastus S. Williams, John G. Rogers, and Henry Booth, also Judges of Court, and that he fears that he will not receive a fair and impartial trial, if tired before any of said Judges, on account of the prejudice of each and every one of said Judges against him. That an actual knowledge of such prejudice, as stated aforesaid, did not come to petitioner until the 11th day of October, 1876, and that the cause for which this change of venue is asked has arisen and has come to his knowledge since the last term of this Court, to wit, the 11th day of October, 1870.

That H. G. Pulling and Frederick Grimm, making the amexed and accempanying affidavit, are respectable persons and reputable residents of the County of Cook, and are not of kin or counsel to restificate.

County of Cook, and are not of an are consisted petitioner.

Petitioner therefore prays for a change of venue in this cause pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided.

ALEXANDER SULLIVAN.

The joint affidavit of Pulling and Grimm also averred that the Judges named in the petition are so prejudiced that the prisoner could not have a fair and impartial trial.

The Court granted the change prayed, remarking that he supposed the disposition of the defeudant was to be tried before Judge McAllister, and the order was so made. If McAllister can get away from his Court the trial will commence to-morrow morning.

THE NORTHEASTER.

A ROUGH TIME ON THE LAKE.

A northeaster of unusual violence visited this section about 2 o'clock and continues with unabating fury at the present writing. The lake is fearfully rough, and the vessels which went out during the last twenty-four hours had all to come back. A number of the returning crafts suffered damage to their sails, rigging, and upper works, but no serious disaster has so far been reported. Mr. C. Kallstrom, the faithful and efficient keeper of the Crib, sent in the following dispatch yesterday morning:

Crib, Oct. 14,—A very heavy storm arose this morning at 2 o'clock, and has continued rising up to time of writing. The wind is blowing from the northeast at the rate of sixty-five miles per hour, and is rising higher. The sea is ranning twelve feet high. There are eight vessels in sight coming in, but no wrecks as yet. The temperatures are:

Air, 42 degrees; water, 52. Barometer is 29:35, rising very fast. All is O. K. out here, but very noisy.

rising very fast. All is O. K. out here, but very noisy.

Among the vessels which suffered from the gale were the following: The schooner Crossthwaite, which left here on Friday for Buffalo, returned yesterday afternoon, having been handled very roughly by the furious waves. Her sails were split and her bulwarks stove in. She had two feet of water in her hold, and had to be taken to the elevator to have her cargo taken out. It is feared that much of her cargo of corn is damaged. The schooner San Jacinto was overtaken by the gale while on her way to Michigan City with a cargo of lumber. She was so shaken up that she commenced to leak, and had to come back to go into dry-dock. The propeller City of Madison sprang a leak and damaged her rudderstock. She has gone into one of the docks of the Chicago Dry-Doca Company.

The schooner O. M. Bond had her sails split. The Lottie Wolf, which was ashore at Beaver Harbor, arrived here vesterday afternoon in tow of the wrecking-tug Crusader. She is scriously damaged, and leaking badly. The propellers Oswegatchie, Colin Campbell, and Arabia were also compelled to return on account of the gale, but are not damaged.

PHILOSOPHICAL SOCIETY. WAS MAN CONTEMPORARY WITH THE GLACIERS lecture-hall on the corner of Washington and lecture-hall on the corner of Washington and State streets last evening to listen to an address by Prof. J. W. Clark, of the Chicago University, on "Man on This Continent; Was He Contemporary with the Glaciers!"

The subject of man's antiquity, the speaker said, had been before discussed by him in this Society. Since then he had studied further in the South, and had gathered more material. Qualified observers in the field had been few, and large fields yet remained for investigation. The forces of nature making great changes in the contour of the earth were little understood. There were but few who had opportunity to go outside the orthodox territory, and learn something of the little speek of dust on which they were spending their years. Investigation of the subject had always been ostracism. To day it broke cover from the shade of secrecy, and stood forth in the light of discovery. The mute but eloquent whispers of nature were coming laden with truth. Among them was one idea that harmony was older than time. Antiquarian but eloquent whispers of nature were coming laden with truth. Among them was one idea that harmony was older than time. Antiquarian research had given no resting-place in beginning man's history. He assumed that man coexisted on this continent previous to its glaciation. The time could not be less, measured by geological data, than 200,000 years. He would notice a few reasons for so believing. The forces which brought about the destruction and construction of rocks should first engage their attention. Thoughtful observations told that if they could reduce a thousand years to a day, the audience would live to see the hardest rocks dissolve. An agency in the dissolution was carbonic acid gas. Feldspar, a constituent of granite rocks, was peculiarly subject to the effects of this gas, which had frequently found it at a depth of thirty feet in France and reduced it to gravel. What became of the decomposed feldspar? Watch the turbulent streams rushing down from the granite rocks. They were filled with a white substance, which the people had utilized in making porcelain. Denudation was almost as frequent as decomposition. In Georgia he had seen the denuding forces very prevalent. Great ravines, forty or fifty feet, had been washed out of the solid granite. This phenomenon was not found noth of the south limit of the glaciers. Water holding carbonic gas washed out the rocks, giving us mammoth caves. This gas was so ubiquitous that we could not take a glass of sparkling water from river or spring without finding in it a portion of lime.

ALUMINA was another factor of earths' changes.

do not the rocks, giving us mammoth caves. This gas was so ubiquitous that we could not take a glass of sparkling water from river or spring without finding in it a portion of lime.

ALUMINA:

was another factor of earths' changes. Thousands of insects died and accumulated at the bottom of the sea. The red clay soil of the South could be shipped off and there would be found granite with layers of alumina. Indubitable evidence was found that in France the glaciers scooped off hills from the place where rest the ruins of man's work. There the period of glaciers had been shown to be 200,000 years. On this continent still better evidence was found. In our few years one could see little change in the landscape, yet the rocks showed that millions of years could have passed since man lived here. Greenland once harbored forests of magnolia, and in Nebraska lived camels and other animals of the torrid zone. It seemed that after that period the continent began to cool. North of Lake Superior the earth sank 1,000 feet below the level it occupied to-day under the pressure of the leebergs. Many rocks would be lifted and carried from the region north of Lake Superior to the south of Illinois, while the rocks over which the glacials passed would be smoothed and striated. Not only that, but even the earth of our prairies had been induced to migrate hundreds of miles from its native bed.

The time absolute since man dwelt on the continent cannot be determined, but the time relative. What a vast migration it must have been for the glaciers! They probably moved almost imperceptibly,—perhaps five or six miles a century. How long must it have taken for this stupendous mass of fee to form, depending upon the same sources which we now had! How long must it have taken merely for the earth to depress 1,000 feet, as it did! Certainly not less than 40,000 years. Then it must have been for the glaciers in the the present state of investigation, could one dare to limit the existence of man! The spaker claimed to have discoverers found, wit

A Recent Grand Mesalliance in France.

The Romance of Saim-Salm-Street-Dogs in Stamboul.

A Saintly Swindler --- Curious Trade --Jealousy in High Places.

A GRAND MESALLIANCE. We published some time ago (says the New York World) a wonderful account from a Paris paper of the superb trousseau purchased for herself by a great Parisian heiress, Mile. Le Jeune, who was about to marry a Prince of the was a thing to drive milliners mad and to break the hearts of ambitious spinsters all the world over, with its dozens of thousand-dollar handkerchiefs, its sheets half covered with em-broidery and lace, its coroneted splendors of all sorts and kinds. The marriage took place at Epinay on the 22d of September, and on the next day the Paris Figaro contained an account of the nuptials, in the course of which it observed, "the guests were not numerous; but we observed among those present the Countess of Mercy-Argenteau and the Princess Cartoriska, sisters of the groom, both in expectations and the counters of the groom, both in expectations are the counters. quisite tollettes, together with many other quisite toilettes, together with many other members of the house of Chimay." Two days afterward the Figaro published a letter in which, after citing the passage we have just quoted, the Prince of Caraman-Chimay, the head of the great family aforesaid, requested the editor of Figaro to be good enough to correct his statement, and to inform mankind in general that, "with the exception of the two sisters of the bridegroom, no member whatever of the house of Chimay was present at this marriage."

All of which reads a little oddly in Republican France, and in this nineteenth century; but there is a story behind it all which is worth telling, inasmuch as it may be fairly set down as one of those not very uncommon romances of real life which throw the fiction of professed story-tellers quite into the shade.

one of those not very uncommon romances of real life which throw the fiction of professed story-teliers quite into the shade.

The princely house of Caraman-Chimay, as we have said, is one of the oldest and most flourishing of the noble families of Belgium and of France. Its head, the author of the letter above cited, Joseph de Riquet, Prince of Caraman-Chimay and Governor of the Belgian Province of Hainault, is the cousin of the nobleman whose wedding with the Parisian heiress he so emphatically denies having countenanced by his august presence, and the brother of the unlucky Princess de Bauffremont, whose interminable duel with her first husband, from whom she was divorced, and whose vain efforts to get the legitimacy of her second marriage with the Roumanian Prince Bibesco acknowledged by the French courts have from time to time sent her name and history traveling through the scandalous chronicles of Christendom for several years past. His cousin's objectionable bride, Mile. Le Jeune, has long occupied with her mother one of the finest residences in the most aristocratic quarter of Paris, and she is reputted to have inherited in her own jectionable bride, Mile. Le Jeune, has long occupied with her mother one of the finest residences in the most aristocratic quarter of Paris, and she is reputed to have inherited in her own right from her father's fortune of some $8,000,000 of francs, to which as much more will be added upon the death of her mother. She is young, more than ordinarily good-looking, highly educated, and, as her magnificence in the way of a trousseau sufficiently proves, of tastes gorgeous enough for the bride of a Hindoo rajah, not to speak of a Belgian Prince. But the history of her fortune is as dark as the fortune itself is splendid, and though the mother of the Prince of CaramanChimay himself was the daughter of a simple citizen by the name of Pflaprat, he doubtless feels it due to his illustrious ancestors that he should draw the line somewhere, particularly when he draws it against the ignoble millions which have been matrimonially acquired, not by himself but by his cousin.

In the troubled days of the First Consulate, when society in France was still rocking and seething under the stress of the great revolution, there lived in Paris two obscure men, brothers, by the name of Michel, who drove a dark and doubtful trade as miscellaneous pawnbrokers and money-lenders. In the course of business they came into relations with a rich client who put into their hands valuable effects and papers to a considerable amount, and who not long afterwards most unaccountably disappeared. The brothers thereupon began to prosper, and their prosperity soon began to breed suspicions, as there was little in their characters to propitiate good will or inspire onfidence. Whispers went about as to the mysterious client and his mysterious cellpse, and these whispers eventually led to legal proceedings. How these proceedings came to be suspended was never clearly known, and,
as France had other matters then to occurv her will or inspire confidence. Whispers went about as to the mysterious client and his mysterious client and his mysterious client and this mysterious client and the mysterious client and the mysterious client and the mysterious contractors and bankers under the First Empire, all that was left in a few years' time either of the whispers, the suspicious, or the proceedings was the unpleasant sobriquet of Michel the Assassin, which cliung to the elder and the least popular of the two. Both were misers, and after the death of the younger the elder became more than ever a recluse and a devotee of his cash-box. When at last he died, some quarter of a century ago or more, it came to light that he had one son, to whom he bequeathed a great fortune. This son took the name of Marc Leguene. He was well educated, though by no means remarkable for his intelligence, and shortly after coming of age he contrived to get himself disagreeably involved with a notorious woman in Paris, upon whom he lavished his money in such an amazing manner that the intervention of the law was at last called in to put a stop to it. This experience sent him to an asylum; and when he emerged from it he went to Belgium, and there, like the "Lord of Barleigh" in the poein, disguising himself as a poor artist. or something of the sort, woocd and won a simple girl of the people, whom he honorably married. He took her some time afterwards to Paris and there displayed himself to her astounded eyes in his true colors as a millionnaire and the master of a princely household. She took her sudden fortune quietly and placifyl enough, changed her simple habits but little or not at all, and when her husband, after a few years, died, devoted herself to bringing un her only daughter. This is the young lady of the embroideries, laces, and the diamonds, who has now been publicly excommunicated by her husband's princely cousin as a "blot upon the 'scutcheon'" of Caraman-thimay. Whether the Prince Alphonse, her spouse, will feel called upon to efface in the blood of al

Olive Logan writes from London to the New York Graphic: "A person just married whose name is familiar to certain New York circles is the Princess Agnes de Salm-Salm, who has just espoused the younger son of an English Lord, Mr. Charles Heneage, attache of Legation at Bonn. It is now about ten years since the Priness made her debut in New York society, where she was very well received in despite of a very unpleasant circumstance, namely, the excessive penury of her titled husband. They were poor! Well, it is difficult to understand how they lived at all, for I believe the Prince Well, it is difficult to understand how they lived at all, for I believe the Prince had absolutely no income whatever. I visited them frequently at their lodgings in Houston street. They had but one room, the bed standing in an alcove and partly concealed by a curtain, and such furniture as was visible was of the poorest description. Where and when they took their repasts when they were not invited out was something of a mystery in those days when cheap restaurants in New York were not so well conducted nor sovespectably patronized as they are at present. The Princess was a winning creature, excessively comme if faut, and very dignified, in spite of the embarassing situation in which their lack of fortune placed her.

"Of Prince Salm-Salm's right to the title he bore there was never a shadow of doubt. We have had a good many Count de Friseurs and Duc de Charcuteries in New York, but Salm-Salm was a genuine Austrian noble who had squandered his patrimony before coming of age, and who sought our shores in the hope of finding that golden fieece we are all looking for. The first thing he found was this very charming woman, who was willing to exchange her name and position were before marriage was a question which New York gossipe tried in many ways to solve. I believe the fact is undoubted that she has been before the public, but whether she was, as many alleged, a circus rider, I cannot say. Whatever her social status was before marrying Salm-Salm, she proved herself a noble, affectionate, and talented wife to him, and bore her title in fully as Princely a way as he did his. By her exertions, and her persuasions of prominent officials in Washington, she obtained a command for Salm-Salm during the War. He was a very good officer, but not a brilliant one, and when the War ceased and Brigadier-Generals returned to their duties in the way of selling sanded sugar, the Prince had to look out for another 'sit."

"Soon after that Maximilian's troubles in Mexico came about, and again the Salm-Salms were heard of as great adherents of Maximilian. The bright lady had settled a plan to rescue Maximilian from Juarez's clutches, which, if it had been successful, would have made her name immortal. If failed, frightfully, and the Princess' powers of persuasion had now to be exerted to the utmost to obtain her husband's pardon from the cruel tyrant Juarez. It was granted on condition that she and her husband should at once leave the country—an invitation they were only to giad to avail themselves of. They made for Austria at once, and were well received by the Emperor Franz Josef, who, though he was not on good terms with his brother Maximilian when he departed for Mexico, yet was naturally so touched by his pitiful death that he appreciated the efforts made by the Salm-Salms to avert it.

"When the Franco-Prussian war was proclaimed Salm-Salm, with the recommendations to the German authorities he was now able to obtain, had no difficulty in getting the command of a German corps Garnes. He was killed at one of the earliest battles, and his wife went to the front and by the exercise again of her persistent and energetic qualities succeeded in obtaining possession of her husband's remains, which she caused to be injerred with loving ceremonies.

"At this period she seems to have been again which she caused to be injected to ceremonies.

"At this period she seems to have been again in a most impecunious position, which was happily relieved by the opportune but unexpected death of an uncle who bequeathed her a considerable fortune as a token of his satisfaction in her having obtained the title which, in marrying Mr. Heneage, she completely surrenders; becoming plain 'Mrs.' like any ordinary married woman.

becoming plain 'Mrs.' like any ordinary married woman.

"The Princess Salm-Salm is not without claims to literary distinction. She has just published a volume entitled 'Ten Years of My Life,' andbad previously compiled her deceased husband's memoirs. She is a woman about 40 years old now, I judge, though she may be younger. Her hair is white and her beauty laded; but her spirit is as indomitable as ever, and before wedding Mr. Heneage she made a vow to renew in his behalf those energetic endeavors to obtain his diplomatic advancement, which brought Prince Salm-Salm such military success as he enjoyed. She looked very charming on her wedding day, clad in pale gray silk. with a profusion of rich lace. Many persons of great distinction sat down to the wedding breakfast, and a telegram of congratulation was read from the Emperor William. Mr. Heneage is a splendid specimen of manly beauty, both as regards face and form.

ere this, the marriage of a certain British nobleman to a young and beautiful New York girl, whose pater caused a good many pockets to shrink at his great financial Hell (late burst-up last summer, but the pleasant duty remains undemanded for the present. Trust me to chronicle it promptly when it comes.

Apropos de bottes, have you heard the rumor that a certain British Earl has been threatened with a breach of promise suit, and that the matter has been compromised by the payment of heavy damages? Who can this be, I wonder?

Friends of the Earl of Rosebery—Sam Ward, for instance, to whom his Lordship wrote some touching laudatory stanzas, which were, if I mistake not, published in the Graphic—will be pleased to hear that her Majesty bade this cultured and witty British noble to dine with her the other day when she visited Edinburg to unveil the statue of the Prince Consort. His Lordship's ancestral estates are near Edinburg.

STAMBOUL STREET-DOGS. A Constantinople correspondent of the Scots-man writes as follows: "No abundance of food, no kind treatment, will induce them to remain within doors, and the brutes greatly prefer the scarcity of food, the bitter cold of the winter, the suffocating heat of the summer, to the loss of their liberty. They also rebel against all teaching or training, and neither blows nor caresses will get anything out of against all teaching or training and netter blows nor caresses will get anything out of them in that way. However, I know of several self-taught dogs doing very clever things. To begin with, I believe that the dogs at the railway, unlike the Turks, have become in some mysterious way acquainted with the company's timetables, for these brutes, who pass the whole day in summer under the carriages for the sake of the shade, and under the engines in winter for the sake of the heat, seem to know exactly the hour of the departure of the trains, for shortly before the fixed hour you may see them emerging from under the carriages, and, if there be any more laxily disposed than the rest, the station-master's signal for departure, which is given by the German word 'gertig' (ready), sends them off scampering in all directions. Another curious specimen of the self-taught street-dog is the begging dog of Galata Bridge, well known to the English Colony of Kadikeni. This dog is always to be found on the bridge of the landing steps of the Kadikeni steamer. As soon as it spies a foreigner, especially an Englishman, for whom it seems to have a great regard, it will kneel down on its fore paws and, gently laving its head on your boots, give you first an imploring look and then turn and ook fixedly at some street vendor of bread, or 'Smit's' biscuits, of whom numbers are ai-ways loitering near the landing steps of the

A SAINTLY SWINDLER.

Something new and remarkable in the way of swindling has just come before the Assizes of the Manche, France. The prisoner was a man named Girod, aged 64, a meek and oily character of monastic aspect and wearing blue spectacles. In the course of his checkered career he had made the acquaintance of several prisons, and at the end of 1873, after having served eighteen months on the treadmill for embezzlement, he found himself once more free. The clerical agitation being rampant, he thought he might turn it to account. His modus operandi was very simple. He went to a monastery and declared that he was tired of the world and its vanities. He said he possessed property at Turin worth several thousand pounds, which he desired to make over to the community, but unfortunately there was a little mortgage which must be cleared off first of all. The father superior, confident in the sincerity of the repentant sinner, advanced the sum to pay off the mortgage, and sent one of the monks with him to arrange the sale of the property and the entrance of the convert into the monastery. Arrived at Turin Girod easily managed to get rid of his companion, and nothing more was heard of the prisoner succeeded in swindling $200 out of the Abbey of Soligny-la-Trappe, $300 out of the Monastery of Sept-Fons, $120 out of the Missionary fathers of Lourdes, $350 out of the Missionary fathers of Lourdes, $450 out of the missionary fathers of Lourdes, $450 out of the Mariat Brothers, of Besahcon. But the pitcher went to the well too often. The monastic confraternity were aroused by these repeated deceptions, and a warning was sent round to the various monasteries. The consequence was that when the meek and repentant Girod presented himself with his old story to the Trappist Brothers, of Britquebec, he was caught in his own trap, and handed over to the police.

A CUBIOUS TRADE.

One often heave of the curious trades which are exercised in Paris (says a letter to the Phil-A SAINTLY SWINDLER.

One often hears of the curious trades which are exercised in Paris (says a letter to the Philadelphia Telegraph), and a novel one of these was brought to light by a terrible accident which happened in this city a short time ago. The sufferer, M. X—, was by profession a cleaner of shells, not, be it understood, of the missiles fired by the contending armies of the war of 1870, quantities of which still exist, buried in the earth or imbedded in walls or earthworks. M. X—'s trade was to clean out these relics of the war so that they could be these relics of the war so that they could kept as curiosities without danger or elemounted as clocks, a very favorite form of uniting them. One day a servant brought his one to clean which her master had found it some part of his grounds. M. X—— set to work, and, probably rendered careles by long practice, he so managed the matter that the shell exploded in his hands. The poor man himself was blown to pieces, his house was almost entirely demoilished, and several persons in the neighborhood were severely injured. Considering the frightful risk that it now seems he must have run continually, the price he asked for his work was not large, $1 being the sum demanded for cleaning each obus. Tragic as was this incident, it had an odd sequel. The other night, when the guardians of the Palais Royal were going their rounds peparatory to closing the garden, they discovered under one of the benches a big black object, which, on examination, proved to be an obus in a very perfect and highly destructive condition. It had evidently been deposited there by some person, who, scared by the recent examinator, had wished to get rid of so dangerous a curiosity. It was forwarded at once to the Arsenal. Why its terrified owner had not disposed of it by quietly dropping it into the Seine on some dark night is rather a puzzling question.

JEALOUSY IN HIGH PLACES. JEALOUSY IN HIGH PLACES.

An incident which occurred here a few years ago (says a London letter) may, perhaps, serve to illustrate the jealousy which exists upon the question of precedence among the different Ambaseadors. Musurus Pasha had the misfortune to lose his wife, who died at a ball given by the Prince of Wales. At the first "drawing-room," or reception, held by the Queen after this melancholy event, the Minister brought his eldest daughter to fill the place of the deceased lady. ancholy event, the Minister brought his eldest daughter to fill the place of the deceased lady, and, as her mother's representative, Miss Musurus had precedence of all other ladies of the Diplomatic Corps who were present, whereupon the wife of the Russian Ambassador immediately left the palace, protesting that the daughter of the Turkish Minister had no claim to this superiority. This created, of course, intense excitement, and, after a careful inquiry into the forms and observances of etiquetic, it was found that the Russian lady was in the right. However, by way of balm to the wounded feelings of the representative of the Sublime Porte, the Queen invited his daughter to spend a few weeks at Windsor Castle, an honor which, it is said, had never been vouchsafed to any of his brother diplomats. And so the incident ended.

SINGULAR ACCIDENT. A very singular accident took place on the Champs Elysees the other day. A lady, well known in Parisian society, was on her way to the Bois de Bologne, driving herself, as is her cus-tom, two spirited black horses attached to a tom, two spirited black horses attached to a low carriage. Not far from the Arc de Triomphe a servant in livery passed her, leading a large and magnificent Russian bloodhound. On seeing the lady, the dog, with one sudden effort, broke loose from his guardian, sprang into the carriage, and commenced caressing its occupant with vehement caresses. The lady, thus taken by surprise, lost her hold of the reins, the borses took fright and started off on a run, and in a few moments the carriage was overturned. The lady and her footman were both a good deal hurt, though not dangerously so, while as to the poor dog who had been the unwitting cause of the whole disaster, he was killed on the spot. In answer to the interrogatories of the police the lady stated that the dog had formerly belonged to her, but that he had been stolen from her some months before. As to the servant who had had the dog in charge, he was nowhere to be found.

A RACHELOR'S BASIN.

To the Editor of The Tribune.

CHICAGO, April 14.—When your neighbor, the editor of the Chicago Times, tries to be funny he is generally stupid, but occasionally he is funny, not to say ridiculous, unbeknown as it were, to himself. In one of the small parawere, to himself. In one of the small paragraphs in yesterday's issue, supposed to be very cute, he alludes to the barber's brass basin which Don Quixote appropriated as a helmet as a "dirty bachelor's basin." What does he mean? Why should he assume that the barber was a bachelor, and if so, why should he affirm that he was a dirty bachelor. I should think a few quotations from Shakspeare from the same source would be quite interesting. J. D. S.

POLITICAL MATTERS. Special Correspondence of The Tribune.
MILWAUKEE, Oct. 14.—The situation of polithall matters in Milwankee is peculiar, and the prospect most gratifying to Republicans. The party organization is entirely harmonious and full of strength. Every week witnesses accessions to the Republican ranks. One of the most notable events of this week was the transformation of an immense meeting of workingmen, called at the North Side Turn Hall by the Democratic manipulators into a Republican demonstration by the workingmen themselves. The assemblage was entirely composed of Germans. With constrained and unwilling respect they listened to the addresses of the two officiating Democratic orators, and responded to each with cheers for Hayes and Wheeler, and cries of "Nein! nein! Hayes and Wheeler, and cries of "Nein! nein! neider mitt Tilden!" The meeting ended with neider mitt Tilden!" The meeting ended with neighblican speeches from spectators galled out by the crowd, which appeared none the less numerous at the close than at the opening. The Tilden or game omit any allusion to the occurrence, and were surprisingly brief in their reports of the meeting. The Democratic organization is rent with that weakness which is inherent in and born of deminance in municipal and local politics. Its conduct is a strife between its multitude of ambitious leaders and selfash cliques, who spend their valuable time and swiftly-fleeting ante-election days in bickering, jealous quarrels for personal ascendency and scheming for the spolls of municipal office. The two principal features in the central organization are the Young Men's Club and the Hinsly crowd, who occupy different headquarters on the same street. The young fellows who run the first are popularly known as the Tadpoles, on account of their wrigging, futle activity, apparently simless except in evincing an expectation to develop some day into full-grown frogs. They retort upon the old liners, who seem to regard them with amused contempt, by alluding to them under such pst names as "Foesils," "Relics," etc.

THE KING OF THE TADPOLES

Is Ed C Wall, a young auctionneer of considerable basiness ability, and, aside from his political affiliations, of gavod social position, but a most malaroit politician. He biossomed into politics but recently, and attempts to make up for a lack of experience by a showy display of activity. For effective work his organization is a failure, principally on account of his arbitrary and domineering disposition, which ignores the existence of his advisory edicers, and also because of his apparent determination to subordinate every other Interest to his personal ambition to obtain office. Wall proclaims that the only passport to favor in the Democratic party is a membership of "my Club," while tae old members of the pa thoroughly and deservedly popular throughout the district, especially in the country towns, and would be elected by a rousing majority.

To show where the old Rebel element may be found in this campaign, even though residents of Northern States, a few instances in Wisconsin may be cited. Dodd E. Knight, of the Golden Circle, is one of the chief fuglemen and workers of the Fifth Congressional District, and devotes his best efforts to Tilden and reform. Maj. Garcher, of Watertown, who, at the breaking out of the War, left this State and joined the Confederate army, attaining the rank of Major by fighting against Wisconsin boys, is another bright and shining light of the Fifth District Democracy, and gets in his work in the interests of reform. Capt. O'Connor, commander of the Tilden Guards in this city, although formerly a native of this State, volunteered in the Southern army, and was taken prisoner on the field of battle by a former acquaintance belonging to a Wisconsin regiment. He was a prisoner in Camp Douglas, where he was offered his freedom if he would take the oath of allegiance to the Union, which he scornfully refused to do. As Commander of the Tilden Minute-Men he is giving his best efforts to the cause of reform.

A mass-meeting of workingmen was held at North Sida Turn-Hall, which was a grand success as showing the preference of the laboring classes for Hayes and Wheeler. The hall was filled to its utmost capacity, and telling addresses were made by the Hon. Fred Horn, the Hon. Henry Fink, and Col. Wedelstadt, in German, which were enthusiastically received and interrupted by frequent rounds of applanse. The workingmen are thoroughly in earnest in their Republican tendencies. The Hon. Peter Fagg, of this city, who has been making speeches among the Hollanders in different parts of the State, reports them almost to a man in favor of Hayes and Wheeler. In some places his meetings were announced by the priests from the publit, and on several occasions the churches were opened for his use, the pastors p

The Soit of Brucker, the editor of the Socialist, on a criminal charge of libel, preferred by Sam Rindskopf, which was tried in the Municipal Court this week, resulted in a verdict of guilty, and on Thursday he was incarcerated in the Honse of Correction. On Friday his friends raised the amount of his fine. $250 by subscription, and he was released. Friday night the Socialists heid an indignation meeting at Schuengel's Hall, where specches were made by Messrs. Lyser, Ende, Lauer, Boebel, and Nusser. Resolutions were passed denouncing the Herald for abusing their Society.

After the meeting the members of the Society to the number of at least 1,000, headed by a band, proceeded to the residence of Brucker, where he was serenaded, and responded with a brief speech.

IMPORTANT DECISION.

A case which has attracted much interest, both in this vicinity and abroad, was this week decided by the Subreme Court, being that in relation to the Milwaukee Orphan's Home. This benevolent institution was chartered by a special act of the Legislature two years ago, and under said act was authorized to receive vagrant and homeless children that might be sent to it by the courts, the county to defray the expense of their keeping. Some time since a controversy arose as to the right of the Home to retain Catholic children, which was participated in by several members of the Board of Supervisors, and led to that body refusing to audit a bill of the institution presented them for the care of the children sent to the Home to retain Catholic children, which was participated in by several members of the Board of Supervisors, and led to that body refusing to audit a bill of the institution presented them for the care of the children sent to the Home to retain Catholic children, which was participated in by several members of the Board of Supervisors, and led to that body refusing to andit a bill of the institution presented them for the care of the children sent to the Home

There has been much said by the press and people of this city on the subject of the coal supply for the winter, and our citizens are waiting, Micawber-like, for something to turn up, —that is, for prices to come down. Bealers in this city, there is no doubt, were badly treated by the combination at the East, who, but a short time before the crash, advised them that there would be an upward tendency, and upon this advice the local dealers laid in their stock at combination prices. They are in a bad box, and do not, of course, wish to lose any more money than possible. Consumers, however, hear of prices elsewhere, where coal is handled by agencies, and don't like to pay the prices here. A combination formed to purchase a lot of 300 tons, when one of our local dealers agreed to give the same figures as were offered elsewhere upon orders of like lots, and the purchase was made of him, and the coal divided among members of the pool. This seems to be the easiest way to get out of the difficulty, both for dealers and consumers. Let a pool of consumers be formed to purchase 300 tons, which they can get at the and consumers. Let a pool of consumers be formed to purchase 300 tons, which they can get at the lowest prices, saving freight and cartage, and at the same time the coal will be superior, as dealers here keep their stock housed and protected from the weather, while those of Chicago, with perhaps one or two exceptions, keep it in open yards, exposed to rain and storm.

RACINE.

HERE AND THERE. Special Correspondence of The Tribuna.

RACINE, Wis., Oct. 14.—Time was when a glorious summer could not go by in our beautiful city without a number of pleasant social reminders of the fact. Many a starlit tropical evening of previous years have the gardens and lawns that form the chief beauties of Racine presented a fairy picture that lived long and pleasingly in the memory. The happy shout and silvery laughter of those who reveled joyously in the pale moonlight or under the blink of the far away stars, while trees were festooned with artificial embellishments, have been, during the past season, as few and far between as angels' visits; and now that the breathing of the sweet South o'er a bank of violets has given place to the hoary breath of autumn frosts or dreary winds, there are none who do not regret the gayety of former times as compared with the formal, social indifference of the summer just at an end. The principal cause of the evil spoken of has been the attractions of our Centennial celebration. From the time when the robin chirped its first thin note in the early spring, or when the retiring bluebird yanked its first worm into a cave of gloom, the war of preparation for an Eastern hegira began, and the natives of our goodly burg have been constantly on the wing, flitting hither and thither like unquiet spirits. As a matter of course a social earthquake was the result. Sophis would hoist on her latest inflator and dashy pullback and hie her to the pretentious home of Arabella. But the blinds would be closed as an indication that Arabella had gone to the "setting sun," or was living in the basement, in order to warrant the belief that she had done so, which left poor Sophia no other alternative than to pack her collar-box and follow in the wake of her fortunate friend. Now the pilgrims are returning from Mecca with depleted purses and crusty tempers, travelstained and heart-sore, filled with the conviction that all is vanity and vexation of spirit, and regretting that the lucre wrung from a reluctant Special Correspondence of The Tribune.

POLITICAL.

A Committee has been selected from among our citizens for the purpose of urging as candidates for political office men whose dispositions have become soured and crusty from the left-handed buffets of adversity. The object in view is to work a grand moral reformation.—to reclaim, as it were, and make affable and genial those poor devils who are cursed with misanthropy; for it is an established fact that, no matter how morose and sullen a man may be in his everyday intercourse with his fellow-men, the moment he is nominated for an office, however petty, he doffa his seedy coat of cussedness and dons the sleck garb of the fawning sycophant. Constituents are button-holed, and wheedled, and crammed full of Cove oysters and fusil oil until their waning faith in the nomines is in a measure restored, and they think he is "some pumpkins" after all. So this Committee, of which I have made mention, may pan out moral agriculturists of no mean stripe, whose good deeds will live after them.

POLITICAL Special Correspondence of The Tribune. KENOSHA, Wis., Oct. 14.—The excitemen usually attending the election of President is just beginning to ruffle the surface of local politics in this city, and Democrats and Republicans, fully alive to the issues at stake in the present campaign, are making things lively in this vicinity. The first mass-meeting preparatory to the grand struggle in November was held Tuesday night of this week at Simmons' Hall, and was a united rally of the Republicans of this place. Congressman Williams was the speaker for the evening, and with characteristic clearness and eloquence he presented to his audience the true state of affairs in both parties at the present time. sented to his audience the true state of affairs in both parties at the present time. Mayor Quarles and Mr. Winsor met Mr. Williams at the depot and escorted himself and lady to the residence of Mrs. Milton Pettil, whose guests they were to be during his stay in the city. Mrs. Pettit had prepared an elegant repast for the distinguished speaker, and his Honor the Mayor, and after full justice had been done to the delicacies spread out for their delectation, they repaired to the hall. Here Mr. Williams found an enthusiastic assemblare, composed of the first ladiesjand gentiemen of the city. The audience was en rapport with the orator during the whole evening, and cheer upon cheer greeted the many telling hits that Mr. Williams launched broadcast into the ranks of the enemy. The Democrats present—and there were a few found brave enough to view both sides of the political question—received the shots of the adversary with becoming meckness, feeling sure in their own minds that the expounder of their peculiar views, the Hon. H. G. Winslow, of Racue, would on the following night return fire with interest. To-night Judge J. H. Howe will address the Hayes and Wheeler Club at Simmons' Hall.

will address the Hayes and Wheeler Club at Simmons' Hall.

In view of the alarming increase of crime in our midst, and the tendency among all classes to degenerate into downright barbarism,—or something so near akin to it that the difference is undefinable,—some philanthropic mind conceived the happy idea of inviting the renowned revivalists, Messrs. Whittle and Bliss, to hold a series of meetings in this place. The idea once conceived, the clergy all united in pronouncing it good, and with one accord have taken hold of the matter. Messrs. Whittle and Bliss have been interviewed on the subject, and have signified their willingness to benefit the heathen of this place with their ministrations. A better field for the labor of these revivalists cannot be found in this State outside of Racine, and it is to be hoped they will succeed in reforming all those fallen scions of humanity whom our police and county boarding-house have falled to intimidate or convert to the commonest principles of humanity.

Thursday evening at the hands of her young friends in this city. The surprise was nothing less than a raid upon her country residence of a party of youthful seekers after pleasure, of both sexes. They made their way thitherward in pairs in carriages, bearing with them huge hampers of provisions and the ever-present "Billy," who manipulated his big accordeon during the evening in a truly artistic manner. Kenosha gallants not being very numerous, Rachine was called upon to furnish her quots, which she did to the number of three, Messrs. Duncombe, Van Pelt, and Jaynes. The self-invited guests did not reach "Willow Brook" farm until after 9 o'clock, so that the party proved a surprise in more ways than one. The evening was spent in dancing, and the sharp appetites induced by the two-mile ride over the hills did ample Justice to the supply of sandwiches, pickles, coffee, and cake furnished by the fair ones of the company. The party did not break up until the "wee sma' hours" of early morning.

Next Thursday night a rare treat in the way of amusements is promised our citizens by the young people of the Episcopal Society, who have been hard at work for some time preparing "Cinderells" and "Little Treasure" for public presentation. They are now ready to make their bow to their friends, and, as these plays have been prepared with a view to replenishing their funds, they hope to see a crowded house at kimball Hall next Thursday evening. It is only necessary to mention that Prof. Campbell, Cant. Basavi, Misses Frank Bain, Marie Bacot, and Ein Bond have the leading roles in "Little Treasure" to insure a full attendance.

The Lutherans cleared over and above all expenses at their fair last week the snug little sum of $650.

One of our citizens who left the city for the Centennial, Mr. Boesen by name, had the misfortune to make the acquaintance of a scoundrel of pleasing address, who robbed him while standing on the platform of the cars at Plymouth, Ind. of $30, and then knocked him off. As soon as he collected his scattered

Special Correspondence of The Tribune.

WAUKEGAN, Oct. 14.—Political matters are at present occupying such a prominent place in the minds of the public that it is of rare occurrence anything else is talked about. No matter what the nature of your business may be, or in what mood you are found, you are compelled to listen to and quite often forced into fully discussing the merits and demerits of either or both political parties. For a man to refuse to join either of the parties, remaining in neutral condition, is to be at once branded as a traitor to the country. Even the "kida" not yet worthy of a promotion from the second render are found arguing the rights and wrong of the Government's Administration. It is owing to this state of affairs that society events are being seriously neglected.

Mr. A. C. Berry and his annuable lady were favored with the presence of Mrs. Huriburd, from Chicago, and, wishing to have a pleasant time, decided on Tuesday evening to call in a few of their friends. Accordingly, invitations were sent out, and the following named persons responded: Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Wicham, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Detrick, Mr. and Mrs. George Besley, Mrs. Mitchell, Mrs. Yayer, Mrs. Johnson, Mrs. Bishop, Mrs. Richardson, Stella Wiard, Eva Dowet, Nelson Steele, Robert Hook, Fred Berry, Will Shottswell, Fred Murray, Lewis McKee, Jay Jones, Henry Dowst, and Sylvester Jones.

The Hon. E. M. Haines and E. M. Dennis, of this city, are the Democratic nominees for the reof the Hayes and Wheeler Battalion, but it is understood they will be out on Tuesday evening, on which occasion they will be presented with a beautiful banner.

Col. Edmund Jussen and the Hon. John V. Le-Moyne are advertised to speak at Searls' Hall this (Saturday) evening. The Democrats are getting warmed up.

LAKE.

The party season approaches, and with it the inquiry, "What club shall I join this season? How can I gain the most pleasure for the least money?" Several clubs are forming here, one of which will give their first party a week from next Saturday. It is intended to be very select, and tickets can only be obtained upon presentation of a card from the Committe on Invitations. It might be suggested to the School tations. It might be suggested to the School Trustees that the necessity exists for the en-largement of the seating capacity of the High-School Hall. Of the several entertainments given lately, each succeeding one has brought out more people than the one previous, and at the last one on Friday night people who were late had difficulty in obtaining seats. Another feature in these entertainments has been an almost entirely difshall be given, which shall draw all these people at once, it will be found that the hall is not Notwithstanding the rain on Friday and the dark and threatening evening, the largest audience of the season assembled at the High-School Hall to hear the music and recitations given under the auspices of Miss Jessie Couthoni, a young and talented reader of great promise. She has already established a reputation which places her in the foremost rank of elocutaonists. The programme of the evening was well diversified and very well carried out, only a little tedious from the number of encores.

The Chicago Madrigal Club sang "Since First I Saw Your Face," and "In Going to My Lonesome Bed." Prof. Walter C. Lyman recited the chamber scene between Hamlet and his mother with fine effect. Miss Ingersoll and William Lewis gave a "duo concertanti" on piano and violin. Mr. Lewis is a favorite here as well as in Chicago. Miss Fanny Whitney, soprano, sang "Requited," after which Miss Jesse Couthoul recited "Mona's Waters." which gave her a chance to display the great power of her voice. She responded to an encore by reciting "Lost and Found." The tenor solo "Certainly," by Charles T. Barnes was well received.

"O Hush Thee, my Bable," by the Madrigal."

A humorous recitation from Mark Twain by Prof. Lyman, and "Good Night, Love," by the Madrigal Club, closed the entertainment. Engrewood is not free from the annoyance of people who have no more manners than to talk and laugh during a performance.

The St. Ann's (Catholic) Church Fair has been well patronized since the opening Thursday might. Saturday night a number of people from Chicago came out to have a good time. They probably went back satisfied, as Father Leydon knows how to please his patrons. The fair will be continued several weeks more.

No basiness of importance came before the School Board of Trustees for this district. The time was taken up by a discussion of a achedule of indebtedness, which was brought before the meeting. It appertained to Mr. Coleman's administration, and has been left in bad shape.

JOTTINOS.

One of the ordinances of the town requires the railroad companies to have flagmen at all the street-crossings in the town. It is not known that a single street is protected in this way. Hairbreath escapes have been frequent of late at Fifty-first, Fifty-first, and Fifty-ninth streets. Whose business is it to see that this ordinance is carried out?

Won't some enterprising citizen erset almp-post in the vicinity of the High School! These terrible dark nights make pedestrian movements very uncertain in this quarter to those who do not carry a inntern. A lantern is a necessary companion to every well-regulated family.

The denuzens about the Pavilion boulevard murmur much, that they may not have some sort of shelter from the cold west winds that drive across that section. Neither the Michigan Southern nor Rock Island Company have thought it worth their while to protect poor shivering humanity from the cold blasts of winter, but perhaps if the laddes living in that locality were to wait on the managers, they might prevail upon them to accede to their request.

THE ATHENÆUM.

The Athenseum held its first meeting of the season at the Woman's College Thursday evening, and reorganized by electing the following officers: President, Mrs. Emily Huntington Miller; First Vice-President, Robert Baird; Second Vice-President, F. J. Crist; Secretary, C. H. Morgan; Treasurer, F. H. Scott; Committee on Membership, Prof. H. F. Fisk, T. B. Hilton, Jr., and Miss Wheeler; Committee on Arrangements, Mrs. E. O. Brown, Miss Anna Shuman, Frank M. Elliot, and Dr. H. M. Bannister. It was decided to devote the time of the Society for the next three months to the study of art. Mr. Charles Dutton entertained the Society for some time very pleasantly by the exhibition of his large collection of engravings, etc.

THE PHILOSOPHICAL ASSOCIATION.

The Evanston Philosophical Association has commenced another season's work with brighter prospects than ever before. The inaugural meeting was held last week, with a good attendance of members. The Treasurer announced a balance in the treasury. Mr. Boutell reported the list of subjects for discussion, published some weeks ago in This Tribune.

The election of officers resulted as follows: President, Dr. N. S. Davis; Vice-President, N. C. Gridley; Recording Secretary, Prof. L. E. Cooley; Corresponding Secretary, Dr. H. M. Bannister: Treasurer and Librarian, Dr. M. C. Bragden; Standing Committee, Dr. M. Raymond, Dr. L. L. Knox, and Judge H. G. Miller; Committee on Membership. Prof. L. Kister, Dr. H. M. Bannister, and L. J. Gage. Dr. Raymond was first elected President, but declined the honor, whereupon Dr. Davis was re-elected.

Mr. L. H. Boutell read an elaborate review of "Von Holst's Constitutional History of the United States," which was discussed by Judge Miller, Prof. Kistler, Dr. Weller, and Mr. Frost, the political preferences of the speakers cropping out in the views taken of the question of State Rights and National Sovereignty.

The following names were proposed for membership: Dr. D. R. Dyche, Horace G. Ide, George O. Ide, C. L. Prindle, John B. Kirk, C. M. Ellinwood, and J. Seymour Currey.

The next meeting will be held Nov. 13.

UNIVERSITY NOTES.

The contest between the members of the University nine for the splendidsilver-mounted rosewood bat which has been on exhibition at Muir's is practically settled. It is understood that the bat will be presented to Mr. Charles P. Wheeler, assistant publisher of the Methodist, New York, who had the highest record of base hits for the senson.

DESPLAINES.

The town and its surroundings have been unally quiet during the past week. The adven winter will be welcomed by that large class of community who delight in the sports and amments peculiar to that season of the year.

The musical entertainment which some have nounced for Tuesday evening next will not place. It has been indefinitely postponed; indit is doubtful whether there was any founds for the report that it is to take place at all.

Mr. Soloman Garland and wife have retun home, after an absence of several weeks. Tare accompanied by Miss Aldrich, of Delaw, who will make a short stay here.

This arrangement is intended to be permanent.

PARK RIDGE.

Mr. Aleck Eckford met with a serious accident on Tuesday last. When passing through the Village of Jefferson en route to the city with a load of hay, his wagon upset, throwing him to the ground and breaking his shoulder. He was brought home, and under the care of Dr. Hoffman, of Niles, is improving, and will soon be able to attend to his ordinary business.

Elder Boring is attending Conference, and in consequence there will be no services, except Sunday-school at the usual hour, at the M. E. Church to-day. The Rev. Mr. Gulick, of Norwood Park, will preach at the Congregational Church at 3 o'clock p. m.

Mrs. Hopkins, of Desplaines, was calling on friends here on Friday last. She has fully recovered from her late scrious illness.

The Rev. Mr. Bundock and wife have returned to this place after a two-years' visit to England and the Continent. He preached in the M. E. Church last Sabbath evening to a full house. Mr. B. formerly resided here for a period of five years, and left behind him a large circle of friends, who are how glad to great his return.

Politics just now seems to absorb all the time and attention of the gentiemen, both young and old, to the utter exclusion of all society matters. The ladies will be glad when Hayes and Wheeler are elected, and they shall again secure some little notice from the lords of creation.

German society here is pervaded with pleasing excitement, in anticipation of the approaching marriage of Miss Bertha Shuman to Mr. John Homyer. The cremony is to take place at the residence of the bride's parents on the 26th inst. The preparations are both elaborate and elegant. Mrs. Cotton arrived in the village Saturday morning. Her many friends joyfully welcomed her back.

Mrs. P. Dickerson is visiting friends in the city.

Mrs. Way is visiting her friends at Oak Park.

serson, and the response by the Hon. J. H. Dberly, of Cairo.

Among the important business transacted was the following: The appointment of a committee on the revision of the Constitution, and another on the proposed amendments to the constitution and by-laws of subordinate lodges. The vote on the establishment of a relief organization in Chicago was ordered to be retaken. "Robert's Rules of Order" were adopted as the standard of practice for the Grand Lodge and subordinate lodges. Belleville was selected as the place for holding the next annual session.

An election for officers resulted as follows:

The Grand Lodge was treated very kindly by the local lodges and the citizens, and the greatest attentions were shown the members. On the evening of the 11th, Prot. Gillett and his corps of teachers, from the Conservatory of Music, gave a concert. The lodge also visited the Deaf and Dumb and Blind Asylums, and were quen interested in the methods of instruction and the profit k ney of the pupils. A sum was set apart to p. toure for each of the institutions a memorial of the visit.

MASONRY.

MASONRY AND THE MORAL LAW. at is needless to reiterate the fact that Free-masonry is not a sect, neither is it, in its gen-eral interpretation, a religion, yet in its strict interpretation it does inculcate a code of morals as pure and devoid of selfishness as that taught by the church itself. Its foundation stone being faith in God, our code of morals is that of ing faith in God, our code of morals is that of the Bible, and however liberal or restricted its interpretation by those not of us, Masoury insists upon a literal construction of all those principles of a high-found moral and the country. Address D3, Tribune office. which all faith is vain and all professions of no capies upon which he Order is founded, the first lessons in which are received and acceded to at the very threshold of the Entered Apprentice degree and increased in its binding force as it runs through all the degrees included in Ancient Craft Masonry, and to a strict observance of which all are bound by the most irrevocable engagements to keep and perform. How, then, can the faithful Craftsman lay them aside with such easy grace and engage in those doubtful superfinities of life that carry with the nought but degeneracy and corruption?

As first stated, Freemasonry is not a religion, in the popular sense, but it does inculcate and demand of its followers a rigid adherence to the teachings of that "Great Light" without which dark would be his pathway through life and gloomy his hope of a future immortality. And yet there are men, claiming to be Masons, who are living in the daily practice of those grosser excesses and immoralities from which their tarrier and later pledges bind them to abstain. How sad, and yet how true, that in many lodges men are to be found who are drunkards, gambiers, adulterers, sianderers, oppressors, and many other of the grosser offenders against good society and good morals! We see the cvil, let us go where we will, and we see, too, the terrible effect it is having upon society at large, and the membership also. Masonry is judged by the morality of its membership, and the example of one bad man will do more to warp public opinion than the good example of a dozen others can undo, so long as the bad are silowed to remain in the lodges.

Now, we call upon the officers of the lodges to take hold of this matter, meet the issue firmly, and purge their lodges of all impurities. Unless you do, good men will neither come nor stay among you, and our beloved Order will be forced to the wall under this foul cloud. Officers, brettren, remember your obligations, do your duty and purge your lodges.—Masonie Journal, Greenstore, N. C.

ilers, brethren, remember your ooligations, do your duty and purge your lodges.—Masonic Journal, Greensbore, N. C.

IMPOSTORS.

The number of impostors traveling about the country is unusually large, and their brazenness is almost beyond belief, if it has not been witnessed. To obtain money they hesitate at nothing in the way of false pretenses, and, therefore, it becomes all lodges and brethren to be very careful on whom they bestow charity. If the applicant is a stranger, his diploma with a recent receipt for dues should be demanded, and, if they are not produced, resort should be had to the mails or to the telegraph. This precaution is all the more necessary from the fact that many of the impostors are either suspended or expelled Masons or their confreres. This diligence should be exercised that the worthy may be invariably assisted and the unworthy refused.—Voice.

YOUNG WORSHIPFUL MASTERS.

M. W. Bro. Cushing, of Texas, thus gives one of the reasons why dissentions exist in many lodges:

More than half of all the troubles of our lodges come from the ambition of young men to wield the Masser's gavel. More than half the Masters of lodges, who are thus new to the situation, are utterly ignorant of the constitution, the landmarks, the Grand Lodge edicts, the customs, and the modes of government of the institution. Hence, when called upon to decide questions, they evolve conclusions from the depths of their own originality, not always too deep to be sounded, and the views of those who have had more experience are ontraged. Sametimes young Masons make the best Masters, but such are only men of principle and students, and whose ambition is more the good of the institution than personal eduncement.

A New Use for Parrots.

That notable type of precocious depravity, the samia le Paris (says the London Globe), has again been distinguishing himself by a brilliant invention, which seems to have been a grand success until detected the other day and exposed at the Poluce Court. The professor of the new science began by providing himself with a tame parrot, which was trained, like a falcon in the age of chwairy, to return to the fist of his owner in obedience to a particular word of command. Accompanied by this ally, safely housed in a small cage, the urchin would go into a grocer's shop, as if for the purpose of making a purchase. Hardly had he entered the shop, however, when the prisoner escaped, to the intense apparent alarm of the poor owner. Of course the sympathy of all present was instantly aroused, and every one—shopman, assistants, and chance customers—rushed about in pursuit of the lost bird. While the chase was at its height the adroit youth would be filling his pockets with all the most costly delicacles A New Use for Parrots.

within his reach, and as soon as a sufficient quantity had been collected would call the bird to him, pretend to catch him, march off with him and with the booty. The trick was ruined by its own success, a too frequent use of it having excited the indignation of the trades-men, and brought about an application to the police, who have now been down on two of fenders caught in the very act.

Potter says: "There is nothing dispels the dreams of youth and shatters the ambitious hopes of the noble boy like having a young lady remark in his hearing that he would make, with study, a good hat-rack."—New Orleans Buildin.

"The times are hard my dear," said a man.

"The times are hard, my dear," said a man to his better half, "and I find it difficult to keep my nose above water." "You could easily keep your nose above water," returned the lady, "if you didn't keep it so often above brandy."

We've suspected for some time past that measures would have to be taken to check the alarmingly rapid growth of the Smith family. And here, now, sure enough, a Pennsylvania man exhibits at the Centennial a "Smith roller and crusher."

"Gov. Tilden," said a young lady who admires the old man, "do let me straighten your coila'; ah, do!" And she couldn't understand why the old man turned so pale and waiked away as though she had said something that had offended him.—Burlington Haukeys.

"Won't you come ashore, and take a glass of wine?" said a friend to the courteous Captain of one of the Fall River steamboats just as he was assisting a lady over the gang plank. "No, thank you; no wine for me; den't you see I've a gal-on-a-board!" said the Captain.—Boston Commercial Bulletin.

It was at the funeral of the head of a family. A neighbor in the yard, while the service was

A neighbor in the yard, while the service was going on inside, was speaking of the dead man, and took advantage of the opportunity to observe in a tone of subdued sympathy: "An' had just got in his coal and potatoes for the winter. It is a sad case."

It is a sad, and spectacle to see a man, who had fied to this country to escape the galling chain of tyranny, standing in the middle of an unfurnished room with ascrubbing-brush in one hand and a pail of hot water in the other, while a staiwart woman paces around him giving him her orders.—Brooklyn Argus.

THE EVANGELISTS. THE EVANGELISTS.

DWIGHT L. MOODT.

In view of the deep personal interest in Mr.
Moody's home and the family at the old homestead, awakened by his recent affliction in which tens of thousands of our people have given him their sympathy and their prayers, the following shapter from the book entitled "D. L. Moody and His Work," will be read with interest. The pen-portrait of Mr. Moody's venerable mother has been much enjoyed. Many of the facts related in this chapter were given to the author, the Rev. Mr. Daniels, by Mrs. Moody herself, and others by Mr. Samuel Moody, from whose funeral the Evangelist has just returned. Mr. Moody makes free and frequent reference to his early history; the account of the absent son's return is as he related it in Haymarket Theatre, London:

A certain family Bible, in an old farm-house in forthfield, Mass., has the following record:

"Edwin Moody was born Nov. 1, 1800. Betsy Holton was born Feb. 5 1805. Were married Jan. 2, 1823."

Both the Moodys and the Holtons were old families in the little mountain town. The latter were mong the first settlers of the "plantation of forthfield," which was purchased of the Indians in 1973, and laid out by a committee of the General court of Massachusetts, of which Committee Will-am Holton was a member. This mam was of Endish descent, born in the colony of Massachusetts lay, and from him Betsy Holton is a lineal decendant of the fifth generation.

Of the nine children (seven sons and two daughers) born of this marriago, Dwight Lyman was the lixth, born on the 5th of February, 1837.

On the 28th of May, 1841, his father died. In the norming of that day he was at his usual work—that if a meaner but feeling a van in his side caused.

held, the library-book was sure to have some account of it, or of something wonderfully like it and also to contain just the sort of good advice made their home a happy one in spite of air their misfortunes.

But another sorrow fell upon that home on the mountain-side. One of the elder sons, with a boyish ambition to make his fortune in the great world, suddenly disappeared.

For years no tidings of the lost boy reached the widowed mother. It seemed sometimes as if her heart would break for him. "Oh! if I could only know he was dead, it would be better than this! Maybe he is sick and in want!—maybe he has fallen in with wicked mea, who will make him like themselves!"

Maybe he is sick and in wanti-maybe he has fallen in with wicked men, who will make him like themselves!"

They would all sit in a semicircle about the fire of a storny winter's night, and listen to stories of their dead father: what he did, what he said, how he looked, how he was kind to a friend and lost a great deal of money by him, and so their little home was mortgaged, and they were poor. But if by chance any one spoke the name of the absent brother, a great silence fell upon them; the tears would come into the eyes of the mother, and then they would steal away to bed, whispering their "Good-nights," and walking softly as they went; for that name was like a sword-thrust to the mother's heart. Then they would lie awake listening to the roar of the wind among the mountains, and thinking maybe as was out in the cold somewhere; or, worse than that, perhaps he had gone to sea, and while they were snug in bed was keeping watch on a wave-beaten deck, or climbing a reeling wast in just such darkness and storm.

Now and then, between the gusts, a sound would be heard like the wall of the summer wind when it used to make harpstrings of the leaves and branches of the great maple-trees in the yard; low and gentle now, and again rising into louder and stronger tones. Then they held their breath and listened. Mother was sitting up to pray for her lost boy.

Next morning perhaps she would send them down to the Post-Office in the village, a mile anda hall away, to ask for a letter—a letter from Aim, though the mother never said so. But no letter ever came. Long years after, when the widow was growing old, and her soft dark hair was turning white, one summer afternoon a tall swarthy man, with heavy black beard was seen coming in at the gate. He old, and her soft dark hair was turning white, one summer afternoon a tall swarthy man, with heavy black beard was seen coming in at the gate. He came up under the porch, and, the door being open, he stopped and looked in, with an eager, anxious face, as if he were afraid he might not find the one he was seeking, though he had stopped at the church-yard on his way through the village to see whether there were two graves instead of one where his father had been laid so many years ago. Surely his mother was not dead, but was she still at the old home?

"Will you come in?" said she, in her courteous and kindly way.

But the stranger did not move nor speak. He stood there, humbly and penitently, in the presence of her whose love he had slighted, and whose heart he had broken; and, as a sense of his ingratitude began to overwhelm him, the big tears began to find their way over his weather-beaten face.

By those tears the mother recognized her son. He had come at last! There was so muon of the old home in him that he could not always stay away. But he would not cross its threshold till he had confessed his sin against it, and heard from the same lips which had prayed for him so often and so long the sweet assurance that he was for-riven.

All that was left to the widow for her support as the little home on the mountain side, with an ore or two of land; and even this was incumbered by debt. Of her seven children the eldest was but 13 years of age; and a month after her asband's death another boy and girl were born. Some of the worldly-wise neighbors advised her to two wasy or bind out her children, all except the win babies; but this she was determined not to do, and an endowed her with unusual strength both or old y and mind, and, trusting to Him, she bravely field her burden of poverty and toil, and carried her burden of poverty and toil, a

Youthful, almost to boyishness in figure and appearance, you wonder at first where lies the spell that proves so irresistible. But one look into the clear gray eyes reveals such earnestness, sincerity, and perfect transparency of soul, you trust him without an instant's questioning. His whole face wears the calm, untroubled look of a soul at perfect rest in God. His voice is clear and winning, his delivery rapid, especially in his readings, as if the time were all too short for what he has to say, and all too short it is for those who hang with breathless interest on his readings, as if the time were all too short for what he has to say, and all too short it is for those who hang with breathless interest on his words.

A full and free salvation he preaches, with all the earnestness of his soul; but not a salvation independent of Christian living. Upon this he is emphatic. His readings are marvelous. His unbounded love and reverence for the Bible, and constant study of it, have given him a deep insight into its very heart. And the freshness, beauty, and originality of thought in these readings are a constant surprise, sometimes making every verse of a psalm which has been familiar from childhood a mine of newly-discovered treasure. The flashes of genius all through his readings and sermons; the wonderful aptness of his illustrations; his astonishing memory, which, unaided, carries a score of texts, perhaps, at a single reading, scattered from Genesis to Revelation. naming book, chapter, and verse, with never an instant's hesitation in recalling a text or expressing a thought of his own—these all give him great power over an audience.

His intense love for souls and his boundless love for the Master are the key-notes of his life, and the tender, beseching earnestness with which he strives to win even the most fallen and deprayed to Him, and the startling power with which he speaks to the conscience of those who have already forgotten by those who have heard him.

Mr. Moorehouse will always have peculiar interest to Christian meals in the startling the context in the startling to the context to Christian meals in the context in the context of the context in the context to Christian meals in the context in the con which he speaks to the conscience of those who have aiready forgotten by those who have heard him.

Mr. Moorehouse will always have peculiar interest to Christian people in this country because closely associated with Mr. Moody. In Chicago he has rendered invaluable service to his American brother by his Scriptural knowledge and spirituality. Mr. Moody does not hesitate to acknowledge his great indebtedness to Mr. Moorehouse, who unfolded the Bible method of dealing with individual souls with a clearness and force which the earnest evangelist, ever enger to learn of Christ, and how to lead men to Him, had never seen or felt before.

The providential ordering of this blessing is very interesting. Soon after Mr. Moorehouse came to this country he sent word to Mr. Moody that if he desired it, he would preach for him. Mr. Moody was about to leave the city to be gone over the Sabbath. So he said to his wife. "I have a letter from an Englishman named Harry Moorehouse, who calls himself the Boy Preacher, offering to take my pulpit to-morrow. It is too late to get any else, so I suppose we must let him try it in the morning; but if he makes a failure tell the deacous to find some one else for the evening, or else hold a prayer meeting. So far from making a failure the Boy Preacher captured all hearts; and in the evening the house was too small to hold the people. He remained with Mr. Moody's church for some time, working with the bastor very successfully.

When the meetings were over Mr. Moorehouse said to Mr. Moody, "You are salling on the wrong tack; it is all very well to tell stories, and talk about your experience; but if you will change your course, and learn to preach God's words instead of your own, He will make you a great power for good."

Mr. Moody had been advised to enter upon a course of reading by way of preparing himself more fully for the work of an evangelist, but could never find time to begin it. Mr. Moorehouse said, "You only need one book—that is the Bible."

Mr. Moorehouse was with Messrs Moody and Sankey during their last month in London, and now comes across the sea for the fifth time to help on the good work in the old home of his old friend. His charming exposition at the noon prayer-meeting Friday of the scene where Christ washes the feet of His disciples will be long remembered, and cannot fail to be to those who heard it adeep and spiritual blessing.

Protestant families in that part of the country; his is one of them, and at the usual age he was confirmed as a member of the Church of England. He was first awakened by a sermon preached at Dromore Castle by the evangelist H. Grattan Guiness. The revival of 1859 which spread through the North of Ireland, reached his home in the South, and under the labor of some earnest lay Bible-readers he was happily and thoroughly converted. His first work was holding Bible-readings in the cottages of the poor, often working all day and walking 8 or 9 miles to preach and give personal instruction in religion, and then walking home again. It was while holding the position of cashier of a bank in Dublin thas he felt it his duty to give himself wholly to the work of an evangelist, which he did at once, throwing himself entirely on the Lord for his personal support; and thus he has continued till the present time. He has been for nearly twelve years in this work, and his labors have been greatly blessed both in his own country and the United States, which he first visited in 1838, bringing a letter of introduction from Mr. Spurgeon to the Boston Y. M. C. A.

He married an American lady, and his home is now in Philadelphia. He has been an editor as well as preacher, being associated for a time with Dr. Cullis, of Boston, in the editorship of the Times of Refreshing. A leading Canadian paper gives this description of him: "Mr. Needham's accent is broadly Irish. He is exceedingly fluent, and cannot help being witty. In appearance he is young, fresh, almost jolly,—a man whom one would expect to find very genial in private intercourse." His sentiments are orthodox, and his recent successes in Philadelphia show that the Lord is with him. His Gospeitent, with which he sometimes travels, and in which he preaches in summer time, has been the scene of many rich experiences in religion, and the gate of heaven to many souls who were out of reach of the ordinary means of grace.

HISTORY OF THE TRIALS AND SUCCESSES OF THE FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH. Remembering its promise, THE TRIBUNE has sought the earliest possible opportunity to continue the interesting histories of the Hyde Park churches, which were begun in the Sunday columns of September, and which, when completed, will form an attractive and valuable collection for the scrap-books of Hyde Park collection for the scrap-books of Hyde Park residents.

The following is a brief sketch of the efforts, trials, and snecesses of the Baptists of Hyde Park up to the present writing:

The first active Baptist of Hyde Park was Mr. N. B. Dodson, who came to this village in March, 1862. The Presbyterian Church, the history of which has recently appeared in those columns, was then, and for several years thereafter, unable to sustain regular services, notwithstanding the fact that many of the citizens contributed to help them. When no preacher was to be had, the congregation was addressed by some one of the brethren.

This church, however, soon gained headway, and increased materially in numbers and wealth, but the Baptists still remained too few in number and purse to talk of organizing a separate church, although a few feeble efforts were made. They were visited about this time by the Rev. Mr. Stowell, who was desirous of starting the church, but his offers were declined.

When, in 1868, Mr. D. Henry Sheldon came to the village he expressed much enthusiasm over the project of organizing and building a church, and even went so far as to offer to provide a lot for the site of the edifice, and to further aid in its construction. Influenced by this, the Baptish held a meeting at the Christian Times, now Standard, office, and a committee consisting of the Rev. Dr. Smith and Messrs. Sheldon and Dodson, was appointed to look into the matter. This committee found so little encouragement that it never reported, and the project was for the time shandoned.

In October, 1868, the Rev. Ira E. Kenney took up his residence in Hyde Park, and a Sabbath-school and prayer-meetings were instituted at his house, but with indifferent success; still, the meetings were kept up through the winter of 1868-9, until the next spring, when, discouraged by their poor success, all efforts were indefinitely abandoned.

Nothing new occurred until 1873, when the discouraged Christians were visited by the Rev. Edward Ellis and A. L. Vail, of Englewoo The following is a brief sketch of the efforts, ably canvassing the field, and consulting with the Baptist citizens, they departed for Englewood, but soon returned, accompanied by Mr. Theurll, and insisted upon the Baptists at once going to work. Accordingly, in December of this year, a meeting was announced to take place in the basement of the Presbyterian Church. At this first gathering, Mr. Ellis performed ministerial duties, bringing with him his choir.

Quite a goodly number were in attendance, and it was found on inquiry that there were some thirty-six Baptists in the vicinity, but, a large portion of them being already identified with the Chicago churches, were so attached to them or so fearful of the failure of the attempt, that they declined to join. The remainder, however, decided immediately to arrange with the Rev. Mr. Vail for preaching once a week, for an indefinite time, the compensation to be such as could be raised for him. The use of the village-hall, which had previously figured in the career of the Presbyterians, was now obtained, and services were regularly held during the succeeding three months. At this date it was decided that, if it was to be hoped that a congregation might be organized, it was necessary to obtain a regular pastor who could that a congregation might be organized, it was necessary to obtain a regular pastor who could devote his whole time to the field, and Sunday, April 13, 1874, Messrs. S. T. Bowen and N. B. Dodson opened negotiations with the Rev. E. E. Bayliss.

devote his whole time to the held, and Sunday, April 13, 1874, Messrs. S. T. Bowen and N. B. Dodson opened negotiations with the Rev. E. E. Bayliss.

At a meeting of friends, April 15, he decided, after mature deliberation, to accept the call from the Hyde Park people, provided that they could secure him the sum of $1,500 per annum. Tuesday evening, April 21, still another meeting was held, which was largely attended, not only by the residents of the village, but also by Baptist friends from Chleago, especially those of the Second Church. At this meeting sufficient pledges were obtained to cover the minister's salary, and the congregation departed rejoicing. Saturday night of the same week two Deacons, Messra. Bogert and Hayes, were appointed, and N. B. Dodson, S. T. Bowen, and J. G. Fratt were elected Trustees, Mr. C. G. Bulkley being chosen to fill the position of Clerk and Treasurer. From that time the progress of the church has been much more rapid and encouraging.

For a short time the congregation met in rented quarters, but, as the necessity of an established church edifice became more apparent, in the fall of 1874 a acat frame building, capable of accommodating about 200 listeners, was erected on Madison avenue, between Fifty-third and Fifty-fourth streets, at a total cost for construction and furniture of $2,155, which amount has been entirely paid. The church was duly dedicated in October. In March, 1875, the pastor departed for Virden, Ill., where he is connected with the Baptist Church. He was succeeded by the Rev. James Goodman, who is still ably and earnestly fulfilling the duties of his office.

The church raised last year for all purposes $1,626. At the present date the Deacons are three in number.—Messrs. Bogert, Bulkley, and Dodson,—and the Board of Trustees consists of Messrs. Dodson, Bowen, E. P. Burroughs, Pratt, and Bogert. The other officers are C. G. Bulkley Treasurer, and N. B. Dodson Clerk. The first Protestant church in Constantinople was opened in 1845. There are now seventy-siz in the Turkish Empire, of which a third are self-supporting and independent. Four "evangelical unions" have been formed for mutual counsel and aid. Connected with these churches are congregations aggregating 18,000, with a population of over 18,000 native Protestants.

The Rev. Morgan Dix eays some very good things about church music in an article in the Church Resize. He characterizes American church-music as chaos. There is lack of unity, no dominant influence, individual caprice running risk. He thinks Sankey's Gospel hymns mark the level of the tide to-day, and deplores the mixing-up of the profane with the sacred in our church music.

The specting sujection is continually ringing

The sneering question is continually ringing in the ear, "What have missions done?" Africa sends back a response from 130,000 church members; Asia from 120,000; Europe, with Scandinavia and Germany, 53,000; America, 22,000; Polynesia, 70,000; the West Indies, 150,000; a grand total of 500,000 gathered out of the darkness of idolatry and heathenism into the communion of the Church of Christ!

The Moody and Sankey Committee of Boston has selected for the coming services in that city a lot on Tremont street, near Clarendon street. On this it will erect a brick building, with walls 30 feet high, and containing an andience-room in size 204 feet by 120 feet. Seats will be provided for 6,000 persons on the floor and 500 on the platform. It is estimated that the building complete and ready for use will cost $27,000.

complete and ready for use will cost $27,000.

There is a talk of uniting the four bodies of colored Methodists, viz.: the African Methodist Episcopal Church, Zion Methodist Episcopal Church, the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church, and the British Methodist Episcopal Church, and the British Methodist Episcopal Church and the British Methodist Episcopal Church, and the British Methodist Episcopal Church, and so seventeen colored Bishops in America, and some of them, in case of union, must be reduced to the ranks. The colored brethren cannot stand that, and so some of the papers despair of its being accomplished.

The vote of the Methodist Episcopal Annual Conferences on the change of the "Third Restrictive Rule," in relation to the powers of the Episcopacy, already shows that the authority to change will be refused. The Northern Christian Advocate reports 226 votes in favor to 398 against. Some of the Conferences have voted against the change of the restrictive rule on the ground that it is unnecessary, the powers of the General Conference being, in their opinion, sufficient.

The Brooklyn Lay College, of which the Rev. Dr. Talmage is President, will open its exercises on Tuesday evening, Oct. 24, with an address by the Rev. Dr. Newman, of Washington. In addition to the regular work by the five professors of the institution, the Rev. Dr. Duryea, of the Presbyterian Church; the Rev. Bishop Foster, of the Methodist; the Rev. Dr. Lorrimer, of the Baptist; the Rev. Dr. Prime, of the Observer, and other prominent clergymen and laymen will take part in the instruction of the students.

In the little Village of El Rancho, N. M., the Christian people are not afraid of work. The members of the Presbyterian Church living in that locality are building a church. They devote one day in each week to this work, until the building is finished. They have already completed the wall around the graveyard, and have prepared dried brick (adobe) for the church. The women have plastered the walls of the graveyard with their own hands, and as soon as the building is ready will do the same for its walls. These poor people have willing hands but no money.

Bishop Potter, in his address at the Episcopal Diocesan Convention of New York last week, spoke of the necessity of keeping alive the project of erecting a cathedral worthy of the wealth and membership of the Episcopal Church in that city. The Rev. Dr. Cooke of St. John's Chapel says that several men of large wealth have offered to subscribe liberally if the idea is carried into execution. It is very much regretted among churchmen that nothing has been done. In 1871, it is understood, Trinity Church offered $700,000 for the block bounded by Fifth and Madison avenues, and Seventy-ninth and Eightieth streets, for the purpose of building a cathedral. The price asked was $1,000,000, and there the matter ended.

THE WEST SIDE THEATRE.

No fresh attraction was presented last week at my of the principal theatres, and there was no development worth mentioning anywhere, with the possible exception of the collapse of the variety establishment on the West Side. The failure of Mr. Aims was not unexpected.

Experience has shown that the West Side cannot maintain for itself alone a respectable place of amusement. The alternatives offered to the theatrical manager in that quarter of the city are a steady loss of money or a resort to illegitimate and disreputable practices. Mr. Aims would not adopt the latter of these expedients if he could, and he could not if he would, since the Mayor has recently taken strong measures course it was out of the question that Mr.

Alms should continue to spend money,
without any prospect of getting it back;
and he, no doubt, chose the wiser part in closing after so brief a trial. But the part in closing after so brief a trial. But the event is interesting, not so much for its bearings on the fortunes of an individual as for the evidence it gives of the relations sustained by the people of the West Side to theatricals in Chicago. It should be no source of mortification that the West Side cannot, or will not, furnish sufficient patronage to support a theatre of its own. A distinctively residence quarter of a city no larger than Chicago cannot hope to accomplish so much as this. Even Brooklyn with its vast industries and teeming population has been heretofore a barren field for theatrical enterprises; and the experiment of Messrs. Shook & Palmer, now in progress there, has not as yet an assured promise of success. In Chicago, the theatres must for many years to come be in the neighborhood of the hotels, from the transient population of which a large share of theatrical population is derived. Not only is it true that the residence quarters of Chicago cannot support separate theatrical establishments, but they ought not to have them if it were possible. The ex-uence quarters of Chicago cannot support separate the strical establishments, but they ought not to have them if it were possible. The existence of dramatic art in this city is still so feeble and uneducated that all spare energies should be devoted to improving it in the piaces where it has secured a foothold. These places—such as they are—can be found only on the South Side.

The second week of Mr. Rowe's engagement at McVicker's Theatre presented no new features. The New York Times states that Mr.

Rowe has been acting "Brass" in Chicago to large and enthusiastic audiences. The truth is that the audiences have been neither large nor enthusiastic. We hope the fate of "Brass" in enthusiastic. We hope the fate of "Brass" in this city will be a lesson to a portion of the dramatic profession, and expose the weakness and the delusive vanity of "stars," which leads them to believe that a run of 100 nights in New

The Langrishe troupe now fluctuates between Deadwood City and Crook City in the Black Hills, as the Union Square Company does between New York and Chicago.

Mrs. Scott-Siddons is said to be engaged to play Cordelia in the revival of "Lear" at Booth' Theatre, next month. But Jarrett & Palmer' announcements are not always trustworthy. Green-Room Notes in Chicago and Stuart Robson, it is said, has lost his California engagement, and been discharged from the Union Square Company, on account of unverticed accusation of bribery brought against the Liebling's Recital--The Work of Clara Morris reappeared on the stage, after an absence of many months, at the Brooklyn Theatre last Monday night, assuming the part of Constance in "Conscience," taken here by Miss Claxton.

Shook & Palmer have reduced the prices for their Brooklyn theatre, having become con-vinced that the people of that city will not pay New York rates, however good the entertainment may be.

Among the latest arrivals from Europe is Herr Hermann Linde, formerly an actor at the theatre in Darmstadt, Germany, but now, as he calls himseif, a "Recitator," He is a dramatic reader of Shakspeare, and is able to repeat entire plays, such as "Coriolanus" and "Julius Cæsar," from memory, changing his voice and manner of delivery with each character introduced.

duced.

Fannie Davenport, with "Pique," and Charles Pope, with "The Gascon," were at Cincinnati last week; Mr. John E. Owens and Mrs. J. H. Hackett at St. Louis; Frank Mayo and John T. Raymond at Philadelphia; Kittie Blanchard and Annis Montague, in the "Evangeline" burlesque, at Washington; Sothern and Robson at Baltimore; the Julius Cæsar Combination, including Barrett, Davenport, and Warde, at Indianapolis and elsewhere; Mrs. Bowers at Cleveland; the Florences, with their "Mighty Dollar," at Utica, Syracuse, and Rochester, N. Y.; Augusta Dargon at Rochester and otner New York citles; Genevieve Rogers, in "Maud Muller," at Pittsburg; Boucicanit and Mrs. Chanfrau at Boston.

Victor Hugo is at work on a drams to be founded on his novel of "93." Croizette has recovered her health, and has appeared at the Comedie Francais. Alexander Dumas is laboriously preparing his play of "L'Etrangere" for publication. The death in Germany is announced of J. L. Klein, the author of a seemingly interminable "History of the Drama," of which the twelfth wolume was published shortly before he died. A dramatic representation is to be given in Italian, in Paris, in aid of the fund for raising a statue to Goldoni, the Italian dramatist, Mme. Ristori appearing in the title role in "Maria Stuarda," and Miss Genevieve Ward playing Elizabetta, this being her debut in an Italian part.

The Paris American Register of the 30th ult. says: "The success of 'Fromont Jeune et Risler Aine,' at the Vaudeville, continues to increase with every representation, and even standing tickets are in demand. It is worth while to visit this theatre, if only to see the exquisite toilettes, some six in number, which are displayed by Mile. Blanche Pierson in the role of Sidonie."

Monsieur Parodi, a Greek, is the author of a tragedy, which is really a noble work of art, and which has just been brought out at the Comedie Francaise in Paris. It is called "Rome Vaincue," and is founded on one of the most dramatic phases of Roman history. One criticand an Englishman at that—says: "M. Parodi's tragedy is simply a masterpiece." Mile. Bemhardt has achieved another triumph in the part of Posthumia, an old and blind Roman matron. No acting like hers has been seen since Rachel.

since Rachel.

The London Times condemns Barry Sullivan's acting of Richard, and speaks of the actor as one "high in favor in America and on our own provincial stage, but less known perhaps in London." As to his elecution, the Times repeats the opinion that was expressed when Mr. Sullivan was in Chicago: "He has certain tricks of voice which are curiously unlike the ordinary inflections of that organ, and which appear to be mostly independent of the meaning of the words spoken, while his command of gesture and action, though strict, is not extensive." Of his conception of the character the same authority remarks: "He conveys the impression only of a man with a craze for human blood—a sort of half-witted monster, who is occasionally given to chuckling and jesting in a low, coarse manner at his physical and moral deformities."

only of a man with a craze for human blood—a sort of half-witted monster, who is occasionally given to chuckling and jesting in a low, coarse maintained in New York at a loss with the sole purpose of misleading the people of other cities by an appearance of success. If rumor can be trusted, this course was pursued with "Brass." The result shows how erroneous is the theory in accordance with which such runs are made. Of Mr. Rowe's performance in particular, it is only necessary to add to what was said last week some notice of his quality as a burlesque actor. The fact that an actor of some capacity in the department of high comedy should choose to adopt the methods of burlesque is a curious illustration of the manner in which popular narrowness can contract the range of an artist's endeavors. There can scarcely be a question but that Mr. Kowe has been in some measure spoiled by the habits of American audiences. With us burlesque is esteemed almost as highly as comedy. Mr. Rowe therefore condescends to give us burlesque were given avowedly and manfully for what it is. But he is to be condemned for offering it to us under the name of comedy. It requires a sort of heroism in the actor to deny himself, even for a moment, the pleasure of making people laugh; yet the true artist knows that by reserving his powers for occasions rather than by spreading them through an entire evening, he can give enjoyment higher of its kind and keener in its effects. An artist who has consistently adhered to his principles as a comedian is Mr. Mathews, of London,—one in our own country is Mr. John E. Owens, although in him there have been evidences of a yielding to popular prejudices and caprice. Mr. Rowe has gone entirely over to the enemy, and since be has humiliated himself thus, he ought to obtain his price in popular appreciation shown at the bot-office.

NOTES AND ANNOUNCEMENTS.

The Adelphit this week will present a fresh Europe and from time to time word came that he was diligently employed in studying not alone the plano but composition also. When it was announced that he had returned and would reappear in concert, there was a natural curtosity to hear him again, which resulted in his securing an audience largely made up of musicians and musical amateurs, and, therefore, unusually critical as well as complimentary. Although great expectations had been expressed with regard to his progress, we doubt whether any one of those present was not surprised and delighted with his masterly playing. His programme was made up with excellent taste, its only fault being in its length. It included the familiar Beethoven Sonata op. 31, No. 2, which afforded a good test of his abilities, because it is so well known; two of Miss Jennie Busk, the well-known and favorite vocalist, has outlined a series of matinees, the first of which will be given at McCormick Hall next Saturday afternoon. Upon this cocasion, Miss Busk will have the excellent assistance of Mr. Wilkie, our home tenor; Mr. Donaldson, a tenor from New York, who has never sung here before; Mr. Liebling, planist; Mr. Lewis, violinist; and Mr. Eichheim, 'cellist. Mr. Baird will play the accompaniments. It is now many years since Miss Busk has sung here publicly. As she has come here to reside, we hope she will receive a weicome from our musical people as cordial as she deserves, both as a most excellent lady and talented vocalist. Her assistants in this concert, with one exception, are well known here, and their names alone are a sufficient guarantee that the concert will be very enjoyable. The sale of seats will commence to-morrow at Lyon & Healy's and Root & Sons' music company's stores.

THE APOLLO CLUB.

The work of the Apollo Club for the first concerts in December is well under way.

The soloists for these concerts will be Miss Emma C. Thursby, soprano, and the Kunkel brothers, the celebrated duet (two pianos) performers whom Rubinstein complimented so highly as being among the best in the world. With these special attractions the opening of the Apollo season will be a brilliant event in the musical record of the year. The managers desire us to announce that subscribers to the Club will receive their cards at the earliest practicable moment. As they cannot all be delivered at once in so large a membership, time must be allowed. As every name has been properly registered there can be no mistake. By allowing the necessary time for the collector to visit all, every member or subscriber will receive his cards in good season and long before the first concert. Mr. George H. Broderick is alone authorized to deliver cards and collect moneys of subscribers unless in case of such active members of the Club who have chosen to collect from those of their friends who have become members through them. To avoid delay in placing in each subscriber's hands the cards for the season, and to obviate the necessity of repeated calls of the collector, the subscribers will please provide for the acceptance of their cards in case of absence. This will greatly facilitate the delivery of the same.

Springfield, Ill., has good reason to congratulate herself upon having a composer of more than ordinary merit. We have received from that city a set of waltzes, entitled "La Petite Lizette Waltzes," by L. M. French, which are so far removed from the ordinary humdrum routine of waltz-writing by amateurs that they will be sure to attract notice and become favorites. They display an originality in scholarship in composition that speak well for the future of their composer.

The ladies' chorus of the Apollo Club has its first rehearsal on Wednesday afternoon of this week, at the First Methodist Church, corner of Clark and Washington streets. We are requested to say that the work to be taken up by the Apollo Club is very important and must have the immediate attention of the entire Club. Every active member is requested to be paseent at rehearsal on Monday evening promptly at a quarter before 8 c'clock. Any inattention to this and coming rehearsals will be placed in the hands of the management for prompt and decisive action.

The Turner Hall programme, this afternoon, includes Menzel's "Festival March"; Strauss' overture to "Indigo"; the second finale to "Stradella"; Conrad's "Fantasie of German Songs"; the "Blue Danube Waltz"; a violin solo to be played by William Fehl; "The Wandering Bird," by Zabel; "The Jubilee Overture," by E. Bach; Parlow's "Comie Potpourri"; and Faust's galop, "House to House."

The subscription for music in the public schools is well under way; but is takes so many mites to make up the $1,500 ne-essary, that progress is slow. About $700 has now been subscribed, in sums of from $5 unward. Upon the strength of this, Mr. Blackman has gone to work in the schools; but it should be understood that he cannot remain at his post unless the stipulated sum is forthcoming. Dollar (or more) subscriptions are now solicited to complete the fund. There are subscription lists, easily accessible; a postal card sent to Mr. F. W. Root, 156 State street, stating a willingness to subscribe, will save the sender the necessity of calling with the money; or, a remittance can be safely made by mail to the same address. It would not be creditable to our citizens to let this matter fail for want of the small amount of support still necessary."

SAINT SAENS! "PHABTON."

Theodore Thomas recently brought out a symphonic poem by Saint Saens, of which the New York Tribuns says:

The symphonic poem trasts of the old myth of Phaeton, his attempt to drive the chariot of his father Phabus, and his destruction by Jupiter. The first movement, a maestoso, depicts the preparations for his departure, and the impatience of the sun-horses. The second, an allegro, shows the start, marking the steady beat of the horses hoofs and the rolling of the charnot wheels. But the rhythm of the movement is broken as the steeds become restive, and swerve occasionally from their course. At last, breaking completely from Phaeton's control, they rush toward the earth, which threatens to be consumed in the flames of the sun-god. Here a plaintive movement for the claimet expresses the terror and dread of the inhabitants of the earth, when Jow interposes. In a rapid movement for the fall orchestra the climax is reached, Jose's thunderbolt bursts, and

A VISIT MENDELSSOUN'S HOUSE.

The Rev. H. R. Haweis has visited Mer

delssohn's home at Leipsic, and thus refers to his visit:

The memorial tablet mentioned by Bredeker, he says, was gone, and with some trouble I found the house to be No. 21 Konigatrasse. Good Mr. Reuter, who now lives there, at once left his office in the yard and took me into the rooms where so much of the loveliest music was conceived and written between 1835-47. The spacious flat of nine rooms all belonged to Felix Mendelssohn. Mr. Reuter showed me the large reception-room, and then took me into the sitting-room and bed-room, in which last the composer died. It is a little room, and those who remember the account of his death, and the number of people who seem to have been in and out of the room, can see at a glance how natural this was—supposing the sitting-room adjoining to have been full of friends. The court-yard, now used for bales of merchandise, and paved, was a garden in Mendelssohn's time, and he lived in the back of the house,—latterly almost in two rooms,—because of the quiet of the place. The Reuters have had the fabric restored and partitions removed, so that the house is substantially as Mendelssohn left it, but the bustle and commerce of Leipsic has enormously increased since 1847, and in more senses than one the place knows him no more.

The Bay Psalm-Book, belonging to the estate of the late ex-Mayor Shurtleff, of Boston, was sold by auction to Sydney S. Ryder, a Providence bookseller, for $1,025. The book was in a mahogany case, lined with silk, and was only taken out for a minute or two by the auctioneer, Mr. Leonard himself, and no one was allowed to handle it. The first bid was $100, the second of $500, followed by a third of $600, The bids rapidly succeeded each other to $700, $800, $900, $1,000, and then there was a little pause. Mr. Byder bid $1,025. Mr. Leonard, after waiting a minute for another bid, knocked it off to Mr. Ryder, and it was handed to him, when he and another gentleman left the room to transact the necessary financial business. The book is of some 300 pages, the pages being six and seven-eighths inches long by four and ahalf inches wide. It was printed at Cambridge, Mass., in 1640, and is said to have been the first book printed in the British American Colonies.

Many of these are very well known here, among them Miss Emma Thursby, the charming soprano who has been so successful both in concert and oradic torio; Miss Clementine Lasar, the soprano of the choir of Plymouth Church; Mrs. Emily Butman and Mme. Teresa Carreno-Sauret, who, while still studying for the operatic stage, keeps up her practice at the piano. M. Sauret, her husband, has also been spending the summer at Laxeside. All of these ladies have been hard at work during their vacations, and will doubtless show the effect of their studies during the coming season.

rice, the ship was ordered to Foo-Chow-Foo, or Fuh-Cha-u, as it is abreviated by the Chinese. This port had only been opened to European trade in 1853, and it was eagerly sought by the Americans, lying as it does in the very heart of the finest black tea region in the Empire. It is situated on the majestic Min, one of the largest rivers in China, and on the 7th of January we anchored at Pagoda Point, eighteen miles below the walled city of Fuh-Cha-u.

THE OFIUM SHIPS.

The English companies have receiving-ships stationed at all the open ports in China, as store-houses for optum, which seems to be considered as one of the necessaries of a Celestial's life. These ships are strongly manned with British officers and Lasear seamen, fully armed and provided with boarding nettings, which render it almost impossible for an attacking party to get possession of the decks. They are gorgeously fitted up, and the commanders, in many instances, have united themselves to native women, by whom they have large and interesting families. The Captain of one of these floating palaces at Amoy invited me to pass a day with him on board; and, after showing me around the elegantly-adorned spar-deck, he ushered me into the luxurious cabin to dinner. Judge of my surprise when he introduced me to a very handsome native lady as his wife, while gathered around the well-spread board were seated five beautiful children,—two boys and three girls,—which, he proudly told me, comprised his Oriental family. The lady was magnificently attired, of polished manners and address, while the juveniles were remarkable for their quiet yet cheerful behavior, and seemed to be the idols of both the parents.

The Captain's time of service was nearly expired, and, having amassed a fortune, he thought of returning to England soon.

"And madame, and these beautiful children," said I, "what disposition shall you make of them?"

"Ah, W.," said he, "That is the curse of this Orient life. Of course should I take this family to England they would certainly be ostracized by my friends, and vet I cannot bear the thought of leaving them. I presume I shall not make a prolonged stay in England, but shall return, most likely, and pass the remainder of my life here in China."

I alluded in a former paper to the beauty of many of the Tartar women, and I may here remark that the American Consul, Mr. E. Cunningham, at Shanghai, had the portrait of one of these Amor women hanging in his parlor, and he assured me lisat she had spent some weeks curacy seemed almost miraculous.

I hailed my sanpan early on a delightful morning in February, and ordered the crew to convey me with dispatch to the city. The morning air was cool and bracing, and a bright sun lighted up the mountain tops, and shone pleasantly down on the countiess villages embowered amongst the brightest foliage, giving to the whole scene an indescribable air of quiet and repose.

pleasantly down on the countless villages embowered amongst the brightest foliage, giving to the whole scene an indescribable air of quiet and repose.

A party of missionaries, headed by the Rev. Mr. Maclay, were on a visit to my ship, and I met them two miles below the city riding out the adverse tide at anchor.

I went to the United States Consulate, immediately on my arrival, and, having "tiffined," I procured the loan of the Consul's sedanchair, in which to make my entree into the walled city of Fuh-Cha-u. My four stalwart Chinamen started off at a2:40 pace, crossing the first bridge which here spans the grand and majestic River Min. The bridge contains thirtynine spacious arches, and, though said to be 809 years old, its architecture was of striking beauty and great apparent strength. Passing this bridge, from which several smaller ones were visible, I was soon lost in a labyrinth of thronged and filthy streets, while crowds of haif-naked beggars besieged my chair at every step, soliciting, and even demanding, alms.

The throng at length became so dense that progression seemed impossible, and my bearer men came to adead hait, while the air resounded with cries of "fan-qui-lo,"—the terms applied to foreigners,—and women and children crowded the flat house-tops, gazing eagerly at the audacious foreigner who had penetrated alone into the most secluded portion of their city. I threw up the gorgeous silk curtains of my sedan, and stepped out into the street, when a crowd of barbarians specifly opened a passage, induced thereto, most likely, by a vision of a trusty. Colt's revolver, which had been my companion in several peregrinations more dangerous than a tour through a Chinese city, doubly walled though it were.

Reaching a central portion of the town, I visited a street devoted to the curiosity, or, as they are termed, "curio-shops," and I spent several hours in perfect felicity overhauling antique specimens of art and many relics of a bygone age.

they are termed, "curio-shops," and I spent several hours in perfect felicity overhauling antique specimens of art and many relics of a bygone age.

After forty days' sojourn at Pagoda Point, our ship was at last fully laden with choice black teas and silks, and on the 25th of February, while two experienced Chinese pilots were dropping her down the river, she struck a sunken rock in the Mingan Pass and suddenly sank in forty fathoms water. I was hospitably entertained at the American mission by Mr. and Mrs. Henrietts Maclay, but soon embarked for my native land in one of the New York clippers.

We touched at the monumental isle, to replenish our water, and I took a ride over the island, twenty years having elapsed since, on my first India voyage, I rode out to visit the grave of the great Emperor, the First Napoleon.

Arrived at Jamestown, a lot of boys brought forth the requisite number of horses for the party, all sufficiently endowed with those genuine vices which Rarey knew so well how to subjugate. There were "shyers" and "tumblers," "rarers" and "kickers," but not a "bolter" among them all, the boys averred. And now, we mount the winding, stony road—the perpendicular basaltic rocks above, and the deepblue sea in the distance below—the horizon dim and indistinct with sea and sky blending into one, till I could scarce define the line of separation. We soon reach Saddle Hill, 650 feet above the sea, from which one might drop a plummet into the ocean beneath. Passing the barracks, we scramble along a stony road till we find ourselves on a sloping plain, thickly strewn with stones and rocks, a dreary place, with nothing to relieve the sea, from which one might drop a plummet into the first of the first, crows a small valley, there are ubiquitous, like their Western prototypes.

Yonder small cluster of huts and cottages to the left is Half-Tree Hollow. Here we turn down a sinuous by-path, and, pausing, look upward to High Knoll, 1,200 feet high, crowned with its tower and castle, and a few scattering fir trees wood stand before us, rusty and time-worn, and leaning hopelessly against the dizzy walls for support.

DEATH SCENE OF BONAPARTE.

At the eutrance are two cottages, once snug lodges, but now mete ruinous cabins. We pass up a long, narrow field, and, threading a narrow inclosure, we come upon the ruins of the farmhouse where the greatest Captain of his age—the illustrious Napoleon—died. Over the door and on the side walls are names and dates, inscribed by visitors of all nations, in every variety of style, with sentences, one of which is amusing. These well-known lines appear in a boid hand: "One murder makes a man a villain—millions, a hero," underneath which, in a small, Frenchy hand, some patriotic Gaul has scribbled in a fit of indignation, doubtless arising from a misinterpretation of the quotation: "You lies, you Cot-dam Inglismans!"

This was Napoleon's billiard-room, adjoining the apartment in which his wounded spirit was released from earthly bondage. The last is a small, miserable place, and at the time of my visit a corn-crushing machine was the only article of furniture it contained. At best, it must have been no envisible place of abode, but then, in ruins, it filled my mind with melancholy retrospections, as my imagination carried me back to the hour, when, in this desolate spot the "Spoiled Child of Destiny" lay stretched in mortal azony upon the bed of death. I left the spot with many reflections on the instability of human grandeur and sublunary bilss; and, reaching Jamestown, our pleasant ride was ended, while the blood-red signal fluttering in the gale gave notice that our ship was ready for her ocean march again. Once more the bellying salls were distended to the breeze, and one lovely evening in June the Highland lights were seen and we glided into New York Bay.

Capt. Sam.

Majestic wonder of the Occident!
To thy famed scenes the great Creator lent
Profoundest impress of Almighty power!
In thy bold features of sublimity,
Crowned by the symbols of supremacy,
Man views the frailty of his little hour.

Ten thousand ages has the thunderous roar Of thy wild waters echoed on the shore, Where man in every state has gazed with awe Upon the marvel of thy torrent-flow; The very savage, centuries ago, Belief in God therefrom constrained to draw.

Plunge on! O thou creation marvelous!
Pour thy earth-shaking floods in grandeur thus,
Till Time and Nature to exist shall cease!
That man may come, and, at thy ancient shrine,
Bow down in worship to the Power Divine
Which formed Niagara's grand master-piece.

Those Back Counties.

Burlington Hackeys.

There is something almost sublime in a Democrat's faith in the "back counties" of Colorado. We suppose that six months from now, after President Hayes is comfortably running things to suit himself, there will be old moss-backs in fowa, dubiously shaking their beads over the election-returns, saying, "Wait till you hear from the back counties of Colorado."

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Jokes on strangers are in order now, but regular out-and-out sells may be regarded as inhospitable. However, here is one well vouched-for which is so laughable that it must be printed. A gentleman brought his wife to the city, and in order to get the full benefit to the city, and in order to get the full benefit to the city. efit of the reputation of aristocratic living to be enjoyed from putting up at a strictly first-class hotel, took rooms at one of the nobby Fifth avenue caravansaries. While he had plenty of money, and his wife had resolved to let everybody know it, he had no introduction to the regular habitues of the house. The woman was very talkative, and scraped an acquaintance with several of the ladies, and they were not with several of the ladies, and they were not long in discovering that she was inexperienced and verdant in city fashions. In three or four days the ladies became so wearied of her attentions that they resolved to perpetrate a practical joke at her expense. So they talked in her presence of the new Centennial bustles just out. etc. Her curiosity was roused, and she asked her husband to find out what they were, and to buy her one. After some maneuvering he ascerained that the thing they meant was a bustle composed of longitudinal strips of red, white, and blue material, the blue dotted with stars. Such as are shown in the windows as advertisements simply to attract attention. He had

PECULIAR BUT EXQUISITE BEVENGE. There are two men in this city whose lives have been marked by an incident which illustrates a phase of human nature not often observed. They were college mates,—the one a listless, caerless, indifferent scholar, blessed (or cursed) with a rich father, and now a lawyer by cursed) with a rich father, and now a lawyer by profession, though an idle one in practice. The other is a bright but profligate fellow, poor in purse, proud in spirit, and reckless of money and everything but his own wicked pleasures. They fell in love with the same girl, but the smarter one (the last described) was successful. In due time they were married, but it soon became evident that one woman was not sufficient for the profligate husband, and unhappiness was the result. In a year they separated, and the husband having in the meantime cast an evil eye upon a rich widow was anxious to get rid of his wife, in order to marry the other. While thus situated his former chum put in an appearance, and resumed his intimacy with the deserted wife. For the first time he manifested an unusual energy, and persuaded the woman that her husband's indicality had released her from her marriage obligations. In the end he eloped with ner, to the joy and satisfaction of her reckless husband. The latter, when he heard it, was so delighted that when he was approached by a friend with the information that young Mr. — had eloped with Mrs. — exclaimed, "Well, at last I am even with him; he was always crowing over me in college, and by — if he has got my wife I am more than revenged."

ONE OF AIMER'S TROUBLES.

The naughty Aimee (the Philadelphians call her worse names than that, and say she deserves them, too) has recently rid herself of a source of trouble which is said to have been more of a ourden to her than a half-dozen fresh lovers in 1871 she was persuaded by some Frenchmer o fivest all her savings in diamonds, in the to invest all her savings in diamonds, in the belief that they would appreciate in value, and prove a lucky venture. She bought them to the value of $50,000, and then her trials commenced. Everywhere she was afraid of being robbed, and became, so to speak, saturated with the idea that her servants and companions were continually conspiring to steal her diamonds. This idea became an absorbing passion day and night, and after awhile she added to it the fear that her life would be taken if necessary to

New Subdivisions -- Building Permits-

THE LOAN MARKET. res for the past week are in excess of ose for the corresponding week last year, but is is chiefly owing to a recording of a mort-ge from the Joliet Iron and Steel Company to oses Taylor, of New York, to secure $500,-Taylor, of New York, to secure $500,-This mortgage is in addition to a mort-leed of trust dated Aug. 1, 1871, to secure the same amount, and is made for the purpose of continuing the security upon the personal property of the Company. The bonds secured by this investment are 500 in number for $1,000 each, and are made redeemable at the rate of $50,000 a year, commencing with Aug. 1, 1875, and ending Aug. 1, 1884, bearing 10 per cent innual interest.

The business of the past week was dull, but re loans were negotiated. Trades and iring of mercantile indebtedness were rominent features than for some weeks more prominent reasures than for some weeks previous. There is but little complaint on the score of payments. The demand is falling off, the season for new building enterprises is nearly at an end, and the necessities of borrowers or other purposes are not pressing.

The important transactions of the past week were as follows:

A BETTER FEBLING, BUT FEWER SALES. The transactions in the real-estate market for he last week were, with one exception, of no more than usual importance. The exception is the purchase by the United States Rolling-Stock Company, of New York, of the property mentioned below. The purchase was made with the intention or removing the manufacturing business of this Company, which controls a capital of $5,000,000, to this city. This will be done at once, and will add a new industry to the many that are now concentrating here.

One of the most encouraging features of business in Chicago, and it particularly affects the real estate business, is the number of enterprises like that of the Rolling-Stock Company, which are transferring their headquarters to Chicago. Several important schemes of this kind are now quietly approaching consummation, and will soon be made public. A much more cheerful tone has been communicated in consequence to the market in realty.

The following were the principal transactions of the week:

THE BOTANICAL GARDENS.

THE BOTANICAL GARDENS.

GRATIFING SUCCESS OF THE SCHEME.

The Chicago Botanical Gardens, at the South Park, have developed under their able management beyond the expectations that were entertained when the project was undertaken. They add greatly to the attractions of the Park, as do the Zoological Garden and the Aquarium in the Central Park, New York. The last number of the Chicago Medical Journal gives some interesting information about the progress that has been made up to the present time.

Australia, which was peopled in the year 1870 by less than 1,000,000 inhabitants, can point to five botanical gardens established within its borders. There are five also in South America. That in Calcutta is more than 100 years old, and covers 280 cares of ground. Java possesses in the Buttenzorg probably the largest garden in the world, as it includes 272 acres of ground, and furnishes sites for plant-culture at elevations from 4,500 to 10,000 feet above the level of the sea. Up to within a recent date there was but one botanical garden in North America—that connected with the University of Harvard. We say but one, for it is well known that the Government gardens at Washington subserve chiefly the purpose of providing bouquets for members of Congress, while that at St. Louis—small, popular, and showy—is scarcely adapted to the study of botanical science. The Cambridge garden, now seventy-five years old, is completely filed with collections obtained from the botanical fusearches. It covers ten acres of ground, and to this space has been recently added the ground for an arboretum.

The Chicago Botanical Garden is locather

been to enable Prof. Gray to advance his botanical researches. It covers ten acres of ground, and to this space has been recently added the ground for an arboretum.

The Chicago Botanical Garden is located in the southeast corner of the northern and western of the two South Parks. It is safe to say that a botanical garden was never before established which has, in a similar space of time, accomplished the results which the management now actually exhibit. Since the date of granization, on the 10th of April, 1875, 8,000 packets of seeds and living plants have been received here from England, France, Germany, Russia, Holland, Italy, Anstria, Hungary, Java, Australia, Chill, South Africa (Cape of Good Hope), Calcutta, and various portions of the United States,—the latter chiefly from the garden at Cambridge. These represent about 6,000 living species. During this same time, also, about 2,000 packets of living plants and seeds have been exported to various parts of the world, principally in exchange to the countries mentioned above. It may be added that these exchanges have been eagerly sought for abroad, and that nothing could exceed the cordial and even enthusiastic support accorded to the Chicago enterprise, by strangers who have proved themselves friends in these remote quarters of the globe. As an illustration of this fact, it may be mentioned that it has actually been found to be more difficult to obtain collections from various parts of this country than from Java and South Africa.

To-day the four houses, heated by warm water, and so arranged that the temperature in each may be adjusted to a degree, are crowded to their utmost capacity. Many tropical plants have reached the glass roofs, and turned downward in accordance with the demands of a vigorous growth. Specimens of the Eucalyptus Globulus, grown from Australian seed twelve months ago, are now fully twelve feet in height. Among the medicinal plants to be seen, there are several varieties of hyosciamus, aconite, and arnica.

The success has been largely those from Boston, Phisadelphis, New York, and Washington preponderating.

In England and elsewhere, it is not rare to find elergymen, barristers, and gentlemen eminent in various professions and stations of life, resorting to this class of studies as a source of recreation and amusement, and often they attain a truly remarkable degree of producincy in their favoritis science. Such a state of society will obtain more and more in this country, as capital accumulates its surplus, and the means of generous living are placed at the disposal of men in the middle ranks of life. In the territory around Chicago—a city destined without doubt to be the metropolis of a continent, its feet resting on a soil which is a treasure house of vegetable and mineral wealth, its arms reaching out to the embrace of an empire of unparalleled producive resources—such conditions as those described will inexistally arrive.

placed on the records the past week, viz.: A subdivision of Block 7, in Bond's Subdivision of part of N. E. ½ of Sec. 23, 37, 13, Washington Heights, making sixty-two lots, each 30 by 126 feet, with 15-foot alleys.

In addition to the foregoing, there were filed for record under the authority of the County Clerk, surveys of various sections in Towaships 42, 12; 40, 13; 39, 13; 38, 14; and 37, 15, to the number of twenty-two, giving the names of ewners and the quantity of land held by each. These plats were compiled from deeds of owners, for the purposes of assessment, and not for placing the property on the market. THE UHLICH BLOCK.

The Unlich Block, on North Clark street, has just been completed. It is a handsome three-story stone-front block of stores and offices, covering the entire block between Kinzie and and North Water street. Among its first tenants are Unlich & Muehlke, managers of the Uhlich estate. HYDE PARK IMPROVEMENTS.

Among the improvements to be noted in Hyde Park are a new brick, lately completed, on Forty-seventh street, east of Woodlawn avenue; a handsome frame, nearly completed, on Woodlawn avenue, between Forty-sixth and Forty-seventh streets; and six new swell-front brick houses, two stories, basement, and Mansard root, on Greenwood street, between Forty-third and Forty-fourth. Messrs. Thompson & Wheeler are bullding four. and Aaron Bliss, Esq., two of these houses, and negotiations are pending looking to the erection of others.

son will be interested to hear that the sage and poet is busy revising and correcting his poems, which will appear shortly in the Little Classic which will appear shortly in the Little Classic edition. And even those who are not exactly in the ranks of the lovers and worshipers must feel a curiosity to see what the veteran of 70 will do with some of those earlier effusions. Take, for instance, the poem written in his earlier days,—I have forgotten the title,—wherein occurs the line "Sby thou not hell." Will the maturer thought and taste leave that, or leave it out? It is such expressions as this poet, so far as versification goes. No one questions his poetical thought, his images; but I am of those who one questions his poetical thought, his images; but I am of those who think it may well be questioned when such lines as the one I have quoted above mar the beauty, both by construction and suggestion, to say nothing of the harmony, of the verse that is supposed to represent the poetic form. Certainly the first requisition that verse makes upon its makers, or its singers, is that it shall be melodious: not only poetic in thought, but melodious in expression. And certainly in this expression when he advises the reader in a sort of transposed school-boy dialect, to face the music and not to "shy hell." But our philosopher is fond of strong expressions, as all strong characters are. In his prose it finds outlet in his appreciation of the "dear devil," and other simplicities of use which lack no element of refinement or adaptability. But in his verse some of these simplicities seem out of place and affectedly rough. Apropos of all this matter of harmony is a conversation I heard the other day in a publisher's office concerning Emerson's and Joaquin Miller's verse.

"Yes. I've been reading Miller's 'Ship in the Desert.' It's a wonderful thing. I haven't the slightest idea what it means. I don't think the author had, but it's a wonderful piece of verse, so smooth and melodious every way. And that's what verse should be. I read Emerson and Browning, and I not only don't understand hait they say, but I don't like their way of saying it, so I don't get any pleasure out of them. It doesn't make any difference about Miller now, whether you understand what he's at or not; it's always pleasant to hear him, because he sings and never makes a false note."

There was a general laugh at this half-earnest facetia with which more than one of us sympathized. But after all our protesting and our facetia we swore allegiance to the man who can write such lines as

I am owner of the sphere, of the seven stars, and the solar year, of the seven stars, and the solar year, rest of Robert Browning's titles, and the contents are of the same fashion. A critic says that Browning shows no lack of his old spirit and power in his new book. He certainly shows no lack of the spirit and power that are allied to his worst faults; but he just as certainly, in these later books, shows a great falling-o" from the line spirit that pervaded that exquisite poem of "Saul," and, in another key, that idyl, "Evelyn Hope." There is nothing in all this new book in any way equal to those. Year after year as Browning writes, he drops more and more not only the lyrical form, but the lyrical thought. "Pacchiarotto," it is true, is in rhyme, but what rhyme! And what construction to fit this rhyme! Take this, now:

But man, he perceived, was sinbborn,

But man, he perceived, was stabborn, Grew regular brute once cub-born; There is thought enough in the following, but there is no poetry, only Browningesque rhymed

Earth's a mill where we grind and wear mufflers A whip awaits shirkers and shufflers Who slacken their pace, sick of lugging At what don't advance for the tugging.

A very pertinent fact strongly expressed, but not poetry.

But the meaning is not all so clear as this. One gropes in the dark half the time, when to be clear would be much finer, both in the way of melody and constructiveness. It is in the old blind style of Sordello, that riddle that Douglass Jerrold said one of his most memorable things about. He was lying ill in bed, and his wife was reading aloud Sordello, which had just then come out. Jerrold listened awhile without coment, but by and by he turned uneasily, and asked, A very pertinent fact strongly expressed, but wife was reading aloud Sordello, which had just then come out. Jerrold listened awhile without to ument, but by and by he turned uneasily, and asked,

"My dear, do you understand that?"

"Not a word of it," returned Mrs. Jerrold. Jerrold breathed a sigh of reliet, and exclaimed:

"THANK GOD, THEN, I AM NOT CRAZY.

I thought I was going crazy as I listened!"

And yet, several years ago, when "The Ring and the Book" came out, a critic of the Allantic addressed the reader who could not understand Mr. Browning as "Mr. Average." It is comforting to remember that we are in such good company as that of Douglass Jerrold when we find ourselves put into that class. But, if true, then the average intellects are enormously in the majority, and of pretty good stuff. Yet, in spite of obscurity and ruggedness which amounts to deformity, there is in Browning's verse a subtle Iascination which holds one. Of course I mean one who is in any sense an admirer. Unlike the admirer of Miller, who found no pleasure in Browning because he failed to discover his meaning; I should say that, even when thus failing to discover the drift of certain portions, there are lines and sentences so fraught with life, so full of the intensity of living, that one thrills at the close touch. Here is Browning's great power. It is his own intensity of life, an intensity that runs over with a sort of wild health. And it is this which made his attitude toward his wife's great interest in Spiritualism seem so rudely antagonistic. His feet were planted very firmly on the earth. Hers, through ill-health and perhaps temperament, were scarcely upon it, and her mind followed all the investigating mysteries that related to another world. In his "Dramatis Persons" his poem of "Sludge, The Medium," or some such name, expressed very fully his feeling concerning HOME, THE SPIRITUALIST, it was said, in whom Mrs. Browning was greatly interested. The poem, or verses,—it is not a poem, but a rhymed attack,—has a rough discourtesy apparently, when we consider Mrs. Brownin

"Epilogue" in this new book,

"The poets pour us wine"—
Said the dearest poet I ever knew,
Dearent and greatest and best to me.
At these sittings or seances at his house during this "dearest poet's" lifetime, a friend who was present now and then used to tell how and Mrs. Browning would say: "Oh! Robert, how can you?" or some protest of the kind.

But it was not unkindly fun, and never meant to hourt that "dearest of poets." It may be that it is because that poet is gone from him that Browning loses something of sweetness in expression. He has lost or laid by most certainly the sweetness that could make such alove-poem as "In a Balcony" and "The Blot on the Escutcheon." Let us hope he may find it again before he prints another book.

In direct contrast to these rough obscurities is the new poem of Deirdre, which is to be the second book in the "No-Name" series. It is said to be written by a young Irishman, and is introduced to the publisher by no less a person than James Russell Lowell. The editor of the Literary World, who is not always inclined to speak rosily of books, literally goes off his set at this book. Tennyson never did better, he thinks. This may be true of some of Tennyson's pastoral stories; but it is not true, according to my judgment, of his greater work,—his dramatic poems and lyrics. It would convey a clearer idea of the poem to make the comparison with William Morris' verse. Deirdre has the same qualities of construction that William Morris' poems possess. And those who admire Mr. Morris will read with great delight this poem of Deirdre, which will be out on the lat of November.

this poem of Deirdre, which will be out on the list of November.

The fact that I have stated, or the guess at a fact, that the poem is by an Irishman, upsets the story I told in a previous letter, that the "No-Name" series was to be made up by American authors entirely. But the truth is that the publisher has changed his mind about the matter, and concluded to make the "No-Name" series

STILL MORE INTERESTING AND PAMOUS by putting no limit upon the authors. This plan will also be a great deal better for the American author who enters the list, for he or she may, if shrewd in selection of a locale, have the benefit of a much broader field to hide in, or be guessed at. The preferences, too, for English stories will help in the matter. The third volume in this mysterious series is a or be guessed at. Ine presented by the project of being in the matter. The third volume in this mysterious series is a novelette of New England life. But, unlike "Mercy Philbrick," it deals with the upper tendom of New England society. Its title, "Is That All?" is infinitely more interesting than "Mercy Philbrick's Choice." In this day and generation it is the most uncommon thing to meet with a young woman who rejoices or more likely mourns under the name of "Mercy;" and it is about time these old-fashioned tricks of the trade as choosing such names to signify New England character should be left off. It is to be hoped, too, that the hero in the new book will have a little blood in him; in short, be a live man instead of a ghostly creature like Stephen White. There was never a happier hit than this "No-Name" project.

EVEN JEAN INGELOW author of "Mercy Philbrick." The taguestion, when English critics can sneeringly question, "Who reads an American book?" And now, with the field open to any country in the "No-Name" series, who knows but Jean Ingelow herself will enter the lists?

When I speak of Emerson's appreciation and liking for strong language, I speak with all appreciation and reverence of Emerson, and I repeat that all strong characters, be they priests or laymen, have this appreciation. A gentleman told me not long ago that Emerson, as he stood upon the street one day in conversation with him, overhearing a passing stranger give vent to a resonant oath, which I will say had not the name of the Deity in it, remarked, "That sounds very fructrying."

But let us turn now to cur English bard of rugged lines. The few who are interested in him—and, great as his name is, they are in reality very few—will welcome the new volume from his pen which is to appear Saturday. The volume's title is "Pacchiarotto, and How He Worked in Distemper, and Other Poems."

This is eminently in the fashion of all the rest of Robert Browning's titles, and the consent that the present military system don't suit French nature. It is indisciplinable, and to attempt to train it by the same methods which are so successful in Germany is ruin. Soldiers hate officers with malignant hatred, have no confidence whatever in them, believe them to be even open to purchase by the enemy. The first defeat in the next war will lead to the massacreof the officers; we shall see La Commune in the army. I wrote vou the other day how French population was declining. The new military laws will make it decline still more. I have heard a dozen people answet to my question: "Why don't you have more children?" "We are not such fools as to breath a rest of the same fashion. A critic say.

This is eminently in the fashion of all the rest of Robert Browning's titles, and the correct of the same interested in him—and, great as his name is, they are in reality very few—will welcome the new volume from his pen which is to appea service except six months in the army. Her neighbors would taunt her with being an unnatural mother were she to marry and doom her son to five years in the army. Military glory is the cause of this canker, which greatly alarms Frenchmen. What a strange phenomenon it would be to see the Gaul become extinct like the Red Men or the aborigines of Australia, and the Teuton possess France by squatter rights!

Rochester Democrat: The German mind is sometimes very quick to reach a conclusion. Illustrating the opposite of this remark, Mr. Ferguson told Hans of the German who sat Ferguson told Hans of the German who sat 3,000 years gravely contemplating his toes, and then, rising, said with a sigh of relief, "Vell, I don't see nodings the matter with them."
"Hah!" said Hans quickly. "Now I cot you there. It vas a tam lie. No man efer leffed t'ree t'ousand years, hey? You must bin grazy."
